Chapter 91

As the two of them chatted, Joyce, who was at the side, didn't know what to say. However, she wasn't angry and silently listened.

Not long after, the salesman retrieved the thing that Corbin wanted and handed it to Elaina.

"This is an ancient painting that has just arrived. Mr. Halton likes this kind of style most," Corbin said with a smile.

Elaina nodded. As far as she knew, Nitzan liked paintings the most.

In the past, when Elaina occasionally went to the Halton's house for dinner, she would come to this gallery to buy some things and bring them over. Nitzan was very happy every time.

Elaina handed the painting to Joyce and said to her, "Give this to him. He will like it."

"Okay." Joyce had no doubts about Elaina's decision.

"How much?" Joyce asked subconsciously.

Corbin looked at her with a smile and joked, "I never talk about money. The price depends on wthe buyer is."

"Ah? What do you mean?" Joyce was confused.
