

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 223

After that day, Melinda felt that understanding other's feeling was a good idea, and in the next few days, she would think about it first before deciding.

What made her happier was the change of her father's attitude. Now she went to the home to accompany her father every day. Sometimes she met Jonas, and sometimes she missed him.

"You are early today." As soon as Vern saw Melinda, a smile appeared on his face. He was delighted to see that the young couple got along well with each other.

Every day, Jonas arranged a doctor to check his physical condition and greeted him in person. He mentioned to him what had happened between him and Melinda every day.

"Dad, let me cook for you today." Today was Melinda's day off. She bought some vegetables and meat, hoping to cook for her father.

Although she could bear hardships, she had never cooked at home. Now that she had learned, she wanted to show it to her father.

Vern was also a little surprised. He saw that she was carrying many materials in her hands, but before he could react, Jonas came out of Melinda's room and quickly took the things in her hands.

"You are pregnant now. You should not carry such heavy things," said Jonas as he brought the things into the kitchen. He came here early today, thinking that there were few things to do in the company, so he just waited for Melinda here.

However, he was a little tired, so Vern let him have a rest in Melinda's room.

"I will listen to you orders later. Don't touch those things like knives and so on." Jonas didn't stop Melinda from cooking for her father, but he didn't allow her to touch such dangerous things.

Hearing this, Melinda became delighted and nodded continuously. She didn't expect that Jonas would say so.

As they were in the kitchen, Vern couldn't say anything more. In order to let Vern feel what a skillful cook Melinda was, Jonas handed the seasoning over to her.

It was the first time that they had cooked together. A warm feeling filled up Melinda's heart.

In the Gu's mansion, they would not speak when having meals, but in this place, Jonas would not talk with Vern and would ask him about his health condition. Sometimes, he might remind Vern what was good for him to eat and what was not good.

Melinda didn't say much, but she felt very happy in her heart. The meticulousness of Jonas made her feel that she did not love the wrong person. She felt that all her efforts in this relationship were worth for a moment.

She could not help putting her hands on her abdomen, and considered whether to go back home with Jonas.

Now Jonas looked exactly like a good husband. It was weekend, and they were afraid that Vern might feel bored at home. Therefore, Jonas was driving his car and taking Melinda and Vern out for fun.

In a secluded tea house, Emily and Jerry walked into a box as they had promised and there was no one in the box. Emily could not help cursing in a low voice, "What does Holley mean? Put on airs?"

They discussed for a long time and agreed to meet at the tea house which was located in the old area in the city. There were not many people and it was quiet there.

"Now that we're all here, can't you put up with it for a while? When things are done, whatever you want to do has nothing to do with me," Jerry said as he glanced at her, looking around the box carefully.

because he had no sense of security about anything around him. He had to check waiting for her," Emily said discontentedly. She had planned to arrive later, which made Holley think that they didn't need her help.

so

for them. But now, as he act this way." Emily was not convinced and retorted. She had seen so many so-called this real life, men and women, most of the time, cooperating, they should take the biggest advantage.

late for fifteen minutes. Wearing a small late because I had to attend a show for my friend,"

a cup of tea and smoothed her hair around to explain politely, but just to now that we are tried to mediate. This was the design

Holley and added tea to himself and Emily. "Come on, have a drink.

care about Jerry at all. When their eyes met, it seemed like there was a fire asked, coming straight to the point, agree with my request?" Holley sipped was obvious that she looked better than before since she had made up. And her dressing style in white was her consistent style, to show that she was pure

"Of course,"

When Holley found it strange, Emily sneered, "Do you think that Jonas will fall in nervous for her answer. She thought were there so many crooked ways that Holley had to let Jonas fall played

had thought this woman would be kicked out of this game, but it turned out that she was pregnant with Jonas's child not help putting her hands on her belly. She used to

"I knew that already."

Now when she heard it from Holley, she felt like that she rub salt into know that she is pregnant. The problem is what we like Emily. Instead, he believed that now that Holley had said it, with her, isn't it? Make her lose this baby," Holley said without a blink.

she was, any malicious method was just a normal thing in her Jerry was a little excited. Thinking of how miserable Jonas was to lose a baby, he felt disdain. Of course, she had thought of to the result. If we do it hard, not only can the baby disappear, but also Melinda may have an abortion and knew the danger.