

The Heir's Revenge by Twine Twin Chapter 11

The Wedding Invitation

It was a Sunday morning, but Dennis looked well-groomed. “Where are you going my grandson?” rebuked Mrs Berlin as Dennis stepped valiantly before her.

“Oh, Grandma! Good morning!” Dennis turned his head at the Grandma who was enjoying the breakfast. “I plan to take Adellia for a holiday, Oma. I feel I need quality time with my little daughter. After all, I’ve been too busy working, while it’s Sunday so I want to spend time alone with her,” said Dennis. “But you will be accompanied by the bodyguard, right?” “No, Grandma. I’m just going with Adellia.” “You should be accompanied by Lewis. I am worried if you’re alone with Adellia. What’s more if you drive by yourself. I didn’t want the bad things that happened to your parents to happen to you again. I am not ready to lose you a second time, My Grandson.” “Oh, You are thinking too much of something bad. I’ll be fine, Grandma.” “But I won’t be calm if let you go out with Adellia. However, you are the CEO of Argonius Company, even though many people admire you, but many people will hate you too. I didn’t want anything bad to happen to you. Please ask Lewis to accompany you, okay?” Dennis smiled in response to his grandmother’s concern. “Okay, Grandma. I’m going with Lewis.”

Mrs Berlin smiled back. “Then have a good time my grandson!” said Mrs Berlin.

Dennis also passed from in front of the Grandma and entered Adelia’s room. There were several servants who were preparing the needs of the beautiful baby girl.

“Paa..” Adellia’s hands reached out when she saw her father’s face.

“Adellia my beloved daughter, Papa misses you. Let’s spend the day having fun together.” Dennis carried Adelia on his lap. That day, Dennis took Adelia to play in many places, from the playground to the mall. Adellia looked very happy, while Dennis was actually moved to see his daughter so happy.

“All this time I had to save up so I could take Adellia out for a walk, but now I can give Adelia anything she wants,” said Dennis to Lewis as he walked through the mall.

“You should have gotten all this a long time ago, Master. I’m sorry for hiding your identity all this time.”

“Ah, no need to apologize to me. I’m really grateful to you. Oh yeah, do you want anything? If you want a car, a house, or anything else, feel free to ask me, Lewis.”

“Thank you, sir. But for now, I don’t need anything.” “Okay. Oh yeah, I want to buy a necklace for Adelia. Let’s go to the jewelry store,” said Dennis later.

But when they were about to enter the jewelry store, he actually passed Raymond and Jesselyn who had just left the jewelry store. “Oh, it turns out that this world is so small. Nice to meet you again, Dennis,” Raymond said sarcastically as he wrapped his arms around Jesselyn’s waist. While Jesselyn began to look uncomfortable being held like that by Raymond in front of Dennis, what’s more at that time Dennis was also carrying Adellia. Dennis cracked a cynical smile. “But for me, meeting you both just made my heart feel bad,” said Dennis.

Raymond also smiled sarcastically and then turned his head to face Jesselyn. “Honey, have you told him about our wedding day? Shouldn’t we invite the CEO of this Argonius Company too?”

Jesselyn just gulped. “I-I–”

“You brought the invitation card in your bag, didn’t you?” Raymond raised his eyebrows, his gaze looking intimidating. So like it or not, Jesselyn took out an invitation card from her bag. Raymond snatched the invitation and gave it to Dennis. “Please come to our wedding. You should see how happy Jesselyn and I were that day,” Raymond said. “What is there for you to brag about, Mr. Raymond? Jesselyn is my ex-wife. Should I also congratulate you on enjoying the rest of me? I thought you were a real gentleman, but you’re not,” said Dennis. which sounds sharper.

Raymond’s ears immediately turned red when he heard Dennis’ words. “Who do you think you are to talk to me like that? Have you forgotten, you’ve been eating with my money for years. Don’t be like a nut that forgot its shell. You should still have respect for me.”

“I will pay my respects to someone who deserves respect, not to a bastard like you, Mr Raymond. It’s not that I’m looking down on you, but you yourself are proving how low you are.

Raymond's hands immediately clenched into fists, when he was about to hit Dennis in the face, Dennis swiftly parried Raymond's fists. "I will not allow you to touch my face at all! If you dare to do it, then you will regret it for the rest of your life," said Dennis.

Raymond had to lower his hand because he knew at that time that Dennis was far more powerful than him. "Honey, let's get out of here! I don't want to waste any more time here," he said and then walked away with Jesselyn. "Didn't you do it earlier, idiot?" Dennis smiled sarcastically. While Adelia, who was still in Dennis' arms, kept looking at her mother. "Maa..." Adelia's hands reached for her mother, but Jesselyn didn't look at her at all.

"Maa..." Adelia began to cry.

"She is not your mother. Because no mother would have the heart to leave her daughter," said Dennis to Adelia.

In the car, Raymond glanced at Jesselyn who looked gloomy. "Why do you look so sad?" asked Raymond. "Do you want to go back to your ex-husband again?"

"No, honey. I'm just sad because I didn't have the chance to hug Adelia. I really miss her,"

The Wedding Invitation

Jesselyn avoided.

Raymond cracked a cynical smile when he heard Jesselyn's words. "You don't have to act like you love your daughter so much. Because if you love her, you can't possibly leave her. Forget about your daughter, after you marry me, you will have another child. I want a son. With a son, we'll be stronger than Dennis. We can definitely beat him," Raymond said confidently. "This is our problem, it's best not to involve the children later." "What? You dare argue with me, Jesselyn?" Raymond snapped.

Jesselyn could only be silent and lowered her head.

"I know what's in your head. You must be thinking of a way to get back to your ex-husband, and I won't let you do that, Jesselyn. You are my weapon to beat Dennis later,” said Raymond. Jesselyn took another gulp of saliva that tasted bitter. Everything seemed clearer, Raymond didn’t love her one bit.

Dennis’s Birthday In his office, Dennis seemed to be rereading the wedding invitation that Raymond had given him the other day. His heart burned when he saw Raymond and Jesselyn’s names on the invitation.

“Are you going to attend their wedding, sir?” said Lewis who had been watching Dennis all this time.

“I don’t know, but I feel like I want to ruin their wedding.”

“Why do you want to destroy it? Do you jealous to see Jesselyn marrying Raymond? Do you still love her?”

Dennis fell silent. However, Jesselyn had been his wife, had been the woman he loved the most, there was no way that Dennis could just erase his love, although that love was covered in revenge now.

“I don’t want to see them happy, I want to see them suffer,” said Dennis later. After that Dennis turned his head to Lewis. “Do you have any ideas for destroying them, Lewis?” Lewis smiled meaningfully. “You can entrust the task to me, sir.” “Okay, I trust you. Please do what the best you think I just want to wait for the good news. Oh yeah, didn’t I have a meeting with the research and development department today?” “Yes, Sir. After that you also have to attend a talk show on television. The reporters still want to hear about your life journey to becoming the CEO of the Argonius Company as it is today.” Dennis seemed to sigh. “Huft, it turns out that my schedule is so busy. Looks like I’ll have to find a new secretar ou’ll have less work to do, Lewis.”

“Do you want me to find a new secretary for you?” “Yes, find the most competent one.” “Okay, Sir.”

The two of them left the CEO’s room and went downstairs to attend an internal meeting with the Research and Development department. But as soon as he got out of the elevator, Dennis actually met Bella Cathlin. “Miss Bella? It was a surprise to see you in my office,” said Dennis.

“I have come to surprise you. Isn’t today your birthday? Happy birthday, Mr. Dennis. I brought a gift for you,” Bella said, she handing a box that her bodyguard had brought. “Oh, thank you so much. I even forgot that today is my birthday.”

Dennis took the gift and gave it to Lewis. “But I’m so sorry Miss Bella, I can’t accompany you any longer, because right now I have to attend a meeting,” said Dennis to Bella. “Ooh okay.” Bella heard a disappointed reply but the girl still forced a smile. “Alright, that’s fine, maybe I came at the wrong time.”

“Yeah, I’m so sorry. I have to excuse right now.” Dennis walked into the meeting room. While Bella seemed to hold Lewis. “Lewis, wait a minute, I want to talk to you,” Bella said.

