As they walked down the street, Brayden held her hand and looked at the lights ahead.

“Olivia, you know, even though you are by my side and I hold your hand, I still feel that you are far away from me”

She was within reach, but he felt she could not catch her.

Olivia stopped and looked at him.

He stood under the streetlamp, smiling, his thick eyelashes tinged with a faint yellow glow.

He was so gentle.

But she felt that Brayden was sad and lonely at this moment.

Did he feel anything wrong? The two of them walked outside for about an hour.

Back at the hotel, they washed up.

Brayden asked Olivia to take the shower first.

Olivia agreed, but this time it took longer than usual.

After washing, she looked herself in the mirror.

She was thinner and her collarbone was more prominent, but the heat in the bathroom made her face blush and she looked more lively.

Olivia took the towel, wrapped herself around her chest, and opened the door.

Brayden was standing outside the balcony making a phone call.

His straight back and his temperate because of practicing the piano for long was a beautiful sight.

Olivia walked over, came behind him, and hugged him.

Brayden froze.

Olivia pulled up his shirt and touched his skin.

Brayden grabbed her hand immediately and said to the person on the phone, “Let’s talk tomorrow”

He then Visit to read the newest content, everyone! stunned.

With her long hair wet, she wrapped around her body with the towel, blocking her vital parts, but not her bare shoulders, Visit to read the newest content, everyone! stood in front of him seductively and looked at him with clear eyes.

Brayden's body tensed up.

Olivia looked at the change in his eyes and whispered, "Brayden, make love with me."

She had nothing to give him but herself.

Brayden calmed down after she said that.

He turned around, put her phone into the pocket.

He walked into the room, took out a blanket and wrapped it around her.

Olivia looked at his movements, lowered her eyes, and said, "Brayden, we're about to get our license. Soon we'll be husband and wife. We can do this kind of thing."

Brayden paused and quickly wrapped the blanket around her until she only showed a pair of feet and a face.

Then he looked at her.

"As long as we don't get the license, I won't do this with you."

Even if he wanted her extremely.

"Go rest, I'll take a bath"

Then he turned around and went to the washroom.

Olivia stopped him.

"Brayden, I want to give myself to you-"

Really.

There was no force at all.

Brayden stood there still, not speaking or moving.

He seemed to be thinking about it and struggling.

At this moment, Olivia did not know what Brayden was thinking.

“Brayden, I know you respect me. I understand, but...”

“In that case, why can’t we wait two nights?”

Brayden turned to look at her, smiling, but his eyes showed seriousness. Olivia pursed her lips.

“I don’t want to wait”

“Why?” Olivia frowned, not knowing what to say.

Brayden did not force her.

He only looked at her and clenched his hand.

‘Olivia, will you say it?’

‘Say you will leave me’

“Tell me that you were in such a hurry to give yourself to me was to repay me”

“Use yourself to pay back my kindness.”

“Then, we will have nothing to do with each other”

Olivia looked at Brayden’s smile and released his hand.

“I’ll wait for you. I’ll wait until you want me.”

It was okay not to get married, not to be together, but just to have sex.

As long as it was Brayden, all of her Olivia’s bottom lines could be broken.

“Go take a shower” Olivia smiled and went to bed.

Brayden looked at her closed eyes, emotions rolling in his eyes.

“Olivia, I want your heart, not your body.” He thought.

Belle booked a ticket for ten o’clock in the morning.

After breakfast, they packed up and went to the airport.

Belle held Olivia's hand and said, "Olivia, take good care of yourself. Your health is the most important."

She had seen for the past two days that Olivia was really a good kid who worked hard. She really liked Olivia.

"Okay, auntie, take care of yourself"

"I know. I'm much more open-minded than your younger generation." She looked at Brayden and said, "Brayden, take good care of Olivia. If anything happens, call me, okay?"

"I know" Seeing that it was almost time, Brayden said, "Mom, go in."

Belle nodded.

"Then I'll go. Bye."

Belle looked at the two who were standing together and suddenly did not want to part with them.

But she quickly turned around and walked in.

Olivia looked at Belle's back, her heart surging.

She lowered her head and blinked.

Brayden looked at her.

"Are you unwilling to part with her?"

Olivia looked up and said with a smile, "Yes."

"I didn't want to part with Visit to read the newest content, everyone! of them walked out of the airport.

Olivia said, "You could just go to work. I'll go to the hospital to see Mr. Johnson." Brayden Visit to read the newest content, everyone! him looking at her like he wanted to see through her and asked with a smile, "What's wrong?"

Brayden's eyes moved and he changed the expression.

"I just want to see you."

"Take a good look at you." He added inside.

"You look at me every day, why are you still being so mushy?"

"I like it"

"Always like to look at you." He said silently.

"Let's go. I'll take you to the hospital."

"Okay."

Without a word, the two of them went to the hospital.

Olivia got out of the car and stopped.

Instead of going in immediately, she looked at Brayden.

A second later, she walked over and hugged him.

'Brayden, I have a lot to say to you, but I don't know how to say it! She thought.

'Thousands of words were in this hug'

"Thank you. I'm sorry"

"You must be happy"

Brayden paused for a while, then hugged her and tightened his arms. Olivia walked into the hospital, and Brayden was standing there, watching her get further and further away from him, then he picked up his phone.

"Kelly, make the schedule. From tomorrow onwards, my work is on track."

"Brayden, are you serious?"

"Yes"

"Great, I'll arrange it right away!"

"Ok"

When the phone hung up, Brayden looked up at the hospital.

"Olivia, do you think I'll give up on you like this?"

"No"

"I will never give up on you in this life!" Olivia didn't go to see Donald, but she looked at Brayden in a corner upstairs.

She didn't go downstairs until Brayden got in the car and left. She stopped a taxi and went back to the hotel.

She packed her things and went to the airport. She had booked a flight to Paris yesterday.

The flight time was twenty past one in the afternoon.

And now it was one o'clock.

Olivia turned around and looked at the airport gate.

Half a minute later, she clenched her suitcase and turned around to enter.

Outside the gate, a car stopped outside.

The people in the car watched Olivia leave until he could no longer see her, then the car started and he drove away from the airport.

It was in the city hospital, when Davis finished the discharge procedures and came to the ward.

"Mr. Weston, the discharge procedures have been completed."

"Hmm?"

Everett put on his suit jacket and buttoned it. In an instant, his aloof aura displayed itself.

Melody walked over, stood in front of him, straightened his shirt collar, and looked at him.

"I can finally rest assured."

Everett, "Oh?"

Melody hugged his neck, kissed him on the lips, and said, "My fiancé is too tempting. I have to keep an eye on him"

After a few people were discharged from the hospital, Everett did not return to the hotel, but went straight to the company.

Melody went back to the hotel.

Everett was discharged from the hospital, and she was going to be busy with her work.

Today, she was flying to Malaysia to shoot an advertisement.

She called the assistant, asked the assistant to come and pack, and then called Zhanle. She was going to ask Zhanle out for a meal and a chat before she left.

"Sorry, the number you dialed is turned off..."

Melody raised her eyebrows and hung up the phone.

The assistant quickly came over to pack.

Melody went to fix her makeup, looked at the time, and said to her assistant, "I'm going to the Bridge Hospital. You can put the luggage in the car. Then pick me up at the Bridge Hospital when it's almost the time."

"Okay, Melody."

Melody went to the Bridge Visit to read the newest content, everyone! was no Olivia, no Belle, and no Brayden in the ward.

The bed was neatly folded and there was nothing on the bedside Visit to read the newest content, everyone! clear.

As if no one lived there.

Melody's heart skipped a beat and turned to the nurse station.

"Hello, may I ask if patient 2088 is discharged?"

"Yes."

"When did she leave?"

"Yesterday morning."

"Okay, thank you."

"You're welcome." Olivia was discharged.

Then she must be at the hotel.

Melody walked out of the hospital and called Brayden.

"I'm sorry, the number you dialed has not been answered for the time being. Please try again later..."

No one answered. Melody frowned.

Belle turned off her phone and Brayden didn't answer it.

She had a bad feeling in her heart.

Melody called Brayden again.

But no one answered.

She looked at the time and drove to the hotel where Brayden stayed.

At this moment, Brayden was sitting in the hotel room with a letter in his hand.

The letter was neatly written in small letters, which were Olivia's handwriting.

"Brayden, I was sent to the hospital by you the other day. I called Everett. I told him I wouldn't marry you or be with you. After this month, I'll leave you."

"But actually, when I said these words, I had other thoughts. I wanted to marry you. We can get married without his knowledge, so he had no choice."

"But I'm too naive. Everett is a cold-hearted man. He won't leave me a way out. In fact, he was in complete control of Bill's case, and he even bribed the lawyer you hired to do what he wanted."

"I'm sorry. I thought about fighting against him, but I can't. I can't involve innocent people in the relationship."

"Brayden, thank you. Thank you for loving me. I'm not for you. You deserve a better woman."

Brayden looked at the letter and read it over and over again.

The thin paper crumpled in his hand.

A smile rose from the corner of his mouth, gentle and full of love.

He thought she didn't want to marry him.

But that wasn't the truth.

She wanted to. She wanted to marry him.

Olivia, I will let you marry me.

Absolutely!

Melody went to the hotel and went straight to Brayden and Olivia's room.

She knocked on the door.

No response.

She knocked again, this time with greater force.

Still nothing.

Melody frowned and called Brayden again.

But no one answered the phone.

She turned around and went downstairs to the front desk.

"Hello, may I ask if the guest in room 7809 is still there?"

"Not any more."

"No"

"Yes, they checked out an hour ago." Discharged and checked out.

Did the three of them leave Green Lake? Melody thought for a moment and called Belle. This time it went through.

"Melody."

"Sis, where are you?"

"I just got off the plane, in Capital City. What's wrong?"

"You went back to Capital City?"

"Yes, Olivia is out of the hospital. It's not long before she and Brayden get engaged. I'm coming back to prepare for the engagement."

The words relieved Melody's tense nerves.

"Oh, I see. Everett had also been discharged today. I was thinking we should have dinner together." Belle Visit to read the newest content, everyone! morning."

"Right, till next time.' Belle said, "It doesn't matter. When Brayden and Olivia get engaged on the ninth day of this month, you visit to read the newest content, everyone! in advance, and we will have a meal and have a good talk."

Melody's heart twitched.

"Well, where are they getting engaged?"

"Penglai Hotel, Capital City. I've already arranged it."

"Well, I'll be back two days early.'

"Okay, then I'll get in the car. Talk to you later.'

"OK." Belle hung up.

Melody put down her phone and checked the calendar.

Today was the second day of this month on the lunar calendar.

Their engagement was in a week.

Everett, would you do anything then? Conference room, SHS Building.

An hour later, Everett walked out of the conference room.

Davis followed him and reported the rest of the work schedule.

Soon the two of them walked into the president's room.

Everett looked at Davis and said, "Book a flight to Mexico tonight"

""Okay:"

Davis put down the file and turned to leave.

Everett sat in the chair behind his desk and clicked on his email.

Suddenly, the phone rang.

He took the phone, glanced at the screen, and answered.

"Mr. Weston, Mrs. James flew back to Capital City at 10 am. Miss Hadley flew to Paris at 1: 20 pm and Mr. James flew at 3: 40 pm."

Everett looked up at the top right corner of the computer screen. It was 3: 30 pm.

“Okay:”

With his finger on the hang-up button, Everett looked at the computer screen.

A minute later, he dialed a number.

“Tell Spencer & Perez to deal with Bill’s case following Olivia’s instruction.”

“Okay, Mr.Weston.”

Hanging up the phone, he tossed his phone aside and took the file beside him.

As soon as the file was opened, a text message came in.

Everett turned to the phone.

When he saw the name displayed on the screen, he paused for two seconds before taking it over.

“You broke us up.But Everett, I’m telling you.The more you do this, the more we love each other.Even if we are not married and not together, our hearts belong to each other.’

In an instant, the temperature in the president’s room seemed to reach a freezing point.

Olivia arrived in Paris Airport at 9: 20 the next night.

She went to the hotel after leaving the airport.

On the way to the hotel, she called Frank.

She needed to rent a house, but she was new here Frank was the only person she trusted and could ask for help.

“Olivia you’ve been missing for so long and finally called.”

As soon as the call was picked up, Frank’s voice came through.

Olivia listened to his unhappy voice and curved her lips.

“Yeah, I’m done, so I thought of you.’

“No!”

"Hmm?"

"You only think of me because you need me." Olivia smiled.

"Yeah, you know me so well?"

"Ah...you are a bad friend..."

"Ho ho..."

After a lovely chat, Frank said, "Go ahead.

What's the matter?"

"I'm back to Paris. I should be here for nearly half a year. You're familiar with this place. Can you help me find a house that's not expensive but safe?"

"You are back to Paris?"

"Yes, just arrived."

"Well...I was thinking that you would treat me to dinner when you were done, but..."

"Next time you come to Paris, I'll treat you."

"You promised!"

"Yes, I did"

"Okay, I recorded. If you go back on your word, I'll send it to you and remind you every day."

"Ho ho, okay." After hanging up, Olivia looked out of Visit to read the newest content, everyone! place where she lived with Brayden.

There was nothing important in that house.

The car arrived at the hotel in an hour.

Olivia freshened up, Visit to read the newest content, everyone! five million, and she had to pay him back.

She didn't stop until the middle of the night, and by three in the morning, Olivia fell asleep.

Before she went to sleep, she turned her phone to silence mode.

She needed a tight sleep to forget what had happened before and start a new life.

Not long after she fell asleep, her phone lit up.

The caller "mother" was on the screen.

A minute later, the phone screen dimmed.

"Sorry, the number you dialed was temporarily unanswered."

Elizabeth frowned after hearing it.

It was noon.

Olivia was supposed to be free.

Why didn't she answer the phone? She thought about it and called Olivia again, still unanswered.

Forget it, she was probably busy.

Elizabeth put her phone aside and went to work.

Olivia would not answer the phone only when she was busy.

But it didn't matter.

When Olivia was done, she would call her back when she saw her calling.

At seven the next day, Olivia's alarm went off.

She set the alarm for seven.

She got up to wash up and then went to AK Company.

On the way to AK, she took out her cell phone and called Jason.

Jason was her superior and she had to report to him.

But when she turned on her phone, Olivia saw two missed calls.

From Elizabeth.

Seeing these two missed calls, Olivia paused, clicked on the address list, and dialed Jason's number.

She could guess what her mom was going to say.

So, she didn't want to call her back.

"Olivia"

"Director, I went back to Paris yesterday. I came to the company this morning. Are you at the company?"

"Yes."

"Okay, I'll be there in about 20 minutes. When I get there, I'll report to you about my work during this period."

"Sure."

When the phone hung up, Olivia looked out of the window with her eyes narrowed.

A new day, a new beginning, she was Olivia.

She was going to be fine.
