

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 139

"What was surprising was that she actually ended up marrying you after all," Kent said.

He thought that Melinda was experiencing a dream the moment she had informed him that she was going to be marrying Jonas.

"I was surprised as well."

Jonas resented Nelson for making him and Emily break up, even more so when the old man asked him to marry a woman he didn't know.

"Way back in college, she was always looking for part-time jobs. We asked her if that was all an act put up to cover the fact that she was from a rich family as she had a relationship with the Gu family."

Kent continued to share all that he knew about Melinda in college. All of it seemed strange for Jonas. He even felt sorry for her.

He didn't know that Melinda had gone through so much.

"Melinda is actually very stubborn," Kent added. "The last thing that you should be doubting is her feelings for you. I'm pretty sure that she still loves you, but to protect herself she has learned to cover up those feelings and keep them hidden."

Melinda had cautiously locked her heart up after being hurt again and again.

There was a glint in Jonas's eyes as his hand slightly trembled. Melinda was still in love with him.

Was this true? Being the reserved and silent type, he ended up taking a sip of wine to hide his enthusiasm.

Kent wanted to shake his head at the sight. Their clashing personalities were probably going to be the biggest issue between the two.

Emily had also been paying attention to the news. She felt that this was the perfect opportunity to make Jonas and Melinda divorce. What she did not expect was that Kent's sudden intervention made the public change their opinions once again.

Her eyes flashed with jealousy and anger as she stared at the news on her screen.

She envied Melinda for being surrounded by people like Kent to protect her.

While scrolling through the photo album in her iPad, she found photos of Jonas and Melinda that had been synced from her phone.

Both of their faces showed a mask of indifference towards each other.

Emily had a satisfied grin on her face as she took one last glance at the photos before sending them to the media handling all major websites.

The media had been quiet for a while. Upon receiving them, they were soon buzzing with excitement.

What Kent had been saying earlier was also understood to create momentum and boost the popularity for his magazine.
