

Her Billionaire 655

Chapter 655 Meeting Him

Caleb's face fell. His frustration and anger were almost palpable. Right then, Veronica and Thomas hopped back into the car. Caleb looked at his phone and tucked it into his pocket without texting Abby back.

Then, Miguel drove them slowly to their destination. Veronica quickly told a retail assistant her size and got two sets of clothes the moment she went into the store. She changed into one of the sets and kept the other as backup.

The clothes she chose were a thin beige shirt and a black Chanel Style coat. The oversized shirt was enough to cover her baby bump.

The clothes were haphazardly mixed and matched, but they still managed to make her look tall and fair. She looked lithe, languid, and adorable at the same time. "Are we there yet?"

They were surrounded by beautiful courtyards of different shapes and sizes. They could see a flowing river on their side, and gorgeous plants decorated the riverside with greenery. The water's surface reflected the courtyards that stood in this town. Branches swayed as breezes brushed across them.

a portrait, but Veronica had no

He peered into the rear-view mirror and saw the hurried look in Veronica's eyes. She had longed written all times ever since Matthew went missing, but when she finally got news about him, her composure broke down, and tiled path. He dodged the pedestrians and kept stopped the car.

and looked around, but Matthew was nowhere to be found. Caleb was leap out of her chest if she was in a cartoon world. Even breathing felt hard for her, and glanced at Miguel, who had come out of the car, and then he gazed at the people coming out of the courtyard before them.

in her eyes, and they glimmered with hope. Despite her nerves, she still name, but what she saw made her come to an abrupt halt. The wind blew away her half-finished word as she fell into