

Her Billionaire 686

Chapter 686 Wedding Toast

"I have put on weight! I will turn into a pig if I continue eating."

Veronica had been controlling her weight without going overboard. She was already exercising to lose weight during confinement.

"Have you considered how a pig might feel when you say something like that?" Matthew teased in return.

She immediately burst out laughing before nagging him solemnly, "The fatter a pig is, the more popular it is. It is a lifelong thing for a woman to maintain her figure. Won't I be pitiful if you dump me for a young and beautiful wife one day because I no longer take care of my appearance?"

"Are you sure I am the one who would dump you and not the other way around?" Matthew took a sip of wine and raised his eyebrows meaningfully.

Following Matthew's 'death', and in the order of succession, Veronica was the first in line to inherit all his properties. Matthew had nothing in his name now.

In the blink of an eye, Veronica had become the richest woman in Bloomstead.

Even she was surprised by the revelation when she was handling the various transfer procedures.

"I have been wondering about how confident you are to leave so much property under my name."

Matthew had faked his death, she knew that he didn't care about the talking about anything less than a billion. It was a sum that totaled

she was glad to find such a great man had faith in my taste." While he spoke, his clear eyes were burning passionately as he looked at the woman he her heart. "Thank you for never fortunate she was to have if you weren't here. Do I really with her, she would have been very passive and helpless when it came only reason why Crayson and Destiny were obedient to Veronica was because she was didn't want to be the head as she had no control over meeting in this life is probably for me to repay you for your

"Past life?"

non-believer of the supernatural like Matthew to say deeds and accumulated good karma in your past life?" After saying that, he brought up all fate

was as though the world worked in mysterious