

Her Billionaire 611

Chapter 611 The Wedding Entourage

"I was just joking with Veronica. Chill," Tony scoffed and turned around to the other side as he rummaged through the drawers for something.

Finally, he came in front of Veronica and handed a bank card to her. "Here you go. This bank card is for you. This contains your mom and I's total savings over these years. It's not much, just about three to four hundred thousand, so use this on yourself sparingly and don't spend too much of Matthew's money. Although you guys will be married soon, it's not nice to spend his money all the time. You would end up a topic of speculation as time goes by."

Tony and Daniella were concerned about the huge disparity in family background and they were worried about Veronica suffering after her marriage.

"How did you guys get that much money? Back then when you guys were hospitalized, Mom didn't mention a word about our family savings." Veronica was confused.

"Your mom and I are old, so it would be a waste of money to seek treatment with this money. This is your dowry from us. Even if we're not around someday, this money should not be used on us," he replied nonchalantly.

However, these nonchalant words he spoke sparked volumes and evidently proved their immense love for Veronica.

Touched, Veronica got up to hug Tony. "Sob. Dad, you're the best! I suddenly have the urge to not get married. I feel the happiest staying with you guys."
