

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 162

Melinda only remembered that later she couldn't stand the spicy food, and she was excited to tell her companions that she liked the same taste with Jonas.

How silly she was.

"What would you like to eat? I'll look for it nearby." Jonas knew the hidden meaning of this sentence, but he deliberately ignored it.

"No need. I'll hang up if there's nothing else."

"Melinda, can't you have a talk with me calmly? Please give me a chance. I want to start over." Melinda's direct refusal was a little disappointing, but Jonas only felt that he should suffer these.

"We won't start over, and we will never be together again," Melinda said as she turned around and looked at herself in the mirror, a little ferocious on her face. Who could be as calm as water when talking about the past?

Melinda hung up the phone. In order to get quietness, Melinda had muted the phone. After such a long time, she knew clearly that blacklisting didn't work.

Melinda was preoccupied and did not notice the change of attitude of many colleagues.

It was not until three days later that Melinda gradually realized that all the people around her were making various excuses to isolate her.

"Mark, do you have any good literature recommendation of this issue?" Melinda turned to ask her colleague. This was the topic they would talk about after each requirement was designated.

Melinda's reserve of knowledge and unique insights were great. Colleagues were fond of discussing with her, but Mark seemed to have heard nothing about what she said this time, and he stood up and walked to the opposite side.

His keeping a distance from Melinda made Melinda embarrassed. Her colleague on the other side stood up from her seat quickly and went straight to the conference table to join in the fun.

There were four or five people around the conference table. They seemed to be discussing, but their eyes would occasionally float to Melinda.

"Elsa, why are you here?"

Elsa was the colleague on the right side of Melinda. As soon as she came, someone greeted her. With a cup in her hand, Elsa took a seat at the conference table.

"Who wants to discuss with that person? Isn't the topic this time about how to survive in high-speed cities? Maybe someone will talk about how to get in superiors' bed in the end." Elsa had been jealous of Melinda all the time. This time, she found the opportunity to mock her, showing no mercy.

The people around her burst into laughter.

"You really don't know how to get into superiors' bed. Many people say that there is such a lady's design center, but in fact, they teach people to do those disgusting things. Why don't you ask her to bring you into contact with that if you are in a favorable position?"

were envious of Melinda at the usual time. The neutral ones were only alienated because they were worried that if they stood on the side of Melinda, they would also become Stop disgusting me here," Elsa said as that Melinda's several articles were well read, which caused a great deal of hatred.

theme layout, the meeting held in the afternoon was about the last theme. By convention, the first article that came out was usually the one that the editor in chief thought was the

the best article was the articles on a power point. In the past, was over, someone raised his hand to make a speech and denied her article from the beginning to the end.

out to be disgusting person?" the from time to time. Some even made a conclusion, "This time, the company lets out the worst article laughing, as if the sharpness they had just attacked was only aimed the public. Although Victor was not a hard working person, was an open-minded company. No matter how good Melinda's draft was, over half of the employees thought it was not good, so she had to off, too. She had been kind to everyone in the company, but she was attacked by all the staff. She could admit that the article was not as good washroom and heard the didn't make any sense that it was the best one. Even if protect her, Mr. Cheng had criticized the woman sneered. The door next to her was pushed open. Melinda scowled and walked up the one they talked about heard what said coldly, "When you smear someone, please present evidence to convince people. If not, please make a public apology to me. Otherwise, we words were actually a warning. Those people were clever enough a proud and aloof woman, why didn't you act like she puffed out her chest as if this could make her she said, she didn't try to hide herself straight at the two. Her eyes were bright and full of righteousness, which made the two people feel guilty inexplicably.

two went to one of the two people who had witnessed how Melinda and Victor got together by the seaside that day. She

Mr. Cheng asked me to go it weren't for Victor, no

They looked at Melinda as if she was an idiot. They looked at each other

"Is it credible?"

two walked out of the washroom with mockery know was that what happened at the beach was just a fuse. The people who aimed at upset her even chained up many things