

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 229

The doctor had a favorable impression on the young man in front of him. It was rare for him to see a man love his wife so much in these years.

"Then how should I take care of her? She is quite emotional now." After introducing all the basic information about Melinda to the doctor, Jonas thought he'd better go to the hospital to get more information from the doctor even though he had read a lot of books.

It was true that 'a professional's lesson speak louder than a ten-year studying'. These doctors could only read more about it, and they had a lot of experience.

The combination of practice and theory was a good solution to solve the problem.

"Are you nervous about her?" the doctor said with a smile. There was a hint of banter in his eyes, which did not look as serious as usual.

"Well, I'm just worried that something might happen to her and the baby if I'm not so careless," said Jonas with embarrassment. He could tell from the doctor's words that he was wrong.

However, it was hard to judge his feeling.

"Yes, you should be more careful. But being too nervous will fetter her. You can treat her as usual," the doctor urged. Wasn't pregnancy depression especially for pregnant women in such tense circumstances? If they showed too much concern, it would make people think that they only cared about the baby, not the pregnant themselves.

Seeing the doctor's serious face, Jonas began to reflect on himself.

"Do you have any other questions?" The doctor was patient. Seeing that Jonas did not speak, the doctor was not irritated. He took a sip of tea and continued to ask.

They were living in a society where different people could only see the good-looking faces, which made them feel happy.

"No. thank you."

Jonas had made an appointment with an expert, and asked many questions. But since he didn't get any pregnancy test, he had wasted the expert a lot of time.

"You are a good husband. Your wife will be very happy," said the doctor with a smile, watching Jonas leave. He felt heavy in his heart. Was he a good husband? He had never played this role well, and had disappointed Linda every time.

'This time, I won't do it again, ' Jonas cried out in his mind definitely.

Holley had offended the Gu family before, so she had struggled in the eighteenth-class. But she made more money than her peers and lived in a place that was even more luxurious than Emily's.

When Emily arrived at Holley's home, her eyes were filled with envy.

"She must have slept with so many men to buy this house," Emily said jealously. She had seen a lot of good things as well as the living places. She used to go to Gu family frequently.
