

Waking up

I woke up slowly, but painfully. My back hurt like a bitch! I looked around the cell I was in, and saw two cells similar to mine, one with a boy speeding around at inhuman speeds, and the other had a girl moving blocks with her mind. I wondered how they became this way. Then a man walked in.

"Hello, my name is Baron Strucker. I am here to tell he why you are here and what you will be able to do. First, you are here because I've been watching you since you were a child. You were special, so I decided to make you more special. I experimented on you with the scepter Loki came to New York with last year. I stole it from the Avengers and with my scientists we have created you. You and the other two are beyond human. You are exceptional. As for what you can do, we'll figure that out. Farewell for now, dear child." a

And with that he le .

Continue reading next part □