

The First Heir – Chapter 1814

The Dunley family was the most elite family in Charbury. They were even ranked at the top in the country!

Even the strength of some hidden affluent families might not be able to compare to the Dunley family. To be exact, the Dunley family was ranked among the eight major families in the country!

Moreover, the strength of the Dunley family was already on a par with the Wallis family of Golden City. A year ago, the Wallis family of Golden City was recognized as the number one family in the country.

Of course, these so-called rankings did not include the Clarke family of Arcadia Island.

After all, the Clarke family of Arcadia Island was an existence not generally known by ordinary people. Naturally, the power of the Clarke family was also not known to others.

The public knew about the Wallis and Denver families of Golden City, the Dunley family of Charbury, the Harrison family of Glenford, the Joo, Williams, and Jackman families of the capital city, and the Larson family of Fernvale. However, no one knew about the Clarke family of Arcadia Island.

These were the eight largest families in the country and were currently recognized as the top eight families!

No one dared to mess with them. No one dared to steal the limelight from them!

Even some hidden families would treat these families with courtesy and awe. Of course, such hidden families had their own power and background. They were well capable of turning the tide.

For example, the Garcia family of the capital city was not in the ranking but they had impressive strength and status. They were one of the four hidden families in the capital city.

Now, this small Clarke family of Riversouth actually dared to say such big words. They were simply looking for death!

“Outrageous! Is this how you should be talking to Mr. Dunley? I order you to apologize to Mr. Dunley immediately! Otherwise, be prepared for the consequences!”

An assistant next to Winston quickly stepped forward and pointed at Philip’s nose as he chastised angrily.

This was a good opportunity to stand out. If he could capture Winston’s attention, he would have more chances to rise to the top in the future.

However, Philip tilted his head blandly. His eyes stared coldly and resolutely at the assistant who scolded him. The next second, a meaningful smile appeared on his mouth as he said, “I’m talking to Mr. Dunley. Is it your turn to interrupt?”

The assistant was annoyed by Philip’s arrogant attitude and immediately yelled angrily, “Who the hell do you think you are? How dare you talk to Mr. Dunley? You’re in the Dunley Group building...”

However, before he finished his words, there was a loud sound. Philip had swung his hand and slapped the assistant violently across the face. The other party staggered from that slap. Several posterior molars in his mouth were knocked out!

Ouch!

With a scream, the assistant covered his bloodied mouth. He stared at Philip with disbelief and anger while roaring, “How dare you hit me? Mr. Dunley, this kid is simply too arrogant I’ll immediately get the security guards to throw him out!”

After saying that, he was about to call for the security guards.

However, Winston glared at him angrily and shouted, “Enough! Get out!”

Hearing that, the assistant shuddered. He dared not say anything else and silently retreated to the side.

After that, Winston looked at Philip intently. With an indifferent smile at the corner of his mouth, he said, “Young man, aren’t you being too disrespectful by hitting my people in the Dunley Group building? Or do you see the Dunley family as small fries?”

This sentence revealed Winston’s anger!

This young man’s cockiness was simply too audacious!

Philip chuckled and said, “Your subordinate was too impolite, so I merely taught him a lesson. It’s not too much, right?”

Winston’s face darkened, and he could not find a reason to refute. However, as a strong headed person, he immediately said angrily, “Even if he wasn’t polite, he’s still one of my people. I should be the one to punish him, not an outsider like you!”

“Oh? Since I’ve already done it, what are you going to do about it?”

Philip shrugged and looked at Winston calmly.
