

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 211

It was a battlefield without guns on the Internet. In this turmoil, Melinda smiled at the text list in her mobile phone.

But only she knew that she was bitterly disappointed.

It had been two days since the incident happened, but Jonas hadn't handle it well. 'It wasn't his style to handle it, or just because Emily.'

Melinda was lost in thought, and she did not notice Nelson come in until his hand fell on her shoulder and patted it. "Grandpa."

"What are you thinking about?"

Nelson asked with a smile. The nurse was observant. She fetched a soft chair for him and adjusted a comfortable position for Melinda.

She threw the phone behind the pillow and shook her head, "nothing, just chatting with my colleagues. They care about me a lot."

In fact, if he really greeted her, it would be Victor. At this moment, she had experienced the real world again.

Nelson didn't say anything but nodded. He looked around and said to the caregiver, "this room is too quiet. Turn on the TV."

The nurse didn't suspect him and turned on the TV. The remote control was beside the bed. After a while, Nelson took out the presbyopic glasses from his pocket and put them on his nose.

With the remote control in his hand, Nelson began to transfer channels. To Melinda's surprise, what he was doing this time was not a TV station that represented the political law, nor a financial program, but an entertainment station.

Nelson chattered with her. The topic changed dramatically. It became a background music.

At the same time, after leaving the hospital, the news conference was held at a fast speed. The media that had just gathered, and they were trying to figure out what others knew.

"Boss." William heaved a sigh of relief when he saw Jonas. The press conference was urgent, and it was a live broadcast. If Jonny didn't catch it, Soaring Group's stock market would probably plummet today.

Jonas nodded to him, tidied up his clothes and asked, "have you arranged everything?"

"All the journalists have arrived. The conference will begin in five minutes. We will start live streaming." 'It's time for you to show up in front of me!'

In fact, the preparation of the press conference was rather tense. If it was not for the fact that Soaring Group had a good reputation and attracted a lot of attention, these reporters would not have come so fast, and they even tried to distress Jonas.

The press conference was conducted by the manager of public relations and William. Jonas trusted them and didn't ask more about it. Under the guidance of William, he came to the backstage.
