

Her Billionaire 614

Chapter 614 A Lavish Wedding

Regardless of the situation right now, Conrad was considered to be one of Zac's men. As soon as Zac saw Conrad's face turn ashen out of anger, he instantly voiced out, "Young Master Xavier, I reckon that you shouldn't let this perfect opportunity go to waste. After all, an opportunity rarely knocks twice."

Meanwhile, Hendrey sat on the couch and silently puffed on his cigarette without uttering a single word. He kept his eyes lowered and his gaze fell to the table as he seemed to be lost in thoughts.

Xavier stood in front of the window and held a cigarette in between his fingers. He snuffed out the cigarette forcefully on the windowsill and a ferocious note seeped in his voice. "I'll say this to all of you right now. If any of you even lay a single hand on her before the end of her wedding ceremony, then that means you're going against me!"

The other day after he had encountered Veronica, he promised her that he would not ruin her wedding. He promised not to take action during the wedding ceremony and this was the final thing he would do for her.

...

The bridal entourage turned into the highway and sped along it swiftly and steadily.

They then exited the highway upon arriving at Bloomstead. As Veronica sat in the car, she casually glanced outside and her gaze landed on an advertisement signboard by the roadside.

On the advertisement signboard was a photo of her and Matthew. There was a caption underneath the blissful photo. 'Hand in hand, let's walk through life together.'

stunned and was just about to question Matthew about it when their into a marriage with me, so I pledge to hold your hands reading the words on the advertisement signboard when the content of the next signboard appeared in the advertisement signboards along the road contained photos of her and Matthew with sweet captions. Furthermore, the advertisements come up with such an exaggerated to glance at him. "It's alright to maintain a low profile for smile. "I'm getting married today, so there is no reason to maintain a contain her laughter as a content smile appeared on head to look outside the window and the huge poster-sized photos formed a picturesque scene outside. Be it the advertisement signboards by the roadside, the large display in the square, or the advertisements displayed twenty of the

as the center, the areas within a radius of a mile away were guarded by bodyguards, so the reporters and members to the carpet were wreaths made of red roses. There were fairy lights adorning the place and the decorations looked grand, extending all the hotel staff let off twenty fireworks in unison at the main square of the hotel.

were colorful helium balloons in the air; tied to the bottom of each balloon was a long note with well-wishes written on of horizontal banners by the entrance and written on them were held out one hand and made a