Chapter 191

After returning to the apartment, Judith asked Lucas to take a bath. She prepared clean and comfortable clothes for her son.

Then she hurriedly went out to the barbecue. She checked the time and thought it would be in time. She checked the location. It was not far from her place. It would take about twenty-five minutes for her to walk over. She walked along the river. It would be faster than taking a taxi.

Afraid that her son would be hungry, she walked very quickly. As she walked, she checked the position. She would arrive after crossing the bridge. She smiled and glanced at the bridge not far away, which was among the weeping willows. The sky gradually darkened, and the neon lights on both sides of the street kept flashing. The lights of cars passing by were dazzling. Judith looked at the bustling scene and smiled. She walked up to the bridge and took a look at the night scene. The willow tree had a shining colored light hanging on it, constantly changing colors as the lights flickered. Here, this time, she had truly returned. She had originally come for her dreams, but contrary to her wishes, she now came for hatred. She sighed softly. Just as she was about to look away, she suddenly saw a thin girl walking down the stone steps towards the river. Her expression seemed a little off. Lights flashed across her face, and she looked desperate, painful, and sad. "This feeling..." Judith suddenly felt an indescribable and familiar emotion. Judith suddenly felt that the girl looked familiar. She stood at the end of the bridge and stared at the girl... She finally remembered that the girl was Jason's girlfriend and was pregnant. Last time, she seemed to hear them call her Sarah. She was almost to the river. The despair in her eyes was so familiar. Judith felt as if her heart had been struck. She had once been so desperate. "Don't go." She shouted.

She rushed out in reverse and went down the bridge. Sarah had not stopped. She went down the stairs in a trance Judith became serious and nervous. She quickly ran to the river. Judith knew that Sarah was going to commit suicide! There were stone steps by the river. She had to be careful when she ran, or she would fall. Sarah had already stepped into the river with her child in her belly. “Sarah, don’t...” Judith shouted and quickened her pace, but the whistling of the speeding car covered her voice. Sarah did not respond at all. Judith’s heart was in her mouth. She didn’t care whether she would fall or not. She rushed over as fast as she could. “Sarah, stop...” However, Sarah, who was immersed in despair and grief, could not hear Judith’s voice. Sarah didn’t respond. The river had already reached her waist. This river was several feet deep. If she went on, she wouldn’t survive. “Sarah, think about the child in your belly. He is innocent. As a mother, are you going to take his life without his consent? “Sarah, stop!” Judith shouted as she ran.

The river wind blew her curly hair as she ran with an anxious look on her beautiful face. She ran faster and faster.

Chapter 192

Finally, when Sarah heard the word child, she had a slight reaction. She turned around and saw a thin figure running towards her desperately. Unfortunately, she did not know her. She didn’t want to live anymore. Jason had mercilessly abandoned her and the child. Her heart ached even more when she thought of the handsome man. She walked into the river with an indifferent expression. Then, she lost her balance and instantly leaned forward. She did not struggle, and the surrounding waves rippled slightly She slowly sank into the water. “Sarah...”

Judith shouted and jumped into the river regardless of her safety. Water splashed everywhere. The cool river water made her especially sober.

The sky had already turned completely dark. The flickering lights around them did not illuminate the river. Judith could only search for Sarah from where she had fallen. She was very anxious, but she was still calm. She looked for Sarah by her intuition. The moment Judith jumped down, the splashing water attracted the attention of the people around. There were many people standing by the river, but no one knew what had happened. It was night, and no one dared to jump down. Judith emerged from the water to take a breath. After a moment, she took a deep breath and plunged into the river again. "Oh my god..." "There's really someone in the water!" "Help! Someone fell into the water!" A few older women shouted towards the river. However, they looked at each other and then looked away. No one had the intention of jumping down to save people. Some of the people standing by the river were just watching the show, while others were anxious and worried. Finally, Judith touched Sarah. She was delighted and quickly dragged Sarah ashore. She was thin and Sarah was heavier than her. She felt a little strained, especially when she reached the shallow area. She used all her strength to drag Sarah out of the water. She fell several times, and there was severe pain in her knee. She did not pay attention to it and only wanted to save Sarah. She wasn't good at swimming, so she was really exhausted, short of breath. Judith caught up with her breath. When she turned around, she saw many people standing by the river. She shouted, "Call the ambulance!" "Alright, alright. Don't worry. I'll call now." A middle-aged woman in red responded loudly to her. Judith was relieved. According to the knowledge she had learned, she gave Sarah first aid. She opened Sarah's mouth slightly. Seeing that there was nothing in her mouth and that she was still breathing, Judith quickly pressed her chest. Sarah had not been in the water for a long time. After a few times, Sarah spat out a few mouthfuls of water and woke up. Sarah coughed in pain. "Sarah, how do you feel?" Judith looked at her with wild joy. Sarah was fine, and she hoped that her baby would be fine. Sarah's chest heaved violently as she gasped for breath. She narrowed her eyes and looked at Judith, who was in a sorry state and was covered in mud, But Judith's beautiful eyes were especially bright. There seemed to be a fire of hope in her eyes. She asked weakly, "Why did you save me?" When Judith heard this, she became serious and cold, "I can't save a person who is determined to die, but I can't leave her to die."

Love At First Night Chapter 193

Chapter 193

Hearing Judith's cold words, Sarah trembled violently. She couldn't tell what emotions were in her heart. They just flashed so fast that she couldn't grasp one. However, strong sadness spread throughout her whole body. Sarah suddenly burst into tears. Her grievances from the past few days were released in an instant, like a dam breaking. Judith knelt in the water, watching Sarah cry and vent her emotions. "Perhaps after crying, Sarah will feel much better," Judith thought. Frank and Gary had just finished their meal and went home on this way Many people heard that there was someone committing suicide. They gathered there and caused a traffic jam. The cars in front didn't move, so Gary could only stop his car and move forward slowly. Seeing this, Frank, who was originally in a bad mood, became even more agitated. While Sarah was crying, the ambulance arrived. Several medical staff carried Sarah away on a stretcher. However, Sarah was so sad that she held Judith's hand tightly. She seemed to have regarded Judith as her savior, and once she let go of Judith, she would fall into a bottomless abyss. Judith could only get in the ambulance to accompany Sarah. The bridge was narrow for the ambulance to pass, so they had to cross the bridge before getting in. Judith was smelly. The mud in the river wrapped her and changed the color of her skin. The siren of the ambulance raised a tense atmosphere.

The people around were discussing. They got out of the way. Judith knew the relationship between Sarah and Jason. She pulled up the quilt covering Sarah and did not let anyone take a picture of Sarah. The Chaney family was well-known in Mayfield. If Sarah's suicide tonight was exposed by someone with ulterior motives, it would be even more difficult for Sarah and Jason to be together in the future. At this time, Frank leaned against the chair and rested with his eyes closed. Even though his eyes were closed, he still looked distant. Gary looked around in boredom. The ambulance was not far from him and it was right next to his car. The car in front did not move. Suddenly, Gary saw a thin and weak figure which looked a little familiar at first glance. When he looked at it carefully, he found it was actually Judith. "Oh... Isn't that Ms. White? Did her friend commit suicide by jumping into the river? "Why did she get in the ambulance with mud all over her body?" Gary said to himself. Frank suddenly opened his eyes. He glanced at the ambulance that was whistling and passing them. He asked coldly, "Are you sure you are not blind? Is it really Judy?" Gary turned around and rolled his eyes at Frank. He said helplessly, "I'm not like you. At least, I saw it with my eyes open, and you saw it with your eyes closed. You are the blind one." "He roared at me! I have to serve him and I'm aggrieved enough. Can't he treat me a little better?" Gary complained in his heart.

"Then why aren't you following them?" Frank roared in a cold tone. Gary trembled as he saw a crazy lion roaring in Frank's eyes. Even though Gary felt aggrieved, he did not say anything. But the cars in front of him were still motionless, and he frowned. He pressed the horn hard. The horn seemed to have a great hatred for him and he pressed it angrily. "The cars in front are not moving. You want me to fly over?" Gary's heart was full of anger. He regretted that he had said something, "Wouldn't it be better if I pretended to see nothing?"

Chapter 194

Gary sighed in his heart. "I was the one who looked for trouble. I can only blame myself!" Frank glanced coldly at the front and saw that the cars were slowly moving. He roared, "Hurry up and follow them. Which hospital did they go to?" "I know. Aren't we following them? Also, Frank, don't yell at me all day. I'm also a person with a bad temper," Gary said. He started the car helplessly and followed the ambulance slowly. His anger suddenly rose but was suppressed by him. Hearing Frank's cold and worried voice, Gary felt angry, as well as distressed. For Gary, Patrick, and Edwin, Frank was domineering and ruthless to the point of being annoying. But only them, as friends who knew Frank's past clearly, would understand Frank's pain and feel sorry for him. Frank was cold but kind, and he valued friendship. Of course, Frank only valued the friendship with Gary, Patrick, and Edwin. Every month, Frank would have the nightmare of that night once. That nightmare was like a devil's claw and held him tightly. It would not let him go until he was dragged into the bottomless abyss. And then, Judith appeared. Gary suddenly thought of a saying, "There is always one thing to conquer another. Scorpions are afraid of roosters, and seedlings are afraid of mole crickets! It seems that Frank obtains a lifebuoy when he is in the water." The traffic jam didn't last for long. After the ambulance drove off, the road gradually became smooth. Gary was very familiar with Mayfield. He looked in the direction the ambulance had left. And then he turned the steering wheel expertly and followed it. The ambulance stopped at the entrance of the First People's Hospital of Mayfield. Judith and the medical staff pushed Sarah in. On the way, Judith had told the doctor about Sarah's pregnancy. When they arrived at the hall of the hospital, a doctor said to Judith, "Hurry up and go through the hospitalization procedures. We'll check Judith out first." "Alright, thank you." Judith looked at them and smiled gratefully. Sarah had always been clear-headed. However, after getting in the ambulance, she closed her eyes and was unwilling to say a word.

Judith watched as the doctor and Sarah got into the elevator, and then she turned back to help Sarah with the formalities. The people who passed by her all had their eyes on her. Only then did Judith have the time to look at herself. She saw that her white dress was covered in sludge, and her entire body was smelly. Even her hair was covered in smelly mud. Moreover, her forehead and knees were in pain. When she saved Sarah, she slipped twice. The first time, her knees hit the stone steps. The second time, she fell and her forehead hit the stone steps. She could not remember it clearly. At that time, she did not feel pain. But now, she could feel it. Judith touched her forehead slightly. It was so painful as if it was burning. She saw that there was blood. She frowned slightly and did not care much.

The most important thing was that her cell phone had fallen into the water when she was saving Sarah. “Damn it!”

Judith cursed in her heart. If Lucas found out that she had not returned for a long time, he would be worried. Judith looked around. She found a nurse and explained Sarah’s situation. The nurse told her the process of handling the procedures. Judith quickly completed the hospitalization procedures for Sarah, She had paid the fee and gotten a treatment card for Sarah. She was about to find Sarah on the second floor. When she looked up, she saw Frank and Gary walking in.

Chapter 195

Judith was slightly stunned. “It’s strange. I can meet them everywhere I go. Why?” “Ms. White, is it really you?” Gary looked at Judith in surprise. Judith looked at them doubtfully and asked in surprise, “Why are you here? Who is injured?” Frank saw that she was covered in mud. She was dirty and her forehead hurt. He frowned and said, “Gary, go buy a set of clothes and shoes in a nearby store.” “OK!” Gary nodded. He glanced at Judith and then turned to leave. He didn’t want to stay with Frank at all.

Judith looked at herself and knew that she was indeed in a sorry state. She had to change her clothes, so she didn’t refuse. Frank took a few steps closer to her. The tall and muscular figure of him instantly enveloped Judith. Judith could feel his faint masculine aura and his chilly aura. Judith felt a little nervous as if the blood in her body was flowing back. She lowered her head and quickly took a step back. She had heard that Frank was a clean freak, so she wanted to stay as far away from Frank as possible now. Frank was indeed a clean freak. If anyone else stood in front of him like this, he would definitely leave in disgust. However, the person in front of him was Judy, and he did not mind at all. Frank was displeased because of Judith’s retreat, but his voice was still very gentle. “Judy, you are injured. Go see the doctor first.” Although his tone was gentle, no one was allowed to reject it. Judith looked at him. His gaze and his movements were both enchanting. She shook her head slowly. “Mr. Taylor, why don’t you go back? I have to see the patient upstairs. My injury is not serious.”

“She is chasing me away again,” Frank thought. A terrifying storm seemed to be brewing in his eyes.

He was extremely patient towards Judith. That sudden storm was his nature. He said, "Judy, you seem to be afraid of being alone with me." His handsome face was with an evil smile. His sharp black eyes seemed to see through Judith's thoughts. At this moment, Judith felt that she had no place to escape. Although she felt like that, she still looked at Frank's eyes fearlessly and said calmly, "Mr. Taylor, why should I be afraid of you? I just don't want to waste your precious time." Frank looked at the flash of panic in her eyes. He smiled evilly and asked, "Judy, why do you think I'm busy?" Judith raised her eyebrows and looked at him. "Wasn't he asking a question that he already knew the answer to?" I said this out of courtesy. Doesn't he know that with his intelligence? That's right. Good medicine can't cure evil, and good words are hard to persuade. I just don't like to get involved with him. As the saying goes, a man is innocent, but a man is guilty of his possessions. Frank should understand this, right?" Judith thought in mind. Sometimes, she even suspected that he was intentional. He was like the bright moon in the sky and in everyone's hearts, and she was just an inconspicuous star beside him. As long as he did not notice her, she would be safe. Judith smiled seductively and said, "I don't want to chat with you anymore, Mr. Taylor. I'll go see the patient first." "I'll go up with you." When Frank finished speaking, he walked in front of her.

Seeing that he insisted on following her, Judith knew no matter how much she said, it would just be nonsense and couldn't change his mind.

Love At First Night Chapter 196

Chapter 196

Frank walked to the elevator and asked, "Which floor?" "On the second floor," Judith replied. "The second floor?" Frank frowned. The elevator was still on the fifth floor. He turned to look at the fire escape.

Judith had already walked towards the fire escape. Frank put on an evil smile and followed her. He had one hand in his pocket. The white light shone on him and made him dazzling. When they arrived on the second floor, Judith asked the nurse about Sarah's ward. It was in room 202.

Judith walked over. A male doctor, wearing a white coat and a mask, happened to walk out with two nurses Judith smiled and asked, "Doctor, are the patient and the baby in her belly alright?" The doctor nodded and said, "You saved her in time. The patient and her child are fine, but the patient is in a bad mood and may miscarry at any time." Judith nodded and smiled gratefully. "Thank you, doctor. I will persuade her." "That's for the best. Tonight, she might need someone to accompany her, but she may not be able to hire a nursing worker for her in a short time. If no one is by her side, she will be agitated and do the same thing as before." "Okay. Doctor, don't worry. I will be by her side." Judith smiled and nodded again. "That's good. She's currently put on a drip. If there's anything wrong, call me immediately." "Alright." Judith nodded.

After the doctor and nurses left, Judith walked in. But just as she pushed the door open, she returned. Frank was waiting for her on the bench outside. His legs were folded together elegantly, and his entire body was filled with an imposing aura.

Judith glanced at him and said, "Mr. Taylor, can I borrow your phone? My phone fell into the river." Frank nodded and handed her the phone with his well-defined hand. "Thank you!" Judith pressed the button on the side and the screen lit up. However, a password was needed.

She looked at Frank and asked, "Mr. Taylor, the password is..." "My birthday." Frank interrupted her.

Judith was stunned. “Mr. Taylor, your birthday is...” Judith smiled, but her smile showed that she wanted to beat Frank up. “Who the hell knows his birthday?” She complained in her heart. “It’s the same as your phone password,” Frank told her patiently. He raised his head slightly. His arrogant expression was like that of an Emperor. His thin lips curled up and he looked at her with a devilish smile. The lights here were a little dim, but it made Frank’s deep eyes look even more charming. Judith shook suddenly. A thing flashed through her mind, so fast that she couldn’t catch it.

She looked at Frank in shock. After she had woken up, she only remembered the numbers. And she remembered she loved strawberry-flavored things but forgot everything else. Frank smiled gently and asked, “Do you want to check my ID card?” Judith seemed to have not heard his words. “What does 0923 mean? Why do I always remember it?” Judith had her head lowered and looked pained. Frank saw that and his heart ached slightly. “Judy, don’t you remember anything? Have you forgotten about me?” He narrowed his eyes slightly, his black pupils filled with deep longing. Judith was shocked in her heart and did not pay attention to Frank’s expression. Her hands trembled, and she entered 0923. The phone was indeed unlocked.

Chapter 197

Judith calmed herself down and dialed Lucas’s number. The call was picked up quickly and an anxious voice was heard. “Hello! Is this Mom?” “Yes! Lucas, I encountered something when I went out. I might not be back tonight. Do you dare to be at home alone?” Judith was also worried about Lucas. But Lucas had always been sensible, and there should be no problem for him staying at home all night. “Mom, what happened to you? Are you hurt? Did you call Uncle Adam?" Lucas was anxious, and he wanted to fly to Judith immediately. "Lucas, don't call Adam. It's so late. Don't disturb him, okay? "I promise you that I am fine. I just want to accompany a friend of mine..." Judith comforted Lucas for a while and finally, Lucas believed her. After hanging up the phone, she returned the phone to Frank and thanked him before entering the ward. Frank looked at Judith's back and did not look back for a long time. The dim light elongated his shadow. "Lucas wants Adam to come over? In Lucas's heart, Adam is like a father, right?" Frank couldn't tell what feelings were in the depths of his heart. He rubbed his eyes tiredly and sat quietly. When he was alone, he was still cold and arrogant. Judith walked in and looked at the white sheets and quilt, Looking at Sarah's desperate eyes, she sighed slightly. Sarah reminded Judith of herself seven years ago. Lying in the hospital, Judith was also so desperate and had nothing to live for. Judith asked, "Is there anything wrong with you? The child is safe and you are fine. I am relieved." Sarah turned back and looked at Judith with lifeless eyes. "You and I are strangers. Why do you save me?" The NO.1 bed was close to the door, and under the window was the bench Frank was sitting on. He heard their conversations inside. Frank frowned. "She jumped into the river to save a stranger? Didn't she know that the sludge in the river was very deep and dangerous? Damn it!" Frank could not wait to go in and tell her about safety. Judith smiled. "I have answered this question." "But I really want to die. What if this child is fine? After I give birth to him, he does not have a father and will be pointed at by people in the future. "In this society of apathy, he will live a hard life and will not be happy. Instead of letting him live in pain in the future, it is better for me to die with him now," Sarah said sadly and her tears flowed down uncontrollably. "If I knew that you had such thoughts, I would never have saved you, because you are not worthy of being a mother," Judith said coldly.

Sarah was about to cry out but she suddenly stopped. "...” Judith interrupted Sarah quickly. She looked at Sarah with clear eyes and began to tell her story. “Sarah, I am also a single mother, but I have never had such thoughts as you. I do not even know who their father is, but I have never thought of taking them with me to die. “On the contrary, with them, I have lived a happier life from then on. “At least you know who your child’s father is, and at least you and he are in love. At least you can’t be together for other reasons. Of course, I’m just telling you about my story. Whether you want to have an abortion or not, it’s up to you.”

Chapter 198

Sarah’s eyes were bloodshot and she looked at Judith in shock. She asked in disbelief, “You don’t even know the father of the child. How dare you give birth to him?” “How courageous she was when she made such a decision,” Sarah thought. Judith smiled bitterly and said, “Why not? At that time, I had a car accident, but they were still in my belly. “I thought that they must want to come to this world very much, so they were so strong. I never had the thought of abortion. The moment I accepted the reality, I decided to give birth to them. “No matter who their father is, I will raise them by myself. With this belief, I gave birth to my children.” Perhaps it was due to sympathy, and this was the first time Judith told a stranger her story. In the face of Adam and Alissa, Judith had hidden some things from them because she didn’t want them to worry about her too much.

But when she decided to say it out, she found that it was not that difficult.

She thought, “We have to face reality. Only when something happens will one know who will make things even better, who will help him in a dilemma, and who will make things worse. The answers will be clear at that moment.”

“What about now? Have you found the child’s father?” Sarah was shocked by Judith’s experience. Judith shook her head slowly, “Why should I look for him? In other words, I don’t know who he is at all, and I have no way to find him. “One night, I went to your barbecue with my friends. I saw what happened to you and heard people call you Sarah. I remembered it.” Judith avoided the important thing and did not want to talk about the past anymore. She seemed to have forgotten that Frank was sitting outside. She thought, “Sarah will definitely doubt that I saved her for no reason. I had better tell her the whole thing.” “So that’s the case.” Sarah forced a smile. “Even a stranger, who had not talked to me, saved me at all costs. But the man I love does not even dare to see me once. This is really a great irony.” Sarah could not stop her tears. Tonight, she had intended to see Jason for the last time, but he had not appeared. It wasn’t that he didn’t want to come, but that he didn’t dare to come. This was what made her despair the most.

The child did not have a father. Sarah was afraid that if she gave birth to the child, others would scold him. That would be a great pain for her child.

In a fit of anger, she wanted to commit suicide with the child.

She glanced at Judith. Judith was still in a sorry state as before, but she always had steel-like strength. Sarah looked at Judith’s clear eyes that seemed to be able to see through people’s hearts. Unknowingly, courage gradually arose from the depths of her heart. She thought about it and said, “My mother is a family wrecker, so I have had no father since I was born. I was often called a bastard child. I don’t want my child to bear the same pain. “Although my mother married into the Farrell family later and my foster father treated me very well, I can’t forget what happened to me.

It was like a shadow that has long been in the depths of my heart.” Judith heard that and thought, “It turned out to be like this. No wonder she had the thought of suicide. Those days were really hard.” Frank was outside and heard their conversation clearly. Frank was in disbelief. “After that, she even had a car accident. How much had she suffered all these years?”

Love At First Night Chapter 199

Chapter 199

Frank closed his eyes in pain. When Gary walked upstairs, he saw Frank’s expression. Gary narrowed his eyes. “What happened to him?”

Judith’s words provoked him? Was Judith injured? Who was he showing such pain to?” Gary scoffed. He walked to Frank. Frank, who had his head lowered, saw Gary and instantly restrained his emotions.

He stood up and took the clothes from Gary’s hand. Without saying anything, he walked into the ward.

“A weirdo,” Gary cursed in a low voice and sat down on the bench to rest. He was exhausted every day. Frank entered the ward, and Sarah and Judith looked at him. He glanced at Sarah indifferently and walked to Judith quickly. His tone was neither fast nor slow, “Judy, Gary bought the clothes. Go and change your clothes first.” Judith stood up, took the clothes from his hands, and smiled at him. “Mr. Taylor, thank you. You can go back first!” She chased him away again. Hearing that, Frank frowned again. “Go and change first.” With that, he turned and left the ward. Judith looked at his stubborn back and had a helpless expression. She turned back and said to Sarah, “Sarah, I will be back soon. If you are not feeling well, call the doctor.” Sarah shook her head and said with a smile, “I’m fine. But may I ask your name?” “Judith, you can call me Judy too. Everyone calls me that.” After Judith finished speaking, she went to the bathroom in the ward. This was a double room ward, and the bathroom was very small. But for Judith at the moment, to have such a bathroom was already a gift from the heavens. When Gary heard Sarah asking for Judith’s name, he instantly bounced up. Seeing Frank come out, he lowered his voice and asked, “So Ms. White, who doesn’t even know the woman, plunged into the river to save her?” Frank nodded indifferently. Gary glared and sat down again. “Hero. A superhero...” Gary muttered to himself, “Judith simply didn’t want to live anymore. When she was in the river, did she ever think about her two precious sons that made people jealous?” Frank sat down with a tired face and said, “Go back and rest. I’ll wait here for Judy.” Gary looked at him from the side and said in a low voice, “Frank, we live in the same house. Am I still human if I throw you here?” He thought in mind, “I have always been loyal. If I just arrive home and he calls me to come back and pick him up, it will be really hard for me. If I go back now, I will sleep soundly like a dead pig soon. If he calls me and I don’t receive his call, he will scold me to death.” The three friends were always tolerant of Frank. Seeing that Gary wasn’t leaving, Frank didn’t say a word and just sat there coldly. Gary shook his head helplessly. “Judith, you’re Frank’s medicine!” If Judith was happy, Frank would live in the honey. If Judith was sad, Frank would live a life worse than death.

In love, whoever falls in love first would lose.

A charming figure flashed through Gary’s mind. He sighed heavily in his heart. “Why did I think of Alissa whenever I closed my eyes recently?” Gary slowly shook his head to wake himself up. “Am I also possessed like Frank?”

Chapter 200

Frank suddenly stood up and left. Gary glanced at his back and did not speak. Not long after, Frank came back with a plastic bag. And just at this time, Judith came out of the bathroom. She carried her dirty clothes out and threw them. It had to be said that Gary was very considerate. He had bought her a white dress which was stylish with a hollow design. When Judith wore it, she looked fresh and lovely. She had just taken a bath and her hair was still a little wet. But it did not affect her beauty, and her body was filled with the fragrance of body wash. Frank approached her. A refreshing fragrance greeted him. His lips curled up and he was in a pleasant mood. Seeing that they had yet to leave, Judith felt rather helpless. She threw the clothes into the trash can at the side and looked at Frank. Just as she was about to speak, Frank spoke, "Judy, sit down first. I will help you with your injury." His low and mellow voice was especially pleased to hear and stroke straight at Judith's heart. Judith was slightly stunned. Frank looked at her with a gentle expression. His charming eyes looked at her as if he was looking at the whole world of himself. Such a sudden thought made Judith alert. She pursed her lips and lowered her head. "Mr. Taylor, give it to me, and I can do it myself." She refused Frank's help directly. Frank's thin lips were pursed, and his face looked much colder. His eyes were filled with a murderous aura that made people tremble with fear.

Judith was shocked. She had always been confident, but suddenly she became nervous. She wondered, "Am I wrong? Frank seems to be very angry." Without any explanation, Frank stretched out his slender and good-looking palm and pulled her to sit on the bench at the side. He glared at Gary. Gary knew what Frank meant and instantly stood up speechlessly. He gave the bench to them. The third wheel like him should disappear at the moment. Frank took out disinfectant and cotton swab and looked at the injury on Judith's forehead. He said, "Judy, it might hurt a little. Bear with it."

Judith could only nod helplessly. She did not know what had happened to Frank. Even if he was concerned about his subordinates, he should not be considerate like this. While Judith was puzzled, the sterilized cotton swab had touched her forehead. In an instant, a piercing pain spread through her entire body. The injury on her forehead was torn with blood. It was very painful. Her slight frown softened Frank's movements. Driven by curiosity, Judith looked up at Frank's handsome and cold face. He became so gentle and careful at this moment, and her heart was beating fast. She cursed in her heart, "This damn gentleness!" Indeed, Judith had never seen Frank so gentle since she knew him. The wound on his forehead was almost healed, but there were light pink scars. Frank treated the injury on her forehead and asked, "Judy, are there any other injuries?" "No, no more!" Judith quickly shook her head. She suddenly felt that the atmosphere was very strange. She was still injured. The injury on her knee was even more serious than the injury on her forehead. When she was bathing just now, she looked at it and saw that there was a big cut. Gary, standing to the side, looked down at them and noticed the bloodstains on Judith's dress.

"Judith was lying through her teeth."
