Chapter 132

Jalen felt pity for Saul. After all, their experience was very similar, but not so alike.

After all, although Jalen lost his father and mother, he still had a grandfather. Although Nitzan was strict, Jalen sincerely loved his grandfather. This caused his growth to be completely different from Saul's growth.

After Elaina heard him say that, she realized that the Halton family had such a grudge against the Judson family. No wonder Saul always had a look of hatred when he mentioned the Halton family.

Yet...

Could such a thing really be blamed on the Halton family and Jalen? He was also a victim.

Elaina was silent. For a moment, she did not know who to feel sorry for.

"Alright, let's eat," Jalen interrupted her thoughts. There was no trace of sadness on his face about losing his parents.

Perhaps for him, those unbearable things had already passed.

Elaina nodded and followed him back to the living room. There were dishes in front of them. They ate slowly.
