Chapter 88

Elaina and Joyce walked out of the hospital together. Then Joyce went to drive her car, and Elaina was waiting for Joyce by the roadside.

Shortly after, a black and white Ferrari sports car stopped in front of Elaina. Elaina did not vaguely realize until then that Joyce seemed to be very rich.

Elaina got in the car and said with a smile, "You are so rich, but why do you want to be a doctor? You should know that this job is very hard."

"I am already rich, so I naturally want to do something more meaningful," Joyce replied. Back then, when her family asked her this question, she gave them the same answer.

Elaina could not help laughing. She thought that what Joyce said seemed to make sense.

After a while, the car stopped at the entrance of the most high–end shopping mall in New York.

After they got out of the car, Joyce held Elaina's arm and said, "Dr. Gainsford, let's go for dinner first, okay?"

"Okay." Elaina nodded and then said, "You can call me 'Elaina' when we are outside."

Joyce immediately covered her mouth and was a little overjoyed. "You finally tell me your first name. Does it mean that we are friends now?"
