The First Heir – Chapter 1657

Upon hearing this, Liam got agitated. He turned around, glared at Philip angrily, and yelled, “Philip Clarke, no one will treat you as a mute if you don’t speak! Besides, this is my Johnston family’s business. It’s no place for you to intervene! Or are you seeking justice for your wife? Hehe, why don’t you take a good look at yourself and Wynn? Do you think Director Luther is an ignorant person like you? He’ll definitely agree to cooperate with my dad’s company. At that time, I’ll personally kick you and Wynn, that little tramp, out of the Johnston family! I’ll make sure to take over Beacon!”

After scolding Philip, Liam felt very relieved!

He had finally vented his frustration. In the past few days, he had heard his dad praising Philip up to the skies!

What did it matter if Philip had some money and followers? By the looks of him now, he was still nothing more than a loser!

A leopard could never change its spots!

He had money and people?

Ridiculous!

It must be because of Wynn that he got acquainted with some people on the streets.

There was nothing to fear!

He turned back and said to Hoyt with a smile on his face, “Director Luther, why don’t we sign the cooperation agreement right now? I have the contract all ready.”

After saying that, he took out the contract, lifted the pen, and was about to sign his name.

Suddenly, a big hand directly pressed on the contract and pushed it back. A voice was heard saying coldly, “Manager Johnston, I think I need to carefully examine the strength of your company. After all, I only recognize Beacon Group in Riverdale.”

After saying that, Hoyt pushed the contract back to Liam.

Liam froze in place, his expression changing again and again. He quickly said, “Director Luther, the cooperation with Martin Pharmaceutical this time is definitely a great opportunity for Uppercreek. Martin Pharmaceutical is backed by big figures. We have strong funds, extraordinary strength, and many talents. Beacon no longer has anything to their name. They may seem like a golden apple but it’s rotten on the inside. Besides, Beacon’s chairwoman, Wynn Johnston, is being suspected of embezzling the company’s funds. I...”

Before Liam finished speaking, Hoyt interrupted him and said, “Manager Johnston, that’s enough. I think the cooperation between the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce and Martin Pharmaceutical should be placed on the back burner for the time being. Manager Johnston, I have to remind you that Martin Pharmaceutical is not the only one that wants to cooperate with the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce. Moreover, you’re not the best choice. I still prefer Beacon Group.”

After saying this, Hoyt said coldly, "Send the guest out."

Thump!

Liam panicked, his heart jumping with fear. He thought that Hoyt Luther would readily agree, but unexpectedly, the other party was adamant on Beacon and Wynn, that little tramp!

Damn it!

Could it be that Wynn was having an affair with Hoyt?

Was Philip here to reach some kind of private agreement for Wynn?

Yes, of course! That must be it! Damn Wynn and Philip!

Liam only felt his scalp tingling and his chest becoming stuffy. Hoyt's last sentence was to warn him that Martin Pharmaceutical was not the only option for the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce.

What should he do?

If he failed to get this cooperation, his father would not spare him!

Liam was very anxious. If Beacon were to get the cooperation with the Uppercreek Chamber of Commerce, there would be no hope for Martin Pharmaceutical!

Philip got up at this moment and left the office.

It was meaningless for Liam to remain here any longer, so he laughed awkwardly at Hoyt before leaving as well.
