

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 82

Melinda knew that something had changed. She started to feel afraid the moment she felt it.

She wanted more of what she had just received.

Melinda blushed as she buried her face on his chest. It had never occurred to her that she would kiss Jonas so passionately in a foreign country and in broad daylight for everyone to see.

Jonas felt like his heart had suddenly skipped a beat. Melinda's scent engulfed him. He held her tightly in his arms, fingers tense as he struggled to maintain his self-control. He knew that he couldn't just whisk her away back to the hotel, but her scent was addictive.

"Mellie," he purred.

"Yes?" she stammered.

His voice made Melinda's heart pound faster. Still in his arms, she slowly lifted up her head and stared into the depth of his gaze.

The glow in his eyes was as bright as the stars. Nothing around them mattered to him at the moment. He only had eyes for her.

It was as if she meant the whole world to him.

"Mellie, let me take some photos for you." Jonas held up the camera he brought with them for her to see.

"You can take photos?" Melinda inquired.

She thought she already knew Jonas very well, which was why she was a bit surprised as she stared back at him curiously with the new piece of information. Melinda hadn't known that Jonas possessed some knowledge in photography.

"I searched about it online," he told her sheepishly.

He wanted to prepare for this day, so he did his best to master using it quickly. A lot of people said that if you loved someone, you would want to take a lot of good photos of them.

Jonas agreed with the saying.

Melinda obliged and happily posed for Jonas. She went along with him as Jonas took photos of her from a short distance. Once in a while, he would ask random people who passed by to take photos of both of them.

The two of them spent three days in Mauritius. Melinda secretly uploaded all of their photos in her private social account. She still couldn't believe that it was her with Jonas, who were playing on the beach.

For the second phase of their honeymoon, Melinda learned that Jonas had arranged for them a trip to Fiji. It was an island located in the South Pacific which was surrounded by numerous corals.

The three days that they had spent in Mauritius made Melinda feel a little exhausted, so they decided to take a break during their first day of arrival.

Jonas took Melinda to their hotel room to get some rest. The next morning, they went to soak in the hot spring which made Melinda feel invigorated.

Jonas thought that Melinda might still be exhausted from the previous days, so he decided to not rush her into following their itinerary. Instead, he took her to the biggest shopping mall in the area where they suddenly bumped into a person Jonas did not expect to meet.

It was a person from his rival company. What was more unexpected was that the person who accompanied him was not his wife, but instead a young woman with a slender figure. The moment their eyes met, it was evident from the man's expression that he hadn't expected to see him there as well.

man in front of them and chance. When Melinda bothered the man when Jonas decided to ignore woman?" the woman bothered at all with the possibility that her companion might be checking out other women. The man finally broke out from thought I just saw

and raised

who were both currently enjoying themselves, while they browsed through the display of stood there. He was definitely sure that He suddenly felt uneasy.

head back to the hotel first?" he

He told his wife that he was on a business me because I'm not pretty enough?" The woman frowned and crossed her arms at it was not the case and slowly steered was a businessman after all. How could he ignore an opportunity to acquire something this as well." Melinda handed over as Melinda wandered around to find several designs that she liked. She pulled Jonas along with him as she browsed through the displays, trying to find the ended up buying all of bags. As Melinda lay on their bed, her thoughts drifted back to the two people they bumped into today and how Jonas had a weird expression on know the two people from earlier?" She wasn't able to resist

"Yes," Jonas admitted.

to him curiously.

Jonas explained that the man was from his company's competitor and how he was him not long after, a looked genuinely intimate. She was definitely sure that they were not just putting up pushed the topic any further and remained silent. After all, it was not in his nature to not greet someone he bumped into. In the evening, Jonas had e-mailed definitely affect a lot of people. He was well aware sending the photos, Jonas called William and instructed him to follow up on that was about to be developed and no one was able to successfully bid on it yet. This time around, Soaring Group would easily win the clothes they shopped for the day. During the evening, however, she suddenly felt sick on your coat. I'll take you to the hospital," shoulders without any further explanation and rushed towards the hospital with her wrapped in his stomachache had betrayed her. She did not even have the Melinda had eaten something bad and was instructed by the doctor that she had to

to Jonas. "We bed, she tried to recall all the food she had eaten the whole day only to realize that she had eaten too

I am not allowing to you lot of messy food. If he only paid more attention to Melinda, she would not have suffered knew that this was entirely her fault. She did not know what