

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 336

Melinda believed Queena's words and began to nourish the fetus at ease in the hospital. Although she had to rest in bed, Queena asked the servant to bring a lot of books to her, whether it was modern literature, ancient literature or anything else.

Of course, Melinda required more books about parenting. As a new mother to be, Melinda was actually worried that she would do a lot of things wrong, which would hurt the child.

With so many books and accompanied by an experienced person like Queena, Melinda felt that she had learned a lot. In the afternoon, Nelson, Alston and Yulia came to visit her.

Jerry was also brought here by Alston, but he was stopped outside the door by Queena for the reason that he would affect Melinda's mood and hurt the child.

Alston cared about his eldest grandson, so even if Jerry was useful to him, he still let him to stay home.

Yulia had been getting along well with her boyfriend these days, and all her attention was on him. Now she had to spare so much time to visit Melinda, so there was no smile on her face.

As soon as Nelson arrived, Queena naturally moved out from the nearest position to Melinda. Sitting next to Melinda, Nelson felt sorry for her when he saw her weak appearance.

"You have suffered a lot again." Old as he was, seeing the originally vigorous child lying on the bed, Nelson felt really upset.

As for Melinda, she was his old friend's granddaughter. He had promised many people to take good care of her, but now she was lying on the bed in the hospital.

"Grandpa, I'm not sick. My child cares about me and wants me to have more rest."

Her words successfully amused Nelson. Nelson had talked a lot with her. Melinda always respected him and liked this elder very much. She was relaxed when chatting with him.

She didn't have to worry as much as she talked to others. Moreover, she didn't like to see Nelson frown and always tried to make Nelson laugh.

In this way, she felt much better.

The conversation between Alston and Melinda was formulaic. Most of the time, he cared about the baby in Melinda's belly. Although Melinda didn't mind, Queena was unhappy. He was kicked out of the ward by Queena before he could say anything more.

Thinking that Nelson was not in good health, Melinda asked him not to stay in the hospital for too long. She asked Gavin to take Nelson home and promised him that she would take good care of herself.

After Nelson and the others left, the ward was empty all of a sudden. Queena sorted out the books for Melinda and her clothes during her hospitalization.

Being taken care of like this, Melinda felt that her mother was by her side, which made her a little flattered.
