The First Heir – Chapter 1718

The murderous aura that radiated from Venom's body filled the entire hall!

Everyone could not help but tremble all over, their legs and knees going weak!

Was this the strength of the people from the Nonagon?

How terrifying!

Without doing anything, just Venom's intensity and words alone intimidated people!

Everyone's eyes fell on Philip at this moment. They wanted to see how this young man would solve the current dilemma. At the same time, they also looked forward to Venom making a move and outright killing this person chosen by the Larson family!

That way, their families and the forces behind them would have one less competitor! Even the other three enforcers were staring at Philip with searing eyes, waiting for his reply.

The smile on Connie's face was the broadest. She was very interested in the man in front of her.

The middle-aged man in his 40s opened his eyes slightly and took a look before closing his eyes again. It was as if the scene in front of him was not enough to cause any ripples in his heart.

In the face of Venom's killing intent, a kid like this should instantly go down on his knees and start begging for mercy.

He was not the only one who thought this way but everyone else as well.

Looking at this scene, Sheryl quickly acted as the middle person. She dragged Philip behind her and said to Venom apologetically, "Enforcer Paine, this young and ignorant man has offended you. I hope that you can be lenient with him. The Larson family will certainly keep this favor in mind."

However, Venom paid no heed to Sheryl's words at all. In a cold tone, he said murderously, "Miss Larson, although your Larson family has a relationship with the Nonagon and I can't take action against you on that ground, I'm afraid you can't stop me."

To everyone's surprise, Philip, who was at the center of the storm, was looking at Venom calmly at this moment. He pulled Sheryl behind him, looked at the other party boldly, and said, "What if my answer is yes?"

Hiss!

Everyone gasped!

This guy really did not know what was good for him!

Everyone sneered and no longer paid any attention to Philip. After all, this guy was already doomed to die at Venom's hand.

Even Edgar Griffith signaled the bodyguards at the entrance to lock the door and get ready to clean up the scene. This ignorant brat actually dared to contradict the enforcer of the Nonagon like this.

He dared to play such a reckless game against Venom. It was simply an absurd act that had put him on the edge of death!

Connie also shook her head and could not help being disappointed in Philip.

This kid was too cocky.

Anyhow, it was good to let Venom teach him a lesson so that he could understand the gap between the Nonagon and the world. It would also let him have a new understanding of the structure of this world.

“Venom, don’t kill. We’re in the outside world, after all. We must abide by the agreement. Otherwise, it’ll be a nuisance if word gets out,” Connie said coldly at this moment, already getting up and preparing to leave.

She had an understanding of Venom’s methods. Ever since he returned from that place, he had changed into a bloodthirsty and vicious person.

She did not wish to watch the next scene.

The corners of Venom’s mouth curved up grimly and his eyes were full of menacing ferocity. The dagger in his hand abruptly stopped spinning. He said, “Boy, don’t worry. Since Connie Olsen has pleaded on your behalf, you won’t have to die. However, the rest of your life will be spent in endless pain. This is the price of your disrespect to the Nonagon!”
