

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 218

"Phew!" The hangover made Kent's head painful, but he was sober enough.

He clearly realized how much he loved Melinda in his heart.

That was a mark carved in the bone. It was too difficult to get rid of it. He tried countless ways, but he still could not escape.

"Just once, last time,"

Kent murmured to himself, as if trying to encourage himself to do something. He felt that as long as he liked Melinda, nothing else mattered.

He wanted to pursue Melinda again and bring a perfect outcome to the relationship.

For all these years, the deeds of his pursuit for Melinda could be written into a book.

Since Melinda had woken up, she was ready to go to the market with her servant, changing a set of convenient clothes. When she walked out of the room, the servant was just about to go out with her bag.

"Good morning, Mrs. Melinda. Breakfast is ready on the table." The servant was also surprised to see Melinda get up so early, and she greeted her as usual.

The reason why they were sent here by Jonas to take care of Melinda was that they were very thoughtful women. At this time, what she said and what she did had fully reflected their attitudes.

"I'll go out with you."

"The market is in a mess. You'd better take a walk in the garden downstairs if you want to go out. The air will be better with so many green trees."

The servant was stunned for a while, and then she realized that what Melinda said was the market.

She turned down her in an indirect way and made a better suggestion. After thinking for a while, Melinda also felt that she was not considerate enough.

"Okay, I'll go downstairs with you."

Melinda nodded her head. Thinking of Jonas's worry about her yesterday, she hesitated for a while and finally took her mobile phone.

At this time downstairs, most of the old people from the neighborhood played with their grandchildren in the park. After a round of walk, Melinda felt a little tired and sat on the bench to rest.

Maybe it was because she had a child, she now particularly liked to pay attention to the behaviors of those children. She even imagined that her child would act the same when he grew up.

She was expecting this baby more.

"Miss, your phone is ringing." With a football in his hand, the boy had a bright smile on his childish face. Hearing his words, Melinda came to herself, touched his head and said with a smile, "Thank you."

Melinda frowned with suspicion and felt a
