Chapter 579 Sasha Starts Some Trouble

She joked, laughing at her turbulent fate and how unfair it was to her. “Maybe this is just a test.” Next to her, Matthew consoled her, but his phone started ringing instead.

First, it was a call from Thomas and Troy, then Skyler, Caleb, Miguel, and the others phoned him, desperate to clarify the news.

Of course, Veronica’s phone didn’t have time to rest, either.

Shirley, Ivana, Larry, Stephen, Sasha, partners of Vincere Games, and the others called her one after the other. Just by picking up calls and answering them the best they could, they spent more than an hour until Veronica gave up and turned off her phone.

Eventually, Matthew did the same.

At first, they thought that they could have some peace to themselves, but who would have guessed that Skyler, Miguel, and Thomas came knocking after a while?

“Goddammit, Matt. Both of you are progressing very quickly!” After Skyler entered, he didn’t even bother with the pleasantries before he started grumbling, “I just found out that Roni is pregnant with your child, and you already have your marriage certificate. You’re hiding everything from us. Do you even regard us as your buddies?”

“This is much better. I’m relieved to know that both of you have patched things up and are doing well now,” Miguel lamented, pacing to Veronica’s side and shaking his head with a smile. “Despite not being directly involved in your relationship, I was still somewhat tortured when the both of you were on terrible terms with each other.”

Previously when Veronica and Matthew suddenly broke up, Elizabeth wanted to introduce Veronica to Miguel, and Veronica had agreed to it just to spite Matthew.

That was a difficult time for Miguel.

Veronica couldn’t help but laugh. “Miggy, I... I’m sorry.” She flashed him a mischievous smile even though she felt highly guilty.

“That’s not fair, Roni. Do you only have Miggy in your eyes?” Skyler snorted. “If it weren’t me who told pregnancy, he wouldn’t even know about it.”

Miggy about your

“Yes, that’s true.” Veronica knew that after she had arrived at the hospital to save her baby, it was Skyler who had contacted the best doctor to help her with her baby, and that was why her baby’s life was saved.

Although she was grateful, she didn’t express it. “If you want credit, you should go to Matthew, not me.”

“Sheesh, you’re not playing fair,” he whined, shaking his head.

Thomas stepped forward and congratulated Veronica politely, “Congratulations, Miss Murphy. Not only are you pregnant, but you are also married to Boss. That’s double the happiness.”

“You say the nicest things, Mr. Ritter.” She gave him a thumbs-up and asked concernedly, “How’s your brother doing? Is he getting any better?”

In Castron, as Troy was severely injured, Matthew and Veronica had returned to the country first while he had stayed behind to recuperate, and just a few days ago, he was sent back home.

“Thank you for your concern, Miss Murphy. Troy is doing quite well, and he’ll be fine after a period of rest,” Thomas answered.

The few of them sat together and chatted casually. Only Caleb was missing because he was still busy with Abby.

In the evening, Sasha appeared at the ward. At the sight of this particular unexpected guest, Matthew's expression turned a few notches colder. "What are you doing here?"

Sasha wore a pair of sunglasses, dressed in a long, black-colored dress as she stood in the ward in her sky-high heels. "You don't welcome me anymore now that you have her?"

Veronica leaned against the headboard as she stared at Sasha and wondered, It's already nighttime. Why is she still wearing sunnies?

After she gave the odd sight some thought, she came to the conclusion that there could be only one possibility—maybe Sasha couldn't accept that both of them were married, so she cried.

In the afternoon, Sasha had also called to lash out at her, but Veronica didn't argue with her because she didn't want to put Matthew in a tight spot. So instead, she had directly hung up the call.

Afterward, Sasha called her several times. Thus, Veronica decided to block her number to prevent any verbal fights from occurring.

“You should be glad that the baby in Roni’s womb is safe. Otherwise, do you think that I’ll let you have the chance to stand before me?”
