

Gary Stu 522

Chapter 522 Armand didn't persist. After throwing the tightly shut door a glance, he followed the guards back into the elevator.

Upon reaching the first floor, he headed to the lounge in the lobby instead of leaving.

When his phone suddenly rang, he answered it anxiously but was disappointed to hear Steven's voice instead of Genevieve's.

Steven asked, "Mr. Faulkner, where are you? You're ncceded at the office."

* Just let it be. I don't give a damn anymore," Armand replied calmly before ending the call.

I need Genevieve, but who can help me?

Armand opened the old metal box and took out a faded photograph. It was a wedding picture of a young couple.

Facing the camera, both of their smiles were filled with joy, as if their bliss had been frozen in time.

When he arrived at the final photograph, he noticed that there was something written on the back. He recognized the handwriting to be the same as the one on the letter.

It read: I'm a true believer in being down to earth and would see everything for its own nature. However, at the sight of you, I felt the sky crack and the waves raging in the ocean. Without saying a word, I, together with every living creature in this world, am instinctively drawn to you.

back to how strict his father was when he was a child, Armand was surprised that and digested the adoring words behind them, the table in front of him was brimming with cigarette butts, and yet, he still had one between his into the metal box, he glanced at his phone and calculated the time at Dartan

squeaky voice frustration within him dissipated. He tensed up.

later, Amanda replied dejectedly, "When I called you previously, you didn't pick up. Therefore, I thought that he had had no time to check his missed calls at