Chapter 12 Get What She Deserves

Laila turned to Drake and said, "Dad, when I entered the door, I saw a lot of surveillance cameras at home. You can check the surveillance footage and find out who went in and out of the manor at night. You can also send someone to a nearby place where snakes are sold to ask if anyone has sold a poisonous snake."

"You are right." Drake ordered the butler, "Do it now! In addition, check all the rooms in the manor and see if there are any more poisonous snakes."

Although it was three in the morning, Drake was not sleepy at all, for he was afraid that a poisonous snake would suddenly appear out of nowhere.

Not long after, the servant in charge of checking the surveillance footage came over and reported, "Mr. Harmon, we found that only Laura left the manor at 11. Other than her, there was no one else."

"Laura?" Drake narrowed his eyes. "Bring her to me immediately!"

Soon Laura was forced to come over.

Laura shouted as soon as she saw Drake, "Mr. Harmon, I'm innocent! I went out because my good-for-nothing son got into trouble again. It has nothing to do with the poisonous snake. You can't doubt me! I have always been loyal to the Harmon family!"

Drake didn't listen to Laura at all. He waved his hand and ordered, "Tie her up!"

The servants immediately got up and tied up Laura,

Drake walked around the hall and found a belt left by some guest.

He handed the belt to a servant and said, "Beat her!"

The servant was a little hesitant, but in the end, he followed the order.

The servant's hand rose and fell. And Laura's flesh immediately split open. She rolled on the ground, screaming in pain.

Laila looked at this indifferently from the side.

It seemed that this old bastard had sneakily gone to Laila's balcony and put the cobra in .

Laura had to pay the price for her actions, so Laila would not go soft-hearted.

When the servant hit the tenth time, Laura could no longer even cry out, her body covered in a cold sweat.

Even so, she didn't admit the crime

After all this was murder!

The servant who was in charge of beating could not help but say, "Mr. Harmon, it's enough. She is old. If we continue to hit her, she will die!"

Drake didn't want to kill someone before the matter was clear.

Just as he was about to give the order to stop beating, the servant who went out to inquire returned.

"Mr. Harmon, I asked around in the southern market. Someone bought a poisonous snake from a guy in the middle of the night."

Laura on the ground softened. Laila noticed it keenly and immediately asked, "Did Laura buy it?"

The servant shook her head. "I didn't ask it brought him over after confirming that the snake was bought from him."

Drake nodded, "Very good. Bring him in!"

"Yes, Mr. Harmon."

Soon, a snake dealer walked in with caution.

Drake asked someone to bring the snake's head and body to the hall and asked the snake dealer, "Did you sell this snake?"

"Yes, I did. The scales of its tail were accidentally removed when I was trading it. This is the snake, sir." The snake dealer nodded after only a glance at the snake.

Drake sneered. He walked over and picked up Laura, who did not dare to look up. He carried her up in front of the snake dealer and asked, "Did this old woman buy it?"

The snake dealer didn't know what had happened. But he didn't dare to lie in such a situation. He glanced at Laura and nodded, "It was her... She said that she wanted to use a poisonous snake in the wine, so I recommended to her the most poisonous southern snake I had."

Everything was out in the open.

"Now, what else do you have to say?" Drake threw Laura away and asked coldly

Laura was still sitting on the ground, her whole body trembling. But she still did not say a word.

Laila said to her, "You don't need to lie anymore. Before the police come, tell us why you wanted to kill Erin! She grew up under your care. How can you do this? Don't you think you are too vicious?"

"No... I didn't. Why would I harm Ms. Harmon? In my heart, she is like a daughter to me."

"Then who do you want to harm? Do you want to harm Dad?" Laila pressed on step by step. Afraid of Laura making a countercharge, she continued, "Who ordered you to do this? You did this just to frame me, right? Later, you would say that I was behind this, right?"

Laura was seen through. The words stuck in her mouth

She wanted to say that Laila was the one who ordered her to do it. But Laila had said so in advance. It would seem too deliberate if she accused Laila again..

Just as Laura was hesitating, Laila said directly. "Dad, call the police. She is so vicious. She'd spend the rest of her life in prison!"

"No! No! My two sons still need me.." Laura immediately begged for mercy.

Laila said lightly, "Then tell us the truth. If you do, maybe Dad will let you go for the sake of your labor in the Harmon family..."

Laura wavered.

If she came clean, there was still a possibility that she would not be thrown in prison. But if she didn't, she could go to prison for Erin.

She did not intend to pay this price for Erin and her mother.

"I'll ... I'll tell you everything..." Laura cried and said, "Ms. Harmon ordered me to do this! She asked me to buy a snake and put it in Ms. Stephenson's ropin. I didn't know how the snake ended up in Ms. Harmon's room..." Laila immediately said, "My room is very close to Erin's. That snake might have crawled into Erin's room along the balcony. I didn't expect Erin to hate me so much. She was very good to me..."

Laila's eyes were full of innocence. And she looked like she was in disbelief as if she had suffered a painful blow.

"Bastard, both of them! Shame!"

Drake looked up at the sky and sighed. He took a few deep breaths before he regained his calm. He said, "Bring Mrs. Harmon down and let her see what kind of a monster she raised!"

He had spent a lot of money raising his daughter like a lady. He never thought that his daughter would do such a vicious thing!

Laila comforted him, "Dad, don't be too angry. My arrival to the family was indeed very sudden. Maybe Erin couldn't accept this right now. I believe she will accept me eventually..."

"You are still speaking up for her? You're too kind! You might be harmed because of this!"

Laila shook her head. "Everyone makes mistakes. Erin is still young She'll grow up..."

Rosemary was brought down.

After hearing Laura talk about what had happened, Rosemary went blue and purple on her face And there was still some hatred in her eyes. She couldn't believe this

She had raised a stupid daughter!

She had warned Erin many times that now was not the time to make a move. She did not expect that Erin would not listen and even make such a big move behind her back!

"I'm sorry, Drake. It's all because I didn't raise our daughter well. When she comes back, I will punish her! Laila, I'm sorry I have wronged you. Take it easy on Erin. I will make her change her attitude towards you."

When Drake saw that Rosemary took the initiative to apologize to Laila, his anger towards Rosemary lessened a bit.

"That's it! This matter ends here. And keep it in the family! But Laura can't stay in our home any longer! Come! Take her to the farm in the countryside. Don't let her contact anyone!"

"Yes!"

Laura was taken away.

Soon, the hospital called.

"Mr. Harnion, Ms. Harmon is awake. She doesn't want to stay in the hospital. She wants to be discharged immediately."

"She can do whatever she likes!" Drake's tone was very bad.

Erin was so vicious. If she could harm Lalla now, someday she could harm him!

Drake didn't know how he raised such a daughter!

In the hospital.

Erin finished the discharge procedures. She could not wait to return to the Harmon's home.

She wanted to tell her father that Laila had put the snake in her room!

Laila wanted to take her life!
