The First Heir – Chapter 1578

“Why are you looking for rue?” Philip asked solemnly.

Vivian took off her wide sunglasses and said directly, “Madam told me to tell you that Martin and Bernard are Madam’s people. She hopes you won’t make things too difficult for them. Moreover, from today onward, the two of them will have no connection to Beacon Group.”

After saying that, Vivian turned around and wanted to leave.

Philip raised his eyebrows and made a sudden movement to grab Vivian’s arm with one hand.

Vivian frowned, turned around, and raised her leg high to kick Philip’s neck!

Philip stepped sideways and dodged the kick.

“Young Master Clarke, please watch yourself!” Vivian coldly said while turning back around, swaying her hips as she got into the car and left.

Philip chuckled and said, “How extraordinary. I haven’t seen her so powerful before. I didn’t expect that she would improve so quickly after not seeing her for so long.”

Theo had been standing behind Philip and was shocked when he saw Philip suddenly make a move.

“Mr. Clarke, what do you mean by that?” Theo asked in confusion.

Philip waved his hand and said, “Nothing, it was just a test.”

After that, Philip seemed to be talking to the air. “How confident are you to fight her?”

At this time, a woman in black body-hugging clothes slowly walked out from behind the crowd. She also had a glamorous figure, shoulder length hair, and walked like a model on a runway. The sight of her made people steal many glances at her.

“Young Master, I can take down such people in three moves,” 17 said with a condescending look in her eyes.

She was a member of the Shadow Squadron and would not put a personal guard like Vivian Wallis in her eyes at all.

Too inferior!

Philip smiled and said, “You’ve learned bad things from them. I don’t think she’s that simple. She’s hiding her strength.”

Hearing this, 17’s eyebrows wrinkled as she muttered, “Then I’ll kill her now!”

After saying that, she was about to run out.

Fortunately, Philip stopped her and said, "Don't cause any trouble. Accompany me to Cirrus Villa first. I want to see what Giada is up to."

After saying that, Philip personally drove the car and took 17 along with him, leaving First Palace.

Soon, they arrived at the entrance of Cirrus Villa. However, the door was tightly closed this time.

17 sneered, "Young Master, it seems that Giada doesn't want to meet you."

Sitting in the driver's seat, Philip smiled. He flicked the scarlet cigarette butt in his hand and slammed on the gas pedal!

Bang!

The car shot out and violently crashed through the electronic gate. With a beautiful tailspin, the car stopped firmly in the villa.

Pitter-patter!

At this time, team after team of guards rushed out from inside the villa. With their hands on their waists, they surrounded them and sternly shouted, "Get down from the car! Right now!"

Philip and 17 got out of the car and leaned on the doors leisurely. It felt like they were in a scene from Grand Theft Auto.

17 looked at Philip, put her hands in her pockets, and shrugged.

Philip smiled as he stepped forward and said sternly, "Tell Giada to come out here and see me."
