

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 49

Realizing that he was showing off in the presence of an expert, Perry was embarrassed after being mocked. He instantly backed off from Melinda.

Melinda sighed in her heart, finally feeling a bit better. It seemed that there were always some self-righteous people coming to annoy her.

The moment Perry calmed down, he called Yulia. It only took a few rings before she answered his call.

"How is it going?" Yulia asked.

"This woman is so hard to flirt with! What you've said is useless. If anything, I think I made her impression of me even worse."

The mere thought of being kicked in the face just now made Perry sigh exasperatedly. Yulia told him that Melinda really liked literature, and that he would surely be able to talk to her by pretending to be a literary enthusiast. 'What a stupid idea! Go to hell!' he thought.

"Alright, alright. I'm trying to think of another way. Don't give up now. If it still doesn't work, we need to change our tactics. I don't believe she won't be fooled."

Yulia didn't expect that things didn't go as she had expected. She told Perry about it and then thought about how to arrange for an encounter between them. Since Melinda was an introvert, Perry wouldn't succeed if she didn't push forward,

In an attempt to attract Melinda, the man Yulia had called was handsome.

The next day, Yulia proposed to take Melinda out for fun and make some new friends. Her intimate behavior surprised everyone.

"No, thanks. I don't like strangers," Melinda politely declined.

Melinda could see from Yulia's eyes that she was up to something bad. 'Does she think I'm that stupid to go out with her? What on earth is she planning anyway?' Melinda thought.

"Come on. There's no harm in making new friends,"

Yulia said in dissatisfaction. 'Humph! Who does she think she is? Does she think she's too good to get to know other people?'

"I have to finish my work today and hand it in tomorrow. Really, I don't have time," Melinda emphasized.

Hearing this, Nelson thought that Yulia was making trouble once again. Already, he had a hunch that the friends Yulia knew couldn't possibly be nice people.

Disdain was written all over Nelson's face.

"Stop pestering her, Yulia! Let Mellie do her writing. And shouldn't you stop going out so much to have 'fun'? Haven't you learned from the last incident?"

These so-called friends of Yulia's were the ones who betrayed her at a crucial moment. Yulia remembered her past of being cheated. Her face turned pale and she grew more resentful towards Melinda. If it wasn't her grandfather's concern for Melinda, he wouldn't have even remembered the bad things that happened to Yulia.
