

Feel the Way You Feel, My Love Chapter 513

The two were in a conflict, and Sally was glaring at Hannah at that moment.

Hannah, on the other hand, was smiling gleefully and had her hand up. She was holding something.

“No, I don’t think I’ll give it to you. What can you do about it?” taunted Hannah as she waved the item in her hand.

Sally was so angry that she was trembling when she growled, “Don’t overstep, woman!”

“Sal, what’s wrong?” asked Natalie as she walked over. She simply couldn’t stand watching them like that.

Sally was surprised to see Natalie there, but the former was too infuriated to ask about it. Instead, Sally pointed at Hannah and said, “She and I are chosen by our company and will be heading overseas for modeling training. She is so vile that she stole my boarding pass and is trying to stop me from flying over!”

“What?” blurted Natalie in surprise. She stared at Hannah in disbelief as she pointed out, “Aren’t you worried that the company would come after you for it?”

“What is there to be afraid of? Trix is a shareholder, and he’ll help me out,” replied Hannah arrogantly.

Natalie blinked as realization hit her. “So you’re behaving this way because you know you can get away with it.”

“What does this have to do with you? It’s her fault for not having anyone to back her up,” scoffed Hannah, “I have warned the two of you yesterday. I said that I won’t let it go, and this is the punishment you have to endure!”

After saying her piece, Hannah tore the boarding pass in half right in front of Sally.

“No!” shouted Sally. She instantly turned pale.

Natalie didn't expect Hannah to be that extreme. She tore the boarding pass without hesitating! thought Natalie as anger fumed out of her.

Hannah was delighted to see the two of them in that terrible state. She tossed the shredded boarding pass aside and planned on leaving immediately after.

Natalie narrowed her eyes and stepped forward to grab Hannah. "You think you can walk away just like that?" growled Natalie.

"What the hell are you doing? Let me go!" demanded Hannah in her sharp voice as she flung her arm.

Natalie never let go. Instead, she tightened her grip.

That got Hannah's face to distort in pain.

Natalie didn't care about that at all. Sally was on the ground picking the shredded boarding pass up when Natalie pulled her up and instructed, "Don't pick them up!"

After that, Natalie pointed at the shredded paper on the floor and ordered Hannah, "You will do it. Go pick all of them up."

"Why should I?" refuted Hannah, with her head held high.

"Because this is a public place, and you're the one who tore it!" replied Natalie as she let go of Hannah's arm.

"Awh, are you so nice that you've come all the way to the airport to butt in on others' matters? Well, in that case, why don't you pick them up?" said Hannah as she crossed her arms.

Sally's eyes were bloodshot. She looked a little tired when she tugged at Natalie's clothes and said, "It's okay, Nat. I can do it on my own. I don't want to waste my time with her, anyway. Besides, I have to figure out a way to get another plane ticket or I will lose this opportunity to go for further training."

"I will get you another plane ticket later. The urgent matter at hand is to sort this out. We can't let her go just like that. She is the one who tore and threw the boarding pass, so she should be the one who picks it up!" said Natalie as she glared at Hannah.

Hannah rolled her eyes so much that it was a miracle that they didn't pop out. She replied, "What makes you think that I'd pick them up? Let me be clear on this. No. F*cking. Way."

Natalie put on a skin-deep grin and asked, "So you're not going to pick them up. Is that it?"

"Only a b*tch would do that," said Hannah as she rolled her eyes again.

"Okay, fine. Then I will make you a b*tch," replied Natalie while smiling.

"What is that supposed to mean?" asked Sally in a confused tone.

Natalie grinned mischievously at her but didn't answer. After that, the former called the airport security over despite Hannah's uncertain stare.

"If I remember correctly, the airport has a rule, right? If someone litter with malicious intention and refused to back down afterward, they will be forced to wait for an even later flight to their destination, right?" asked Natalie with a skin-deep grin on.

Sally's eyes glowed when she finally understood what Natalie was planning to do.

Hannah caught that too, but her expression turned grouchy.

That b*tch! She's using the airport's rules to force me to comply.

The security guard had no idea what happened between the three ladies, but he answered Natalie's question. "That's right, ma'am," answered the security guard.

"Great. This woman littered and refused to back down. Please take her to the office, amend her boarding pass, and force her to forego her current flight ticket. Make her take the next flight over," said Natalie while pointing her finger at Hannah.