

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 107

After that party, Emily usually invited Jonas to play with her. They would either go golfing or mountaineering.

Jonas led a monotonous life. He went for work and returned home; he had nothing else to do.

In the face of Emily's invitation, although Jonas didn't want to go, he couldn't refuse the offer. The two of them went to several places together. The outdoor activities made Jonas relax. He finally got back to his normal self.

"Jonas, there is a new French restaurant near your company. Would you like to take me there for dinner?"

Emily asked, picking clothes in a mall. Her cheeks turned red and she was blushing like a woman crazy in love.

"It's my honor to invite a famous star for dinner," Jonas joked as he seemed to be in a good mood.

"Don't make fun of me. You know I'm having a hard time."

Emily frowned and became sad. Jonas felt guilty for making an insensitive joke. He felt that Emily must have been going through some issues and wondered if he should invest in a new series for her to perform.

"Sorry, I was being stupid. I'm inviting you to have dinner with me so that I can apologize to you in person," Jonas said.

"Umm... I'll think about it,"

Emily said, pretending to be in a dilemma. Then they made an appointment and Emily decided not to disturb him further.

Emily had been happy lately as Jonas always accepted her invite. He never refused to come out with her unless he had important work to do. She could also see that Jonas's opinion of her seemed to gradually change. Everything was back to normal.

During dinner, the dining hall was empty. Nelson and Melinda were the only ones at the table. Nelson looked unhappy and Melinda didn't know what to say. She ate in silence, forcing the food down her throat.

Jonas hardly returned for dinner. He had been coming home late and went straight to bed.

"Did you fight with each other?"

Nelson asked. Jonas never stayed out late unless he quarreled with Melinda. Her cheeks turned red with embarrassment. "No, we didn't," she said, wiping her mouth awkwardly.

"You guys are married. You will have to spend the rest of your life with him. If you have any problems, talk it out. Don't keep everything in your heart by letting it fester. A healthy argument strengthens relationships but if you keep things to yourself, it will only make things worse."

Nelson took a deep breath and looked at Melinda. "I know you might not like what I say but this is the bitter truth. You cannot wait for things to change on its own. We need to communicate our feelings and emotions."

Nelson didn't want to blame Melinda but he wanted her to understand that Jonas could not always understand her feelings until she talked to him about it. He didn't have the heart to see them constantly fight with each other.

Jonas was a proud man. Melinda's ignorance would be a huge blow to his self-esteem.

"All right, it's late. Go back to your room and rest."

Melinda pursed her lips and didn't say anything. She thought about what Nelson said and realized that she had been arrogant too. Although Jonas was wrong, she felt that she should have talked to him about it.

villa, Melinda was contemplating if from Kent. She involuntarily picked the call and think I should talk to him?" she

as he realized that Melinda had not been listening to him.

you fight

"Not really," she mumbled.

lonely and depressed lately. The feelings and emotions that she

Emily again. She

time things got normal between her and Jonas,

is Emily again."

boil. Emily with him. You'll be able to find out what he wants and make peace with let go of Emily, she would quit putting an effort. She would Emily off the hook. Melinda wouldn't let Jonas marry Emily as to wait for Jonas in the living room. Mary turned the TV on. The

the sofa and returned home. He was surprised to see that the lights in the living room were on. A petite figure was curled up on the sofa and an

"Mellie..."

Melinda woke up as a strong smell of Melinda said, knitting her

and there a familiar scent. She racked her

she realized

understand what she was talking about. "If you are tired, go to your bedroom think was about the scent of the perfume. She wondered what Jonas had been a couple of days ago, Jonas returned home with the faint scent lingering on his shirt. But the scent was not as strong as had been hanging with Emily all

Melinda had been tossing and turning in bed and couldn't did you wake up so early? It's weekend, you could said as she placed the breakfast on the table. Melinda couldn't help but smile. She always worked during smiled as she saw Jonas turned around and saw that Jonas was wearing a simple T-shirt and jeans. His hair was not fixed and it somehow made him look more handsome. She out today?" Melinda when he stayed at home during weekends. Therefore, Melinda guessed that he was going to talk to

I'm meeting

taking

hung out with but she ended up feeling disappointed as she didn't know