Remarriage Never And Go Away

Chapter 261

Chapter 261 Not Worthy

The two remained silent as the car arrived at the old house.

Jordy got out of the car alone.

Gloria frowned and opened the car door, unaware of her swollen lips.

As for Jordy...

There were bruises on his cheek. They were not noticeable but visible.

One after another, they entered the old house of the Collins family.

The butler saw their looks and got the picture.

Mr. Collins kissed Ms. White and got beaten.

But...

He felt that something was not right. Mr. Collins had no feelings for Ms. White for three years. How come he falls for her after they get divorced?

Am I wrong?

Is this just an accident?

Jordy remained calm as he asked, "Where is my grandma?"

"The old lady went upstairs to rest after dinner," the butler replied in a natural and respectful manner.

Gloria pursed her lips but said nothing.

Jordy took a cursory look at her and said, "Wait here."

He then went upstairs.

Gloria furrowed her brows. The butler smiled at her and said, "Ms. White, please take a seat. I'm going to make coffee for you."

"It's okay, Dale. I'll leave in a minute, and I'm not thirsty," she declined.

The butler hummed, noticed her sullen face, and sighed under his breath. Ms. White was a nice lady, but Mr. Collins didn't like her.

What a shame!

Sigh...

Jordy went upstairs and knocked on the door.

"Grandma, I'm here to see you."

Karen's voice was listless. "I'm sleepy. You can go."

The old lady seemed to be in no mood to talk to anyone, her grandson included.

Jordy frowned and said, "Gloria is also here. Would you like to come downstairs?"

Karen was surprised. "Is she?"

"Yeah, she is downstairs." Jordy tried to sound as natural as he could and did his best to forget about what he had done to that woman.

A few breaths away, Karen opened the door. Her face was no longer that haggard. "I'm going to see her!"

She raised her head, took an inadvertent look at Jordy, and saw his swollen cheek. Her brows were locked in a frown as she asked, "What happened to your face?" Jordy pursed his lips. "An accident. She is waiting for you downstairs. Go and see her." Karen looked at Jordy with skepticism and did not rush to go. Instead, she touched the bruises on his face with great care. While drawing back her hand, she asked with a frown, "Did your mother hit you again?" She was not there when Olivia hit him last time. If she were, Olivia would have been stopped. Who did Angela think she was? The apartment of her grandson was not open to everyone. Did Angela fancy herself as the hostess of the Collins family? She was not worthy! Olivia shouldn't have hit Jordy because of Angela. Jordy frowned and replied, "No." "You're still defending your mother. Don't you know how stupid she was that she let Angela go to your villa?"

The expression in Jordy's eyes changed. He couldn't agree more with what his grandma said this time.

"Alas, what a sin... Breaking up Gloria and you is the most unwise thing she has done! You're a perfect match!" the old lady lamented.

Jordy's eyes were tinted with astonishment. He held onto Karen's arm and said, "Grandma, let's go down."

The old lady shook her head and said, "Apply some ointment later. You can't leave it as it is."

"I know."

The old lady nodded and went downstairs with Jordy,

Gloria looked uneasy when she was standing in the living room. Karen saw her and said in a hurry, "Girl, why are you standing there? Come and take a seat. Why didn't come up and see me?"

Gloria's eyes flickered before she replied with a smile, "I didn't since Jordy went up."

At the sight of Gloria, Karen ignored Jordy and quickened her pace.

Before long, she came downstairs. With a smile, Gloria went over to support the old lady from the other side.

Karen looked at Gloria with gentle eyes before the sight of Gloria's swollen lips surprised her.

"Your mouth..."

Gloria's eyebrows twitched as she realized something. Ashamed of it, she grabbed the old lady's arm and said, "Karen, let's go and take a seat."

dIn

Skepticism was visible in her eyes. Karen captured Gloria's emotions, looked back at the hand print on her grandson's face, and laughed.

What is going on?

She wondered and laid her eyes on Jordy's sexy lips.

Jordy was stunned.

And so was Gloria.

Karen must have figured out something!

Damn man! He caused her trouble even after they got divorced.

Karen chuckled. "Good!"

Gloria was petrified.

And so was Jordy.

Unable to hold back anymore, Gloria explained in a hurry, "Karen, it's not like that."

Karen laughed out loud. "Yeah, it is not!"

She said so, but her smile gave away her thought. Now the pent-up melancholy was all gone.

Jordy winked at Gloria, warning her against saying anything improper. Karen was rarely so happy. She pursed her lips and gave up explaining it.

She shut her mouth.

Karen grinned at them and asked, "What brings you two here?"

Gloria glared at the man who had lied to her.

Oblivious to it, Jordy said in an unhurried way, "You asked me to select some clothes for her. I've brought them over."

A flicker of amazement flashed across Karen's eyes. "So soon! You didn't skimp on it, did you?"

Gloria was confused.

Didn't Karen say she would stay out of their business?

Karen realized her improper speech and corrected herself, "Ahem, I told him to prepare the clothes before our trip to Temple Lucius. He should fulfill his promise."

Chapter 263 He Has His Own Plans

Gloria's eyes flickered as she found Karen's words reasonable.

Jordy nodded to the butler. The latter waved at the servants who then pushed over several racks.

Various clothes were hanging. Each one was custom-made to Gloria's size and looked tasteful. At a glance, she could tell that they were handpicked.

She knew that they were made according to Jordy's instructions.

Karen was overjoyed. "Good job! Beautiful! Kid, you've finally done something that makes me proud!"

Jordy pursed his lips.

Karen turned to look at Gloria and said, "Gloria, take a look at these clothes and see if you like any."

Jordy also looked over, but Gloria remained calm and nodded. "Pretty good."

Her response was perfunctory, and Jordy's face turned cold.

Karen, however, was happy because it meant that she accepted these clothes. This was a good start.

"Good! pack them up and send them to Gloria's place!"

The butler smiled and instructed the servants to pack the clothes.

The old lady grinned from ear to ear, but Gloria was quieter than usual.

Karen's eyes glimmered with guilt. She took Gloria's hand in hers and apologized, "Gloria, I am sorry for what Joseph has done!"

Gloria shook her head and said, "It's not your fault. As for Joseph, he has got a granddaughter-in-law he likes. It's his business and has nothing to do with you."

Jordy frowned upon hearing that.

Karen gritted her teeth and said, "Yesterday, Joseph received a call from Olivia and went over. I didn't stop him because I didn't know he was going to release that statement. If I knew, I would have threatened him with a divorce! What is done cannot be undone. I'm sorry that I failed you."

"I'll take care of it," Jordy interposed in a deep voice.

Karen was so angry that she laughed and looked at Jordy. "How are you going to do that? Your mother, your grandfather, and you are on the same side. Has any of you considered others' feelings? Open your eyes and see if Angela is worthy of your gratitude. Can't you see that something is off?"

Jordy furrowed his brows. "Grandma, that's prejudice. She saved my life. No one can argue about that."

"Argh!" Karen shook her head with disappointment.

Gloria found her presence there redundant. Although Karen was nice to her, it couldn't change the fact that she was a member of the Collins family. Gloria, who used to be the young hostess of the family, found her current situation awkward. She was in a dilemma. She wanted to leave, but Karen was upset now.

Jordy had no intention of leaving. On the contrary, he was patient enough to explain, "I will focus on Collins Group for the time being and leave the other things aside."

He was implying that he would not marry Angela now and that he had his own plans.

Karen just gave a cold laugh.

Chapter 264

Chapter 264 Squandering Health

“You’re not taking care of it now. It doesn’t mean you won’t get married. Jordy, failing Gloria is the biggest mistake you’ve made in your life. I have done everything within my power and will not urge you two to be together again. I don’t want to lose Gloria because of you.”

Jordy’s pupils contracted, and his face turned sullen.

Gloria was relieved to hear that and curled her lips. “Thank you, Karen.”

Karen’s heart tingled. Gloria thanked her... She talked like this only when she felt relaxed.

Alas...

She had lost her granddaughter-in-law.

It broke her heart.

Karen grasped Gloria’s hand and said, “You have my word. No matter what happens, I will always protect you. As for what happened this time, I’ll help you clarify it!”

“Karen.”

Two voices rang out at the same time.

They glanced at each other.

Karen looked at the two who was each other’s soulmate. It was a shame that they got divorced.

As Jordy pursed his lips, Gloria whispered, “Since it has happened, there is no need to clarify anything. I’m content to hear your promise.”

The veins on Jordy’s forehead popped.

Noticing the change in Karen’s expression, Gloria continued with a smile, “Every time I get close to Jordy, something unexpected will happen, and I will be in a difficult situation. In my opinion, if I stop associating with him, I’ll be more like myself and no longer get bogged down by the title of Mrs. Collins.”

Gloria said this because Karen and she were close. She also hoped that Karen would keep her promise.

Karen’s effort to get them together had given her too much pressure.

Jordy darted a penetrating look at Gloria. He was trying to see through her thoughts.

Unfortunately...

There wasn’t the slightest desire in her clear eyes.

Karen closed her eyes and sighed. “I see. I will stay out of your business. Gloria, starting today, you will be my granddaughter.”

Gloria smiled and said, “Good.”

Pursing his lips, Jordy had enough of the subject and continued with his speech that had been interrupted by Gloria. “I won’t let the matter ferment. I’ll take care of it.”

Sarcasm was distinct in Gloria’s eyes. How?

With Olivia and Joseph involved in it, he would make a mess.

Karen was not convinced either. She sighed and said, “Forget it, do whatever you see fit. I will not meddle in it.”

She could tell that Gloria didn’t want her to interfere.

Jordy hummed and stopped talking.

Gloria chatted with Karen for a while, checked the time, and said with a smile, "It's getting late, and I have some files to sort out. I should get going."

"Do you have to work at such late hours? You should take care of yourself. Both of you are like this, thinking you're young and squandering your health!"

Gloria nodded in agreement. "You're right about that."

"Forget it, you can go now, both of you. It's time for me to get some rest." Karen heaved a sigh and waved her hand.

Chapter 265 Who! Who Is It?

Gloria smiled and nodded. "I'll get you back to your room."

"It's okay. Dale, see Gloria home and take the clothes with you."

The butler hummed in obedience.

Gloria smiled with her eyes. It seemed Karen had taken her advice this time. If it were in the past, – she would have asked Jordy to ride her home.

Jordy looked unhappy but said in a bland voice, "I should get going."

Disappointed, Karen snorted and watched her grandson leave.

Gloria left with the servants assigned by the butler.

She sighed under her breath. What the Collins family did this time was disappointing, but she would not retaliate against them for the sake of Karen. Retaliation would only make things worse. Besides, she knew that Jordy's grandmother and father couldn't do anything on Twitter. As long as the other party didn't cross the line, she would let the matter drop.

She mulled it over on her way home. When they arrived at their destination, the servants carried the clothes into her apartment and then left.

After they were gone, she checked her phone, found no new messages, and went to the bathroom.

She took off her clothes and turned on the shower. The sight of her lips in the mirror surprised her. She leaned over for a closer look, saw that her lips were swollen, and changed color.

A few hours passed, but her lips remained swollen. Wasn't it more noticeable earlier when she was at Karen's place?

Gloria took a deep breath and blushed with anger. She didn't know what went wrong with that man.

During the three years of their marriage, she had been looking forward to a kiss. It was shameful that the kiss came after they got divorced.

She couldn't forget the sarcasm and mockery in Jordy's eyes. He looked at her in such a way as if she was a clown.

He would be the husband of her cousin, and she made out with him in his car.

It felt like she had crossed the bottom line. She was disgusted with both Jordy and herself.

She would not give Jordy another chance to stay with her.

The night passed. Gloria woke up the next morning, only to find the rumors online all gone. There wasn't any more comment. Searching with their names, one would see no results.

Even Jonathan's tweet disappeared.

Gloria's eyes flickered with bewilderment. How did Jordy persuade Jonathan to delete it?

She sneered. Jordy was quite efficient though.

Things had fermented for days. What was the point?

Gloria put her phone down and stopped thinking about it. Just as she was going to wash up, her phone beeped as a WhatsApp message came in.

Gloria looked over

"Good morning, my princess. Are you up?" It was from Jonathan.

Gloria's brows furrowed. She had no intention of replying to it.

Another message came and puzzled her.

"My tweet was taken down by Jordy. I didn't delete it. I am going to repost it."

"No! Be decent, would you?"

Jonathan was about to repost it when a message popped up. He flashed a smile as he found Gloria's reaction cute.

He then posted something at random.

"Someone demands decency from me today. She is so cute."

It made an instant splash on Twitter.

Someone with the account name 'My husband Jonathan' commented, "Who? Who is it? Gloria? Ah... No! Give me a chance to compete with her fair and square!"

Another person with the account name 'Call Me Candy' commented, "Wake up! They share the same bad taste. You stand no chance."

Someone with the account name 'Shallow' commented, "That's a good one, Imao!"

Jonathan read the comment with a smile in his eyes. For the first time, he found himself childish.

He then sent Gloria another message.

"Oops, I've posted it."

Gloria bristled and gave Jonathan a call.

Jonathan answered the phone in no time, "Good morning, my princess."

His voice was magnetic, gentle, and indulgent. Gloria frowned and asked, "What it will take for you to let me go, Jonathan Brown?"

Jonathan chuckled as she was finally willing to call him by his full name.

She used to call him Mr. Brown, which was annoying. His eyes full of indulgence, he said in a soft voice, "If you agree to marry me, you'll be my princess and only one. If you refuse..."

Gloria's brows furrowed, but the attractive voice came again. "I'll keep badgering you." Gloria was speechless.

"Are you going to the office? I can give you a ride," Jonathan said in a natural voice, oblivious to Gloria's reaction.

Gloria took a breath and said, "If you keep on acting like this, we can no longer be friends."

"Courting you is my right. If I stop doing this, will you be my friend?" Jonathan got straight to the point.

Gloria didn't know what to say.

"If I don't court you, you won't get close to me. If I do, you may not agree, so why don't I give it a try? I may succeed, who knows?" The man chuckled on the other end of the phone. His voice was pleasant to the ear.

But...

Gloria's face turned sullener. What was the point?

"Jonathan."

"Alright, enough for the joke. I'm on my way to the office. If you're available today, feel free to drop by. I'll always be here, and no one will intercept you."

Gloria pursed her lips as something occurred to her. A trip to his office was indeed necessary. She thought to herself and whispered, "I'll be there."

I

Surprised to hear that, Jonathan said, "Okay, when?"

"In an hour."

"Okay."

After hanging up the phone, Gloria washed up and prepared to leave.

She went to the law firm but on an irregular basis. The employees had no complaints about that since she was the boss. Her expertise was convincing after all.

Even if Irene were her boss, she could go to the office as she liked. She deserved such privilege.

Gloria wasn't flaunting it. She was just too busy.

After packing the things, she had breakfast and set off.

Over the years, Gloria had kept a balanced diet. Even if she was in a bad mood, got bullied by that man, or had no appetite, she would not go on hunger strike. To stay healthy, she had ever skipped breakfast.

There wasn't much traffic on the road. In an hour, she arrived at the office building of Brown Group.

This place was as magnificent and fascinating as the office building of Collins Group.

Gloria had been there several times but only to go through the motions.

She had never appreciated that place.

When she was in the mood to do it, she was at the office building of Brown Group.

Chapter 267 Tears of Envy

Deep down, she didn't want to see this.

Gloria entered the building.

The executives of Brown Group had prepared this meeting for months, but Mr. Brown called it off.

And he didn't give an exact answer as to when to hold it.

Jonathan stood them up, but no one could challenge him. They understood it and believed that he had something more important to do.

Still, they couldn't help talking about it.

"Is there anything important on Mr. Brown's schedule? Can we have the meeting today?" asked Mr.

Evans.

"Hard to say. Mr. Brown has always been punctual. He made an exception today probably for an emergency," Mr. Murray said.

"Anyway, the meeting will be held, and we should get prepared," Mr. Clarke said.

Full of doubts, people commented one after another. Jonathan had always been time-conscious.

He had never been late for anything, and his decisions had never been changed before.

What was this important thing that made him act out of the ordinary?

Gloria's arrival surprised the receptionist. After all, Gloria had been the woman of the hour lately and the object of their boss's confession.

It was surprising that she appeared in the office building of Brown Group. Is she really entangled with Mr. Brown?

Oblivious to the watchful eyes, Gloria got on Jonathan's dedicated elevator because she didn't want to run into anyone. It was great that no one else dared to take this elevator.

The receptionist called the secretary who transferred the call to Jonathan.

As soon as the line got through, the receptionist reported, "Sir, Ms. White has gone up on your dedicated elevator."

Jonathan smiled with his eyes. This was nice.

He knew that Gloria was not a fan of trouble, but her action highlighted her status.

Without a doubt,

many people in the office would talk about it.

He was glad to see their relationship getting ambiguous.

"I see."

Jonathan responded before hanging up the phone.

He started to look forward to Gloria's arrival.

There was an uproar in the internal chat group of the company.

The receptionist posted a photo of Gloria, and the others commented on it. "No doubt about it. She is drop-dead gorgeous! Gloria is beautiful. As a woman, I don't envy but admire her!" commented Kathryn from the Foreign Ministry. "That makes two of us!" commented Bonnie from the Secretary Department. "So what? At the end of the day, she is a divorced woman! How could Mr. Brown possibly fall for her? He is just using her!" commented Julian from the Sales Department. "Is this a joke? Mr. Brown told me not to intercept Ms. White, and she took Mr. Brown's dedicated elevator, okay? Do you know what it means?" commented Denise the receptionist. "She is Norma, remember? Norma has helped Mr. Brown a lot. Isn't that normal?" commented Julian. "Oh my God!" Bonnie commented. "Ah, she has gone up. Tears of envy," Denise commented. Before long, hundreds of people left their comments, and the entire building was soon a madhouse.

Chapter 268 Domestic And Economic

Everyone's face fell immediately at the sudden news, before they were busy gossiping about why Jonathan had suddenly called off the meeting.

They were in one office now. One minute ago, their topic had been about work, but now... it had become Gloria and Jonathan.

"Now her again!" Mr. Evans's face was grim, "This woman has repeatedly changed Mr. Brown's decisions. She's been bringing uncertainty. Mr. Brown sees no one else but her now. What if she brings trouble to the Brown Group?"

Mrs. Walsh had the same ugly look. The displeasure on her cold face was stark. "This woman's purpose is obvious. She's come for Mr. Brown for sure. It would do great damage if we just let her win! And it wouldn't look good if he just takes a woman that Jordy doesn't want anymore!"

"You're right! We shouldn't let her keep captivating Mr. Brown!" said Mr. Evan in a hollow voice.

Mr. Campbell frowned, "You might be right, but do you really think you can do anything about it? Without Norma, we wouldn't have had the chance to win the case last time. Who else could shake the George-dominated situation?"
only Norma! Only Gloria!

Mr. Brown's connection with her couldn't be broken off!
Otherwise, with George, the Brown Group's cases would constantly be losing, which wouldn't do any good to the Group.
Silence suddenly befell them.

Mr. Evans frowned, "So we just let it happen? She'll bring us in the gutter sooner or later!"

Mr. Campbell raised his eyes to him, "Let me ask you, is there any other woman who could bring tens of billions of benefits to Mr. Brown?"

"A marriage alliance is very possible!"

"The Brown Group is already extremely powerful now. cooperation would still be win-win. Without that, our cooperation would still work really well!"

In the meanwhile, Gloria arrived at Jonathan's office door.

Hearing the knocking, Jonathan said with a smile, "Come in."

Gloria turned the doorknob and walked in. Jonathan was sitting in his personal chair and smiling at her, while she walked up and put a bank card on his desk.

Secretary Leslie had something to report to Jonathan and had just arrived at his door. She was ready to knock but her hand froze in the air. She was curious about what she saw. Why was Miss White handing Mr. Brown a bank card?

Jonathan cared not a bit whether there was anyone at his door, and had no idea if the one had seen it or not. He just looked at the bank card on his desk and gave a half smile, "Why is Miss White doing this? Are you trying to be my sugar mommy?"

Leslie's mind was blown!

Jesus Christ!!!

Mr. Brown had actually really said that!

She had heard rumors about him being a dandy, but nobody had ever seen him really be flirtatious with any woman or heard him say things like that to any woman before!

But now!

She had actually heard his sweet talks! Lord in heaven, her ears were going to be pregnant!

Gloria seemed to have gotten used to Jonathan's playful words. Just as she was about to open her mouth after the twitch in the corners of her lips, Jonathan suddenly said with a smile:

"I'm very domestic, and economic. How much have you prepared for me in it?"

Leslie's mind exploded again.

Her eyes were wide open. Arguably speaking, she should be here when his boss had a private meeting with someone, but...

Remarriage Never And Go Away Chapter 269

Remarriage Never And Go Away

Chapter 269

Chapter 269 I'll Surely Take It

She had forgotten it all. She just watched it with a stunned look on her face, standing there right in the middle of his door, with her raised hand frozen still in the air.

Her breathing must have gotten louder. Gloria turned her head slowly, when Jonathan looked in the same direction.

Leslie suddenly came to herself and blurted, "I'm sorry, Mr. Brown. I didn't mean to eavesdrop. 1...

I have a report to make.”

Jonathan was in a good mood, so he just said lightly, “You can come back later.”

Leslie was a bit surprised. Though Mr. Brown always had a glum face, he put the shoe on the right foot. What she had done just now would normally have gotten herself so many punishments by him!

But now, he had let her go just like nothing had happened! Jonathan was one of that kind that, if he didn't tell it right in your face, he would ask you anymore afterward.

Leslie hurried to respond appreciatively, “Yes, Mr. Brown!”

Then she ran away clutching the files in her hands.

Now there were only the two of them in the office. Jonathan stood with a smile on his face, “I should close the door in case someone comes to disturb us.”

Gloria frowned. She hadn't closed the door because she had wanted to finish with him and leave, but now Jonathan had closed the door.

Jonathan turned around. He checked her up and down and broke into a smile, “You look great in your business suit. Graceful and professional!”

Gloria gave a half smile, “Thanks.”

Jonathan walked next to Gloria and stopped his steps. Looking at the woman in front of him, he felt the urge to pull her into his arms for one moment!

use

The woman was unbelievable! In the beginning, when he first approached her, he had wanted to use her, and cooperate with her as well.

But now...

It had become real. He wanted to be with her.

It had all happened very fast and before he had ever known, he had already fallen for her.

He didn't intend to tell her any of that, because if he told her now, she wouldn't believe a word of it.

Instead, she would think of him to be frivolous.

Gloria looked at his soft eyes on herself and opened her mouth, “In it is the money I'm returning to you. We had a deal before I promised to help you with the case. I won't charge you a penny more.”

“Yes, we had a deal. This is the extra money from the project. It should all be yours.”

Gloria frowned a bit and obviously didn't intend to take it. Jonathan knew her very well.

She had come in person to break with him by giving him the bank card.

“You can give it to me in another way.

Gloria gave him a confused look.

A smile played on Jonathan's lips. “I just told you. I will surely take the money if you promise to be my sugar mommy.”

Gloria gave him a speechless look, “Whatever.”

The smile in Jonathan's eyes became brighter as he said, “Would you like to stay for lunch? Since you're my sponsor now, why don't I take you for a look around at Brown Group? If you have your eye on some project, I'll let you take charge of it.”

Gloria blinked. Jonathan was really into it and tried to draw her to his side. If his enemy hadn't been Jordy, maybe they could get along and even become friends. This man was smart and had it in himself to do things with grace and balance. Cooperation was possible, but... She could just break Granny's and her father-in-law's hearts. "No, thanks. I should be going to work," she turned to leave, but her arm was suddenly taken by him.

Chapter 270 Miss White Has Given Mr. Brown A Bankcard

Gloria frowned a little. She turned to look at this man.

Jonathan surveyed her, "Gloria, sometimes, you don't have to carry everything on your shoulders by yourself. If you're afraid that they might be worried for you, you can tell me. I'll be your rock."

He sounded serious and sincere, which Gloria almost took in. Then the man walked near her slowly and whispered softly in her ear, "Who would give me sugar if my sponsor is in trouble?"

Gloria couldn't help but blink again. This man was unbelievable!

She hurried to rid herself of his hand and left in a panic after blurting out three words, "I'll see you."

Nothing but just those three words.

Jonathan didn't run after her but only smiled. He walked to his desk and with his eyes on the bank card, he pulled out his phone.

In Collins Group.

Harold was in Jordy's office, reporting his recent schedules to him, "Mr. Collins, you have a business dinner tonight. It was scheduled earlier with Mr. Sainz."

Jordy nodded slightly without saying a word.

Harold was a little hesitant and didn't leave immediately, which caught Jordy's attention.

"Do you have something else?" asked Jordy.

There was something subtle in Harold's expression. Jordy had ordered him to report everything Jonathan had done. And this time, what Jonathan had done had something to do with Gloria. He didn't know if Jordy could take it.

"Um..."

Jordy's face became colder, "Spit it out!"

Harold took a breath and finally opened his mouth, "Mr. Brown tweeted something this morning."

Jordy frowned and said nothing.

"Mr. Brown said someone is the cutest," said Harold as he fumbled for his phone.

The atmosphere in the office suddenly tensed!

However, when he clicked into Twitter, there was another trending topic about Jonathan!

Jonathan has posted two tweets for Miss Mysterious!

the topic was as it said, but everybody knew who the tweets were about!

Harold's face became subtler, "He tweeted again just now."

He didn't see what the second tweet was about but handed his phone directly to Jordy

Jordy took it over and clicked in.

(Jonathan: Having a sugar mommy is the best. Waiting for her next feeding.)

There was also a picture with a bank card in it. And the number of the bank card...

"Go find out!" Jordy's voice was cold to the extreme! The atmosphere in the office kept tensing!

On the screen of the phone that Jordy had handed back, Harold saw Jonathan's second tweet at the first glance. His face changed slightly.

He didn't leave immediately. Instead, he looked at Jordy's glum face, took a deep breath, and said it anyway, "Miss White went to Brown Group this morning. Mr. Brown pushed a meeting back for her."

Bang!

Jordy slammed his fist on the desk all of a sudden, his eyes cold as ice, "Go on!"

Harold's face changed slightly. Normally, whatever he reported, Mr. Collins would tell him what to do when he finished, or keep silent if he had nothing to tell him, and he'd just leave in silence.

But now, Mr. Collins had not only interrupted him, but also became infuriated. For Miss White, did he still...

With another breath taken, Harold had but to open his mouth again, "Then... Miss White came out a moment later. And Rumor in the company has it that Miss White has given Mr. Brown a bankcard."
