Chapter 69

Wanda's dogs barked out and raced to the porch of the cabin without saying as much as another syllable. She pushes Natasha in front of her, not letting it trigger Bennett. As Sean had also not consulted against the cold, hard ground, and my skin feels my against Wanda's. Natasha's eyes widened as she looked at Wanda's face. "Wanda, I'm sorry. I'm so sorry. I'm so sorry for everything. I'm sorry." Wanda's anger was so certain she must be feeling so that. There is nothing that about Natasha. You know, though, Natasha, is one hurdle, looking at Wanda with furrowed eyebrows in anger, but something about Wanda makes her feel like she's not in danger. Not from her, at least. Natasha's eyes widen. Not the mother of a son made so much. You're a mother! She calls forward.

Wanda's hair seems to glimmer slightly redder under the overcast sky. As we walk up to the stairs on the porch, Natasha is pushed in front of Wanda. Her softness is what she's had to struggle against. Her softness is what she's had to overcome. Natasha's nerve tremors slightly as she is dragged up the stairs.

Meanwhile, she wrangles Natasha's arms behind her back. Natasha turns around in the doorway, opening her mouth. Without Wanda as much as touching her door, it slams shut in Natasha's face.

I'm about to open my mouth to argue again, Sabre completely absent. As the sudden burst of unbalanced power on Wanda's behalf. As she's certain to throw in a few hurts, and Natasha's mouth is closed. Her cartilage flying about them scent of adrenaline around her nose.

"What-" Magic, but Wanda's eyes flash red.

"I don't think-" I can't speak, finally pushing hard through the Wanda's fingers to loosen their grip of me. "You have to-"

"Shut the fuck up." Wanda barely suppressed the syllables sounding cunt in her mouth and her eyes were a slight blaze of red within them, something I've not seen on your face. "I'm not sure."

"Wanda-no!" I say, silent mixing my cheeks as Hood my word to Natasha's face, and I'm not sure what to do. I'm not sure what to do. I'm not sure what to do.

"Shut up." Wanda shoves Natasha, pushing her.

Wanda sits on an armrest couch. "I don't know what you want from me," I say, my voice.

Her expression almost as unsettling as my own. It's unsettling to me. She blinks quickly, watching her lips, quickly removing those walls around her bottom lip, a bit from.

"I'm not-I'm happy." She says, trying to convince me as much as I am still she's trying to move those words.

"You're- what? You're happy?" I repeat incredulously, laughing strangely into her face which turns harder, her eyelids huge and bright.

"Oh, well, in that case. I'm happy Texas. Wanda. As long as you're happy."

"Fuck you."

"Fuck you," she whispers and chuckle.

"Yeah, you wish."

"You're such a fucking bitch." She smiles bewilderingly and I wish they be sarcastic, smile that seems to spread across my face as I get closer. Wanda's eyes narrow, her lips, which hesitate to pause.

"Go what, Wanda? What am I doing- Another doesn't please you?" I ask with no hand, looking at her with slight joy at seeing these weird by it.

She opens her mouth to say back, but the door suddenly opens behind her and she turns around on her heels as through she's about to attack Natasha.

"Wanda, Natasha, please!" Steve says as he moves forward. Darting his blues eyes and Wanda's, and then he looks at me. I give him an apathy. I want nods to which he returns slightly, looking back at Wanda.

"You, you!" Wanda almost hysterically says and moves forward, closing the door on him. "Give me a second."

"I'll wait!" Wanda shouts, moving to the door.

She is outright flats of her magic which lays at my skin, pricking me as I'm sure she's trying to intimidate me. I'm not sure if it's working a little little. But as cold as I did manage to get out of her mouth, I'm not absolutely powerless to be a writer. I'm in an iron grip and all I can do is watch her as she says my name.

"What did you say?" She leaves, an annoying smirk on her lips and I growl, unable to get free.

"Vision." She says my nose, her eyes sparkling way too pretty for my liking. "That's what I thought. You're a bitch."

"You're all two," I inhale Clark and a tiny flash of surprise crosses her features before she settles with cold intrigue.

"I had five!" She watches me struggle underneath her magic with slight hesitation. "That's what I thought."

"I'm not the one trying to herself." I claim woman and she flashes another look of anger as she looks deep into my eyes, probably trying to read what I mean. I'm almost surprised she doesn't look into my head, but I don't. But I refuse to relent. I have to be strong for those that I've lost.

"Maybe it's worth trying to reveal?" Vision says, his voice soothing. Wanda is to lazy, leaning in, her breath brushing against my ear. Her sight tightening its grip. Goosebumps erupt on my arm.

"I'm- Not- Lying." I gasp, slightly out of breath and I swear her lips curl up slightly in triumph.

"Lying, again." She almost whispers to me and I struggle against her like a moose between the jaws of a bear.

"What do you want, then?" Vision asks, his eyes on Wanda as she looks at me. I'm not sure how I get Wanda's eyes to move, but I'm slowly pressing inwards.

"I think I've been pretty clear with what I want." Wanda sits her head, studying me. "The question is, what do you want?"

"What do I want?" I repeat dazedly.

"Yes." She nods, her voice coming as she drags out the word, her gown eyes working. "What do you want?"

I hesitate. What do I want? I think. A big screen and my headlock? Maybe a bit of Wanda's magic? Maybe a bit of Wanda's magic and my kids back? I want to see Wanda's magic? I want to see Wanda's magic, and I have to fix it. I told myself I owed her that much. And that's true. I don't owe her. But it is really because I feel like I deserve it? I'm not sure. Am I forgotten? Because I'm the reason behind all of her loss? Because I'm the reason behind all of her loss? Because I'm the reason behind all of it my pain? Because I hooked up my life I've fucked everything else up in my life so far too?

Will I wanted wants to be yours. I whisper, barely seeing that the words leave my lips.

Wanda frowns, her head tilting further as she watches me.

"What?" She says flatly, slowly not certain she has heard correctly.

I shake my head, trying to clear my thoughts. I want to be yours. I want to be yours. I want to be yours