

The First Heir Chapter 1623

Hearing this, everyone was stunned!

Who was this guy?

How could he say such things?

“What did you say? You want to sign it? Who do you think you are! We haven’t settled the score with you for what happened just now and you dare to come forward?! You’re looking for death!”

Herb was annoyed at the moment. He pointed angrily at Philip and roared.

Several board members at his side also scowled and scolded, “Who is this kid? Why is he here?”

“Miss Summer, you need to explain to us why you allowed an irrelevant person to enter this place. Don’t you know our company’s regulations?”

“Director Corby, I think he must be Agnes’ relative. She wants to build her power in the company. We absolutely can’t let this go!”

Mike nodded, glanced at Philip sharply, and said solemnly, “Young man, this is not something you can get involved in. I advise you to leave as soon as possible, lest you get burned in the crossfire.”

Mike utterly looked down on Philip. Why did Agnes find such a person to groom?

She had really underestimated their faction.

However...

The next scene made everyone gasp aloud as they fell into shock for a long time!

Agnes turned around, respectfully bent down to Philip, and said, "Yes, Chairman Clarke."

After saying that, she took out another stack of documents and respectfully handed it to Philip.

At this moment, everyone was dumbfounded!

Chairman... Clarke? What did she mean?!

Was this guy in front of them the person who founded Gopher Delivery Services, that Chairman Clarke?

Panic!

Complete panic!

All of them joined Gopher Delivery Services only after investing and had never met Philip before.

Moreover, there was very little discussion about Philip in the company because Agnes had explained long ago that he preferred to keep a low profile. He did not like people talking about him behind his back.

Mike, Herb, and the others remained stunned for a few minutes before reacting. They looked at Philip doubtfully and asked, "Are you Chairman Philip Clarke?"

Philip took the documents handed to him by Agnes in one hand and a pen in the other. With a faint smile, he said, "As true as it can be. It's nice meeting all of you."

Hiss!

Everyone's hearts trembled. It was over now!

This ordinary-looking guy was actually Chairman Philip Clarke!

In that case, were their words earlier their confessions to their crimes?

Seeing that Philip was going to sign, Mike quickly pounced over and immediately apologized with a respectful bow of his head. "Chairman Clarke, it's all a misunderstanding. You mustn't sign these documents."

Behind him, Herb's face was full of shock at this moment.

He never thought that the loser he had been targeting was actually the chairman of this company!

Everything was over for him now! He had played himself to death!

After thinking about it, he knelt in front of Philip with a thud and bowed to him, saying, "Chairman Clarke, I was blind and ignorant. Please have mercy on me. I was wrong!"

While saying that, he also kept slapping himself!

His voice could be heard from the conference room to the office area outside, attracting the attention of a group of employees.

The remaining members of the board of directors also panicked at this moment. They hurriedly bowed while saying, "Chairman Clarke, you've misunderstood. We didn't mean that."

"Haha, I didn't expect you to be Chairman Clarke. Seeing you today, you certainly live up to your reputation."

"Chairman Clarke, you've really misunderstood us. We were also doing it for the sake of the company."

Philip smiled indifferently as his eyes fell on them. The pen in his hand stopped for a moment and he asked, "Misunderstanding?"
