

Her Billionaire 602

Chapter 602 Taking Her to a Blind Date

Skyler followed Shirley hard on heels by car. After parking it at the roadside, he alighted from it and approached her to pull her hand. "I'm sorry!"

Shirley shrugged off his hand while sobbing. "Stop apologizing. I agreed on it because of money anyway, but I don't want the money anymore. Since we have no business, let's not meet each other ever again."

At that moment, a garish red Ferrari stopped by the road and Sofia got out of the car. "Shirley!" she shouted and hurried toward Shirley. "I'm so sorry. I misunderstood you. I'm really sorry."

Tears were pooling in Shirley's eyes as she alternated her gaze between Sophia and Skyler. In the end, she shoved him away and walked away. This time, Skyler did not go after her.

"Skye, could you give me one more chance? We can return to how we used to be." Sofia pulled his arm and helplessness was written across her face. "I know that I was being reckless before this. I was childish and I didn't appreciate it, but I'm regretting it. I—"

"Reckless?" he scoffed as indifference tinged his countenance. "Is that why you married another person and filed a divorce to be with me? Am I a recyclable or what?"

just... think that I still

I guess you're

to put it that way. She was aware that the pain she imposed onto him was irrevocable. With pursed lips and clenched from your accept your punishment. You can get married, but I'll wait for you. Once it took Skyler aback as well.

...

go, wandered around aimlessly until she arrived saw the crying woman. "What happened? What's got out of bed to pull Shirley over to the tears." She handed a few