

The First Heir novel Chapter 1702

Connor nodded and said, “Hehe, Roger Clarke... Good for him. Back then when he joined forces with the Nonagon to suppress the branch family and successfully seized power, allowing him to sit in the position as head of the Clarke family, I already knew that this guy was different from ordinary people. The way he thinks is different from how we think. I’ve never been able to see through him.”

Hearing this, Levi asked, “Grandpa, is there a connection between the Nonagon and Roger?”

Connor raised his eyebrows, seeming to recall a lot of past events at once. He said, “Roger Clarke was a prodigy and core personnel of the Nonagon at that time. He kept many secrets that we didn’t know about. You must remember that he’s the only person in this world who successfully entered four doors.”

“What?!”

Allen was shocked, his face full of astonishment! Entering one door already required tremendous luck and talent that surpassed normal people’s. To be able to enter all four doors, what kind of monster would he have to be?!

Unbelievable!

Allen could hardly comprehend that such a person actually existed!

That was the door they were talking about!

Levi was still calm. After all, he did not know much about the door and just heard that it was a peculiar place. Anyone who entered the door would be known as a disciple. After they came out, they would be a behemoth.

Connor narrowed his eyes and said, "Roger is by no means an easy opponent. What he knows is beyond our dreams. But it's a pity that such a person will also get old and exhausted. No matter how great he was, that was in the past. Now, he's just an old man like me. You don't need to worry."

After saying this, Connor's eyes fell on Levi and he said, "Levi, you're my favorite grandson and the hope of the entire branch family. As long as you're sent to the door of the Clarke family, the entire Clarke family will belong to you and the branch family. You must not disappoint me and fail to live up to everything that I and your father have prepared for you over the years. In the branch family, you're the most talented and most qualified to enter the door. We're only missing the key. But don't worry, your father and I will bring you this key."

Upon hearing this, Levi quickly bowed and said respectfully, "Grandpa, I definitely won't let you down or disappoint the branch family."

Connor nodded and looked at Levi dotingly.

Allen, who was on the side, asked at this time, "Connor, I don't understand. Since the main family owns that door, why not let Philip enter?"

Connor smiled and said with a faint chill in his eyes, "That door of the Clarke family is different from the other three doors. That door belongs only to the Clarke family and outsiders aren't allowed to enter. Moreover, it requires certain opportunities and conditions to open this door."

"What conditions?" Levi asked.

Connor shook his head and said, "It opens once every 25 years and requires the blood of the next of kin of the chosen person who's entering the door."

"The blood of the next of kin?" Levi was confused. He looked at Allen and then Connor before asking, "What blood of the next of kin?"

Connor said, "It's simple. If Philip wants to enter the door, he must use the blood of his children or siblings as a medium to open the door. Furthermore, not just the blood of any next of kin can open it. That door will choose the most qualified next of kin."

"What will happen to the person who donated the blood?" Levi asked.

Connor's face darkened as a menacing sneer appeared at the corner of his mouth. "They'll die."
