

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 215

The ward was filled with the scent of flowers. Instead of wearing the hospital gown as other patients did, Melinda was wearing the maternity dress prepared by Jonas.

After thinking for a long time, Melinda still couldn't think it through. In the end, she decided not to make things difficult for herself.

But when she came back to earth, she found that Jonas's eyes became gentle and full of love, like the moon's light spreading on the sea level, and looked gentle.

"Have you decided?"

Jonas asked as he saw Melinda's expression. But he did not care about the answer.

He was quite satisfied with the current situation. If Melinda was unwilling to go back, he could just follow her. After all, it didn't matter where the family lived.

"No,"

Melinda shook her head, thinking that such a question was too hard. It was better to think less about it later. She just followed the flow of time, and there was always a way to get to the top of the bridge.

"You'd better not think about it," Jonas said jokingly. Then he found a book out of nowhere. It was a taboo word for pregnant women in every month.

"I can't stay with you in the hospital every day. You must keep this book in mind."

Perplexed, Melinda took it and flipped through one page casually, and there were even comments on it. Curiously, she turned to the last page and asked in amazement, "You've read through this book."

"Yes. It was at rest time during the work time. I was worried that you might not understand some meaning, so I marked it. I'll send whatever I've read to you later."

There was no doubt that Jonas said these words naturally, which scared Melinda. In fact, Jonas had a very different IQ and EQ. he could read and understand books very quickly. If she had read all these books, it was estimated that she would have read them all during her entire pregnancy period.

Melinda couldn't help but shiver.

"What's wrong? Are you cold?"

Seeing a tremble of Melinda, Jonas asked with concern. He quickly stood up from his seat and closed the window, turned on the heat and turned on the room temperature.

"No, I just... I'm a little thirsty." After thinking for a long time, Melinda didn't know what a suitable excuse should be, so she said she was thirsty.

She had eaten a lot of fruit and her mouth was a little sweet, so it's good to have some hot water. Melinda immediately smiled with satisfaction, her eyes crooked like crescent moons.

As soon as Melinda finished her words, Jonas went to pour water. He found that the water was not hot enough and frowned. "What's wrong with the caregiver? The water isn't hot at all."

What if Linda wanted to have some warm food? The caregiver was already passed by Jonas before she knew it.
