

Her Billionaire 696

Chapter 696 An Isolated Island

"Come with me, then. It's cold outside." Crayson walked over to pull her hand and led the way downstairs.

Touching her cold hand, he blabbered on, "Look. You can't stand the cold, yet you exposed yourself to the wind on the deck. If your mother knows how naughty you are, she could nag you for the whole day."

He was naggy as before with those familiar words. Yet, her mentality had changed upon hearing that.

As an afterthought, she blurted the question in her head, "Hey, what if someone wants my life? Will you risk your life to save me?"

"Hmph! That's pure nonsense. You're my disciple! Anyone that harms you will be a dead meat."

"If I'm not the young lord of the clan, will you still protect me?" inquired Veronica.

This time, Crayson stood still and paused for a moment before gazing back at her. While the hesitation lasted for a few seconds, his murky eyes spoke of confusion under the illuminating light. "I raised you, and you're no less from my own kid. No matter what happens, I will risk my life to save you."

When he said his answer, his eyes were overflowed with sincerity and genuine feelings that signified the weight of his words. Thus, she believed in him.

into her mind. What if that person is you or someone who difficult question remained unasked until released her hand.

which she sat down while watching the television out of boredom since her

not be able to screen while resting her elbow atop the table.

Matthew is going to come to the more than two years. During this period of time, they got married after merely a year and half. Yet, he was willing to make such a big sacrifice for said that day? That I amassed my luck and blessings in my previous

She smiled at that.

...

cruising the ocean, Veronica went through her days peacefully with them as long last, the cruise ship moored at an isolated island. The crowd disembarked the ship with scanned the boundless edge of the island. She had a hunch that they were getting closer to the hidden clan,

