

The God Of Medicine Son-in-law Chapter 17 -

“Why are so many people suddenly surrounded on the road?”

“Is something wrong with the opposite Spring Festival Hall?”

In the traditional Chinese medicine store, Li Yan was just sitting in the hall. Seeing this, he hurried to send his disciples to check the situation.

“What? The rejuvenation hall has blinded people’s eyes?”

Li Yan frowned slightly and said to the two disciples, “let’s go and have a look.”

Because the woman refused to take her husband to the hospital. At this time, Wu Yaqing could only do it herself. She moved out a table and chair. At the gate of the medical school.

Xiao Chen stood aside with a thoughtful expression on his face.

“I’ll see what conspiracy you two have.”

Xiao Chen’s expression was dignified. He smelled the smell of conspiracy.

“Who is targeting huichuntang? Or... Framing Wu Yaqing.”

A trace of killing intention flashed in Xiao Chen’s eyes and dared to touch my woman. Whoever it is must be prepared to be retaliated by me.

You’d better pray that you don’t find the person behind the scenes for me, or I can’t save you.

At this moment, Xiao Chen has moved to kill.

He looked at Wu Yaqing, who was holding the patient, and his face showed tenderness.

At this time, Wu Yaqing was attentive and charming. It was precisely because of her serious and gentle attitude towards patients that Xiao Chen deeply fell in love with her. No matter what kind of wrong view she had on herself, no matter what ugly and cruel words she said to herself, his love for her never wavered, because he knew Wu Yaqing’s kindness.

After taking the pulse, Wu Yaqing asked a lot of questions. Finally, she said, “elder sister, do you still keep the prescription we prescribed for you last time?”

“Keep it.” The woman took out the prescription from her trouser pocket.

Wu Yaqing looked carefully. Then he asked Xiao Chen with an ugly face: "I ask you, did you weigh the medicine strictly according to the requirements of the prescription last time?"

Xiao Chen took the prescription.

Wu Yaqing's expression was serious: "this is a matter of human life. You should finally explain it honestly."

Xiao Chen nodded. "I really fill the medicine according to the prescription. There will never be more grams or less."

In the crowd, disciple Liyan whispered, "if there is a problem with the medicine of huichuntang, resulting in the patient's blindness, they will be finished."

"You're right." Another disciple agreed: "huichuntang and we are competitors. Their existence has made our business much worse these years. If huichuntang really falls, the business of our traditional Chinese medicine store will be booming."

Liyan saw that the two most talented disciples of his school had such an idea, and immediately taught him, "shut up!"

"The doctor's parents' heart."

"Doctors must have compassion. What do you look like now?"

"Looking forward to the collapse of peers, don't you know that every doctor's mistake will cost a patient's life?"

"If you want a good business, try to improve your medical skills. As long as you surpass others, you will naturally be loved by the people, rather than relying on this dirty idea."

Li Yan then strode out.

"What are you doing here?" Wu Yaqing naturally recognizes Li Yan.

"I heard that there was an accident in your hall, so I came to have a look." Li Yan replied. He looked at Xiao Chen and didn't take the initiative to say hello.

As an old Chinese doctor who has practiced medicine for many years, Xiao Chen deliberately works in the Spring Festival Hall, but he naturally won't expose it.

"Can I see a doctor?"

"You are free."

Li Yan took the pulse for the man, and then there was no result for half a day.

His face was tangled and his expression was contradictory, which was in his diagnosis. Everything was normal in front of the patient, but he didn't respond when he tried to test the other person's eyes with his hands.

It puzzled him.

Li Yan looked at Xiao Chen subconsciously.

He knows that Xiao Chen's medical skills are superb. So I really want to ask him for advice.

Just then, several law enforcement officers rushed out of the crowd.

"Someone called the police and said that the hospital here had broken people?"

"Comrade police. They blinded my husband. You must decide for us."

The law enforcement officer nodded and said to the people behind him in an overbearing tone, "seal the hospital for me, and everyone took it to the police station for interrogation."

"Comrade policeman, there must be some misunderstanding." Wu Yaqing hurriedly explained that even Li Yan helped to say good words.

"There's nothing to explain." The law enforcement officer sneered, "haven't you blinded people?"

"We are also looking for the reason at this time."

"We have no problem with the prescription. Normally, this will not happen."

The law enforcement officer's tone was resolute and did not listen to the advice. "You don't have to say this to me. If you have anything to say, let's talk to the judge in court."

Xiao Chen on one side looked at the scene quietly.

First, medical trouble framed. Then there is law enforcement. What a cruel means.

This is completely pushing the rejuvenation hall to death.

"Slow down." Xiao Chen stood up.

"Comrade police, this man is blind. Yes, but it doesn't matter about our hospital."

“The prescription came out of your hospital and the medicine was caught here. Now people are blind. Why is it none of your business?”

Xiao Chen shrugged. “That’s right, but it’s also possible that the big brother accidentally ate something wrong at home that led to blindness.”

“You are clearly sophistry. How can eating make your eyes blind?”

“It’s impossible.” Xiao Chen felt wronged. “Eating the wrong food will also cause food poisoning and diarrhea. Some ingredients are mutually exclusive. Maybe he said something nonsense that led to such a situation. How can he assert that it was our hospital?”

The law enforcement officer sneered: “if you mess around, I will regard you as resisting law enforcement. I warn you to cooperate with us honestly, or we have the right to arrest you.”

Xiao Chen quickly waved his hand and said he didn’t dare, but he looked into the eyes of the law enforcement officer and said, “what’s the purpose of this police comrade in such a hurry to identify us as a harmful hospital?”

There was a flash of confusion in the eyes of the law enforcement officer.

“We’re just enforcing the law impartially. Don’t talk nonsense.”

“Really?” Xiao Chen took a step forward: “the patient has a problem. After seeing the doctor, he found that the situation is wrong. Isn’t it normal for the doctor to continue to inquire and check the situation?”

“If you catch a cold, your family takes you to the hospital, and the doctor prescribes cold medicine for you. After you take it home and eat it, you find that the cold has not improved, but it has worsened. At this time, you have to suspect that the doctor has caused you to catch a cold?”

Xiao Chen stepped forward and stared at the law enforcement officers: “do you think such behavior is reasonable?”
