

Her Billionaire 697

Chapter 697 Veronica Is Angry

Considering Crayson's capability, it was a breeze to have him knock Veronica out. Plus, why would he use the same method when he had drugged the water previously?

The lunch break lasted for an hour before they continued their journey. All the while, Veronica was taciturn as she observed everyone attentively.

These guys had been walking for a solid four hours since morning. Although they took ten along the way, no one was feeling exhausted. Rather, one could tell that they were trained fighters from their steady steps.

Their power evoked fear in her, for she could not imagine what kind of scene she would see once they arrived at the hidden clan's territory.

They walked in the woods for another few hours in the afternoon. The fact that she could not see the landform ahead of them rendered her the passive party of the situation. The closer they got to the territory, the more nervous she felt.

However, right when she was being wary of Crayson, she fell into his trap and became unconscious.

dragging. No matter how

Thump! Thump! Thump!

with the darkness in the room, the fireworks burst into vibrant colors, saw a lamp on the headboard. After turning it on, the furniture the electrical appliances were of modern facilities, the ceiling, window, and floor were made of wood. However, the electrical appliances were made by brands help of the fireworks, only mistook it as a dazzling night view in a fictional to look out of it. She realized that she was in a house on the mountain pass at which she could scarcely see the market at the base. It was bustling with the people and lights. She could even hear

"It's gorgeous," she exclaimed.

at the very next second, her expression fell. She wheeled around and headed first floor, a few people were having a revel around the table in the living room. Conversation and laughter of merriment definitely there as her cold gaze swept across them and her arrival drew their attention. Her ferocious appearance