

Forgive My Ex-husband Chapter 95

When Melinda returned home, she saw Nelson playing with Momo in the yard. He had been sitting in the yard for a long time, waiting for them to arrive.

Momo snapped its head when it saw Melinda. It immediately ran towards her and began to rub its head against her leg.

Jonas envied the cat as it got to be closer to Melinda than he was.

"You're back soon. How's everything going?" Nelson asked.

"I've taken care of everything, Grandpa. Why don't you go to the room and rest? It's windy and you must take care of your health," Melinda said worriedly.

Although Nelson looked healthy, Melinda remembered how weak he had been and how much he had suffered in the past.

The night breeze swept across the yard, making the leaves dance wildly to its rhythm. Before anyone knew, it was already autumn that carried the sweet scent of flowers and moist leaves.

Jonas followed Melinda and helped Nelson get into the villa. Melinda made an excuse and went upstairs to get the marriage certificate when it was inside her bag.

Melinda took out the marriage certificate from her bag. It looked brand new without any creases or spots. If not for the date on the certificate, everyone would have thought that it was a new one.

Nelson sat in the living room and Jonas instructed Mary to make snacks and cut fruits for Nelson. He also went to the study and brought the Chinese chessboard to play with his grandfather.

"Grandpa, why don't you have dinner here? I'll cook tonight," Melinda asked as she stood behind Nelson and handed the marriage certificate to him.

Nelson eagerly took the marriage certificate and immediately looked at the date. Both Jonas and Melinda glanced at each other and heaved a sigh of relief.

"Good, good. You two are perfect for each other. I'm sure your children would be as beautiful as you two are." Nelson smiled fondly.

He was happy that his grandchildren hadn't lied to him. His happiness reached its peak when he saw Jonas smiling in the photo.

Nelson returned the certificate to Melinda. Jonas understood the hidden meaning behind his grandfather's words and stole a glance at Melinda. He saw her bite her lip as a subtle blush lined her cheeks.

"Grandpa, you continue with your game. I'll go to the kitchen to make dinner."

Melinda scurried to the kitchen. Jonas couldn't help smiling. Until now, he hadn't realized that his wife was shy. She looked incredibly cute when she blushed.

That night, Nelson restored Jonas's authority in the company.

Jonas returned to Soaring Group the next day. Some were happy to see him, while others were disappointed that he was back sooner than they had expected. The company functioned without the CEO during his absence.

William was happy to have Jonas back in the company. He told everything about the company's affairs and what had happened to Jonas when he wasn't around.
