Chapter 516

After Sylvic came out of the office, the bodyguard outside informed her, "Ms. Sylvic, General Zcigler is here and is waiting for you outside the building."

Her breath caught in her throat, and Sylvic gave this bodyguard a quick nod before entering the elevator with him.

Outside, she saw a black Land Rover Defender parked by the curb. In its backseat sat a sturdy looking old man.

The old man had a head of black hair that gradually transitioned into white. Even though the wrinkles around his eyes gave away his age, he still had a well-built frame, sharp features, and a piercing gaze.

Just sitting quietly in the car was enough for him to exude an intimidating aura that would strike fear into anyone.

Even Sylvie was a little afraid.

Steeling herself, she got into the car and greeted nervously, "Granddad."

Sensing the tension within his granddaughter, Herbert relaxed and broke into a warm smile.

"Sylvie, did I frighten you?"

Sylvie pursed her lips, not knowing what to say. She had long since become disheartened after failing to locate her. Nonetheless, it never crossed his mind that he would one day manage to find the child his daughter had been searching for during the DNA test, and like the doting grandfather he was, Herbert reminded her in a gentle tone, "Sylvie, I'm your granddad. There's no need to fear me. Ever since I was young, I only had my mom and Herbert, filled with sorrow, lightened his grip on her hand. From now on, you will have three uncles and two aunts. You're not really scared that this is all just a dream," Sylvic remarked solily, and that you will no longer be here when it all ends. Our jet at the airport is already prepped to go. We'll be heading back home together. Also, I made sure that your mom's room has been preserved for you. It gave him a shiver all of a sudden and Sylvie sighed as he patted her head. He revealed the shaven part on the back of her head that was wrapped in a hesitation, Ilcrucii inquired with concern,

her gaze, scated in the front passenger seat. "Didn't I tell you to protect her?"

at attention and replied in a serious tone. "It was Ms. Sylvic can allow her to be bullied?" Herbert admonished him, "You have to do with him." Sylvic explained, "I just didn't
