

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 204

Even in such a mess and Jonas needed someone to hold him to keep him feet, but the hostility of Jonas sent chills to Emily's heart.

His eyes were a little red and swollen. He looked like a demon, but this demon had taken care of the one beside him. He stood straight and tried not to fall on Melinda.

He seemed to be born to be the focus, attracting everyone's attention. Even if he was as pathetic as a beggar, his temperament and aura could not be ignored.

Melinda was pretty and graceful, but she was in harmony with him.

"Emily, if you don't want me to tell the police what I've heard, hurry up and go away."

After drinking a lot of water, he spoke smoothly, slowly and softly, but everyone's attention was on him, without breathing.

Therefore, this sentence was heard by everyone.

What had he heard? Why would Emily worry that the police would know that? Had Emily broken the law? A series of questions came to everyone's mind.

Looking at the ruthless expression in Jonas's eyes, Emily was sure that he wasn't joking.

"Mr. Jonas, please tell us what crime Emily has committed. We will arrest her according to law." At this time, another policeman spoke, looking at Emily fiercely, as if to tie her up to the law.

"I..." Emily couldn't explain why she came here in a long time. Looking at the policemen around her, she got more panic and ran out of the factory in a panic, with her bag tightly over her chest. The others looked at each other in dismay.

Melinda looked at Jonas blankly. He smiled at her in a good mood.

"Are you okay?" It was the first time that Melinda had cared about him so much after the divorce, which made Jonas a little excited and dazed. Then he giggled.

Melinda could not bear to look straight into his eyes. Seeing that he was staring at Melinda, the coughing of the policemen around her who seemed to be embarrassed seemed to have turned into laughter. She immediately flushed.

Buried her head in the chest of Jonas, she could obviously feel that he had lost more than a little bit weight. Her tears, which had just stopped, began to flood again. She sniffed and tears fell uncontrollably.

Holding her face in his hands, Jonas didn't care whether his clothes were dirty or not, but gently wiped it for her, coaxing, "Well, stop crying, you see, I'm fine."

in a rush, which almost tore Jonas's heart apart. Jonas wiped her face in hurry. In the end, he made Melinda a big red face. He didn't know whether he should laugh or cry. Then he bent down and
