

Remarriage Never And Go Away

Chapter 9

Chapter 9 Another Condition

Gloria corrected him with a smile, "No, ex-wife"

Jonathan was a detached person, but he was still shocked, "Ex-wife?"

Gloria raised her hand, "Mr. Brown, I'm Norma. Nice to meet you."

She had met him many times as Mrs. Collins. But this was the first time she met him as Norma,

Jonathan shook hands with her with a faint smile, "Why did you get divorced?"

Irene was a little angry and said, "Mr. Collins had an affair. Norma..."

"Irene..." Gloria interrupted her and winked at her, trying to tell her not to mention private matters.

She turned back to Jonathan and said, "Mr. Brown, we know how important this case is to your Brown Group. so we will take it seriously. You don't have to trust Mr. Collins' ex-wife Gloria, but you should trust Norma Besides, I have no reason to ruin my reputation."

Jonathan narrowed his eyes slightly. After a moment, he chuckled,

"George will deal with the case for Jordy. I think no one is a match for him but you."

George, an elite lawyer, had never lost a case. Many lawyers were afraid to be his opponents in the courts. He and Jordy grew up together.

Some people said that George was the second Norma. If they could be opposing lawyers in court, the trial must be very wonderful.

This was why Jonathan took so much trouble to hire Norma,

But now...

It was such a coincidence and the whole thing became more interesting.

Irene nodded with a smile. "You're right! You need a lawyer for this case anyway, right? George is so excellent and only Norma is a match for him. Moreover, she doesn't need to be Mr. Collins' spy and pry into your information, right?"

Jonathan nodded with a look of approval, but he was not in a hurry to get down to the business, "You are right. Shall we... eat first?"

Then he asked the waiter to serve the dishes, and then introduced the dishes and wine to them.

Gloria picked up her fork and looked at Jonathan, "If I had known that you were so hospitable, I should have met you this morning."

Jonathan smiled, "You always appeared with your husband before, and I never got a chance to talk to you. You two loved each other, didn't you? Why did you suddenly get divorced?"

Jonathan picked up the glass and smiled, "Don't you want a drink?"

"No, drinking will do harm to health. I heard that you had a stomach problem? Let's just eat."

Jonathan smiled and said as if implying something, "Oh, I didn't expect that you care about' me so much.

And you even know that I have a stomach problem?"

Gloria's hand holding the fork froze. The next moment, she smiled and continued to eat.

Then she just ate seriously in silence, looking very elegant.

Jonathan ate leisurely like a noble prince.

However, Irene wasn't in the mood to eat.

She glanced at Jonathan with a worried look from time to time. He didn't seem to trust them?

Jonathan didn't look at Gloria again until Gloria put down her fork, "This was the first time we have ever met you, Norma, but you surprised me."

Gloria smiled, "Good, I will bring you more surprises."

Jonathan raised an eyebrow with an interested look, "I'm looking forward to it."

Irene coughed softly, "Well... We're almost done. Let's get down to the business?"

Gloria looked at Jonathan with a calm look. "I have known the specific situation. We can win the lawsuit, and I'm very satisfied with your pay, but I have another condition."