Chapter 661

“What the heck?” “Timothy couldn’t believe his cars. “Genevieve, when did you give birth to the child?”

Genevieve was rendered speechless.

After knowing the children hadn’t had breakfast, Johanna asked Timothy to take them to get some food.

Once they had left, Johanna held Genevieve’s hand and chatted with her non-stop. Seeing her like that, no one could have imagined she was a patient who had just woken up from several months of being in a coma.

Later, she heaved a sigh upon looking at her protruding belly. “I was shocked when I woke up and saw my big round belly. I thought I was in a dream...”

After all, she only read the news about pregnant women in a vegetative state but never thought it would happen to her.

Genevieve poured a glass of water and put a straw in it for Johanna. “Timothy initially wanted to abort the baby. However, he decided to keep the baby as he was worried about the risk of the surgery. Also, he has been taking care of you since you were admitted to the hospital.”

After Timothy learned that the two children were Armands, he liked them even more. He kept carrying Amanda in his arms and they even walked together.

Upon completing his purchase and returning to the ward, he kissed her cheek again. "You can call me 'Daddy' in the future, Mandy. I'll raise you and your brother as my own children."

She shook her head. "I only have one day. I won't let you take advantage of me, Uncle Tim."

When Timothy heard that, he sighed a little. Armand sure is lucky to have such an adorable daughter!

Initially, Timothy wanted Genevieve and the kids to stay for lunch, but Genevieve thought Johanna should rest. Coincidentally, Jack called, so she left with the children.

Jack accompanied Genevieve and the children for a few days, taking them on short trips around the city.

After a while, he received a call from his secretary asking him to return to Dartan. Genevieve was worried she wouldn't be able to keep the children safe, so she wanted them to return with him.

Upon reaching the airport, Amanda wrapped her arms around Genevieve and refused to let go.

She kissed her mother again and again before staring at her with a pitiful look. "If you miss me, give me a call, Mommy."

He picked her up and placed her in

Genevieve glanced at the rear view mirror and saw the man behind her. Even though the police and Cooper's men are looking for him, he still managed to escape their search and hide in my car!

The sound of a trigger pull was clear in the quiet car. She understood she couldn't resist him willy-nilly, lest she would endanger her own life.

Xavier climbed into the passenger seat and caught her hand with hers. After putting the gun away, he picked up the phone on the armrest box.

"Drive," he coldly ordered. He used her hand to unlock her phone and called Cooper's number.

Genevieve turned her keys and started the engine.

As he waited for the call to be connected, he gave her a side glance. "I know you're as crafty as Cooper, Genevieve. Play any tricks, and you die."

Genevieve calmly asked, "Did Sylvie help you break out of jail?"

Genevieve fell to the ground, feeling as though every single organ in her body was wrenching in pain.

"The Honda wanted to run over her once again, but the vehicle's rear tires were abruptly shot.

After stabilizing the car, the driver escaped the scene.

Genevieve forced herself to open her eyes. She vaguely saw a figure running toward her. Before recognizing who the person was, she found it more and more difficult to breathe and eventually went into a coma.

When Armand arrived in a hurry and saw her lying in a pool of blood, his heart stopped for a moment.

Thankfully, he had already called an ambulance when he drove there. He also had a couple of blood bags with him.

After carrying her into the ambulance, he watched the medical staff rescue her as they put the respirator on her.

He grabbed her hand tightly, his whole body tense from anxiousness.

When the ambulance arrived at a nearby hospital, Cooper had already arrived in a hurry, too.

Carrying Genevieve out of the vehicle, Cooper stopped Armand from following and kept him inside the ambulance. "Don't forget that you're not

After leaving the hospital. Jack asked the driver to call Sylvic and give her an address. Thien, he arrived at a private room in a club and ordered a bottle of whiskey.

In less than fifteen minutes, Sylvic arrived at the club.

She wore a beige jacket with a weed skirt and a pair of white boots. Her delicate face, combined with her clothing, made her appear as though she was a superior celebrity.

Upon entering the private room, she saw Jack sitting on the couch. Fear crawled into her body.

He was the only person who knew how to push her buttons.

If he wanted her to die, she would.

Feeling the murderous intent exuding from Jack, Sylvic shuddered. "His name is Bruce Gable. He was blacklisted after being accused of perpetrating domestic violence. After that contract with Genevieve Orsi Productions. He didn't have any resources after he resurfaced. However, ever since Genevieve returned, the big-ups of Genevieve Orsi Productions had begun to pay attention to him."

She was jealous of Genevieve and resented her. Even though she just stood there not doing anything, Cooper, Armand, and an Jack could automatically fall in love with her. She always has everything she wants! This is so unfair.

After he looked at the pictures. Jack stulled them back into the envelope. "Remember what I said, Sylvie. If you plan to harm my wife again..."

He revealed a cold smirk on his face and continued, "I'll mummify you alive and put you in front of your mother's grave."

His vicious threat sent goosebumps all over Sylvie's skin. Her head was hung so low that it was almost touching her chest.

After the sounds made by his leather shoes disappeared and the door to the private room closed, she finally relaxed. She pressed her hand on her chest and breathed heavily.

I thought I was vicious enough with my methods in order to obtain what I wanted. However, I've encountered an even more vicious opponent, Jack. I/ Jack knows about that...

Her body shuddered uncontrollably before she swiftly calmed down. The only person who knew about that was Jermaine, who was dead. I just need to wait and get the money. Then I'll escape overseas and change my face. After that, no one will be able to find me.

The doctor cut the hair around her injury before sewing her wound and applying ointment to it.

As Sylvic's face was still pale and her abdomen was causing her pain, Zayne brought her to do an ultrasound. It was then discovered that her spleen was bleeding severely.

The doctor quickly pushed her into the operating room.

Once that was done, she was transferred to a ward. She was incredibly frail as she lay in bed, her face as pale as a sheet.

As she took the cup from his hand, her fingers accidentally touched the back of his hand.

She reflexively pulled her hand back due to the static shock caused by dryness

Zayne found that a little funny. After he stopped chuckling, he held the cup by the bottom and gave it to her "No static shock this time"

Sylvie grabbed the cup and sipped some water. She then stared at him and asked Do
