Chapter 191 Went To The Battlefield

Natalie's POV:

Two weeks soon passed. All day long, I was fraught with worry.

Lambert had yet to return to the Blue Lake Pack. I was told that the situation on the battlefield was in a stalemate, and many soldiers from both sides suffered heavy casualties. In addition to that, the Blood River Pack showed no intentions of retreating. Based on how everything was unfolding, no one could be sure how long the war would last.

Fortunately, I was on winter break this week. The first thing I did when I arrived at the villa was to pack my things and escape Marwin's tight surveillance. In order to assist Lambert, I snuck into the truck of the medical team that went to support the army and followed them to the battlefield

As soon as I reached the military camp, I jumped out of the car and went through all the tents to look for Lambert. After a while, I finally found him in the tent that located at the center of this place. He was in the midst of analyzing the battlefield situation with other Alphas, and I was eavesdropping on them behind the tent. Just then, Lambert signaled for the end of the meeting. After the other Alphas left, I was about to slip away, but a pair of powerful hands grabbed me and stopped me. "I smelled you as soon as you approached me. Didn't I tell you to study hard at school?" Lambert's domineering voice reached my ears. Sighing helplessly, he pulled me in his arms. As he held me tightly, he breathed in my scent with a greedy yearning. "I'm on my winter break now. You didn't say that I can't come here during winter break," I said innocently, leaning on his shoulder. After all, I had the ability to cure the injured werewolves. I knew I could be of great help to him.

"You're still making excuses. It's too dangerous here. I'll have someone escort you back to the pack tonight," Lambert said firmly, as he let go of me and looked at me with a helpless, gentle gaze.

He would never lose his temper when it came to me. I was fully aware of his personality. If he wanted to dissuade me, he must do so patiently and gently.

"I won't go back! I can help you here. If you send me back, I'll definitely find a way to come here again. You know I won't stop until I get what I want," I announced firmly, looking Lambert straight in the eye.

I couldn't allow myself to stand by idly and watch silently as he and other members of the Blue Lake Pack face danger. I must do something for them!

Lambert kneeled between his eyebrows, frustrated and at a loss as to what to do. After a long time, he let out a deep sigh and looked at me. When he spoke, it was in a harsh and severe tone.

“Alright, Natalie. You may stay. But if you act without permission or get yourself injured, I’ll send you back to the Blue Lake Pack immediately.”

Lambert relented and agreed to let me stay. At this, I grew joyful and hugged him gratefully.

“I knew you’d agree! You’re the best, Lambert.”

Lambert was left with no choice. He looked at me, helpless, and stroked my hair fondly. Then, he lowered his head to give me an affectionate kiss.

Naturally, I joined the medical team. In the past two weeks, my mother had become a skillful and proficient member of the team. She would save badly injured werewolves with her healing power in secret. In order not to arouse suspicion, she would stop using the healing power after ensuring that the injured had been safely out of danger. Then, the doctors would give them the usual treatment. As I was working, I noticed Amelia among the medical staff. I didn’t know that she had come here to help, and she never mentioned anything to me either. Ever since I became the Luna, Amelia and I had steadily drifted apart. I never understood the reason why. But she was my best friend, so I wanted our relationship to get better. I firmly believed that together, both of us could solve whatever conflicts that arose between us. “Amelia! When did you come here? Why didn’t you tell me?” I quickly approached Amelia and helped her sort out the medicine in the box. “I arrived here yesterday. I left in a hurry, so I forgot to tell you. You can go ahead and do your work, Natalie. I can handle this by myself,” Amelia said calmly. She continued to sort the medicine, never once sparing me even the slightest glance. An awkward silence hung between us. “Is there... some kind of misunderstanding between us? What’s wrong with you?” I suddenly found it difficult to breathe. Sadness welled in me, and something seemed to be blocking my chest. Obviously, something did happen. If not, why would Amelia suddenly distance herself from me now? “There’s nothing, Natalie. Look, I have a lot of work to do,” Amelia said perfunctorily, stoic. She still didn’t look at me when she spoke.

Chapter 192 United By Marriage

Victor’s POV

Right after I left the battlefield, I immediately went to look for the black wizard Alston. However, it had been many years since we came in contact with each other. Alston’s residence, which was in the mountains, was empty. I asked the locals for information on Alston's whereabouts, and they told me that Alston had already moved out. Unfortunately, they didn't know where he went.

Much as I hated it, things didn't go as smoothly as I expected. Not only was I unable to find Alston, but the situation of the Blood River Pack on the battlefield had also worsened.

Blood River Pack suffered major casualties and lost a large number of troops. While the soldiers of the Blue Lake Pack were also injured, they had advanced medical skills. All of their gravely injured soldiers recovered miraculously soon and could rejoin the battlefield in just a short amount of time. Dejected, I returned to the Blood River Pack camp. I hesitated to tell Gavin about Alston's unknown whereabouts. When I arrived at Gavin's tent, however, I heard him talking to an unfam

Through a small crack on the tent, I could see Gavin shaking hands with the werewolf, smiling. He seldom smiled at others, unless they were useful to him.

"We haven't seen each other for years! It looks like you've never gotten any older."

The werewolf turned sideways, a pleasant smile on his face. Seeing the werewolf's face, I finally knew who he was. I had seen him before. He was the Alpha of the Green Pine Pack.

I had heard of the Green Pine Pack a while back, but they never had any relations with us Blood River Pack. I couldn't be sure as to what Gavin was planning. Why was he with the Alpha of the Green Pine Pack?

"You know I'm in a war recently. I wonder if your pack is interested in joining hands with us. Blue Lake Pack is rich with resources, and I could allocate some of it with the Green Pine Pack," Gavin suggested with a smile. He spoke in a very kind and amiable tone, but deliberately didn't mention how powerful the Blue Lake Pack was.

"Yes, I've heard of it. You're still as brave and battle-wise as always, Gavin. Unfortunately, my pack doesn't like the idea of going into war, so I can't accept that offer." The Alpha of the Green Pine Pack was also quite the shrewd man. How could he fall into Gavin's trap so easily?

"Ha-ha-ha! I understand. However, I'd still like to request your help. How about you give me some of your troops and resources? You wouldn't need to go to battle in person and can still reap the benefits that would come. What do you think?" Gavin immediately put forward a proposal when he realized that the Green Pine Pack had no interest in war. He truly was sly and cunning. Out of everyone, he should be most clear on the fact that the battle was at a stalemate. If he continued to fight, the Blood River Pack's strength and resources would be depleted sooner or later. We would fall into a dangerous situation and face a sound defeat.

This was why Gavin wanted the Green Pine Pack's aid. Their military strength paled in comparison to that of the Blood River Pack, so they found us intimidating and were always in constant fear of being attacked by us. The thing was, the Green Pine Pack was rich enough to provide excellent medical and weapon resources. Gavin wouldn't give up on getting them on his side that easily.

"I see how it is, Gavin." The Alpha of the Green Pine Pack smiled. He thought for a long time before looking at Gavin and finally saying, "I can help your pack, but you have to promise me one thing." There was no such thing as a free lunch in the world, after all. Gavin understood this very well. "Go ahead," Gavin said after a few seconds of hesitation. It seemed he couldn't coax them into helping him for nothing "Your daughter Faye must marry my son. Only after our two children are wedded will I send troops and provide adequate resources to aid the Blood River Pack," the Alpha of the Green Pine Pack said with a smile. He probably gave this condition because he was suspicious of Gavin and wanted to test Gavin's resolve and sincerity. I stared hard at Gavin from outside the tent, clenching my fists in anger. In terms of appearance and military prowess, I was not inferior to the son of the Green Pine Pack's Alpha. There was also the fact that Faye was infatuated with me. I was sure Gavin wouldn't agree to this. Just as I had expected, Gavin frowned and looked hesitant. For a long time, he stayed silent and didn't give any response. This made the Alpha of the Green Pine Pack impatient. His face began to grow dark. "It seems you have some misgivings. Since that's the case, Gavin, I'll take my leave." Seeing that the Green Pine Pack's Alpha was about to leave, Gavin immediately stood up to pull him back. "No, no, no. I agree to your terms. However, I do think you're aware that Faye has a boyfriend. Don't worry, I'll have Victor break up with Faye so that she can marry your son."

Chapter 193 The Intent To Kill

Victor's POV I stood outside the tent, gritting my teeth and fuming. I hadn't expected Gavin to agree to the marriage between his daughter and the son of the Green Pine Pack's Alpha.

If this happened, I would lose everything. It had taken me a lot of effort to get what I had today. But now, because of this marriage, all my previous effort would be for naught.

I tried to restrain my anger. I couldn't accept the prospect of losing Faye. Gavin had probably been attracted by the wealth of the Green Pine Pack. With sufficient resources, his chances of winning the war would greatly increase. It was obviously more beneficial for him to get Faye married to the heir of an Alpha than to me, an ordinary wolf with no support. Back then, Gavin had taken me in because he appreciated my abilities. He had agreed to let me date Faye, perhaps because I was useful to him, and I could make many contributions to his pack. But now he had got a better option and was about to leave me hanging high and dry.

I was so enraged that my blood was boiling. Even though I knew very well that Gavin was a pragmatic Alpha who only looked out for his own interests, I hadn't expected him to take such a step for the sake of war and power. He knew how much his daughter adored me, but he was still willing to marry her off to someone else for his advantage.

I clenched my fists to calm myself down. I couldn't act rashly at this critical moment. I had to be level

-headed and carefully consider my next steps.

"Gavin, if you dare abandon me, don't blame me for being merciless," I muttered to myself.

After taking a few deep breaths to get my anger under control, I left to look for Faye. Judging from Gavin's conviction right now, he was going to ask me to leave Faye very soon. Then I wouldn't be able to become the Alpha of the Blood River Pack in the future. I had to come up with a good idea as soon as possible. When I entered Faye's room, she was sitting at her dressing table and putting on makeup. She seemed to be quite cheerful.

"Victor, honey, you're finally back. You have no idea how much I have missed you these past few days." Watching me sit on the edge of the bed, she instantly gave me a warm smile after she was done applying eye shadow on her eyelids. I knew Faye loved me deeply. She was nearly crazy about me. Every time she was with me, she would do her best to make me happy. She was blindly in love with me. This kind of naive woman was easy for me to manipulate. She would never stop me from becoming the Alpha,

I grabbed Faye's jaw and studied her heavy makeup. She didn't have delicate features. Such heavy makeup only repulsed me more. But I didn't let my disgust appear on my face. "I missed you, too. Your makeup today is gorgeous, and it suits you perfectly." I said sweetly and gave her an affectionate smile. I knew that was what Faye wanted to hear

"Really? I learned it from a magazine. What's wrong with you, Victor? You look so exhausted," Faye asked in a soft voice, probably noticing that I was in a stupor, "I'm fine. I'm just drained out from this war. I think I didn't sleep well." I took advantage of this moment to wrap my arms around Faye and gently caress her shoulder. She instinctively leaned into me.

"Don't be so bothered about the war. Dad has loved fighting since he was a young man. He will take care of everything." Faye eyed me with concern. I forced a smile. Gavin was truly excellent at problem-solving. To make a profit from the Green Pine Pack, he was even ready to abandon me. I had started from scratch and gone through a lot of trouble to get to where I was today. I couldn't just keep quiet and let everything be snatched away from me now.

My biggest obstacle was Gavin. "Faye, do you want to marry me?" I placed a finger under her chin and raised her blushing face towards mine.

There was only one solution to my dilemma. Once Gavin died, everything would go according to my plan. "Of course, Victor. You don't know how long I've been waiting for you to ask this question." Faye was astonished. She was so overcome with excitement that tears welled up in her eyes. She must not have expected me to propose to her right now. "I will keep you happy for the rest of your life, Faye," I said in a sugary voice, concealing the murderous intent in my eyes, and hugged her tightly.

If she married me, I could still become the Alpha. Faye was Gavin's only child. Once I became her husband, she wouldn't stop me from becoming the Alpha. That position would automatically belong to

Victor's POV:

Gavin acted quickly. Just a little while later, his subordinate came to me and informed me that he wanted to see me.

"Alpha, what can I do for you?" I met his eyes, then lowered my head respectfully. "Victor, come here. I need to talk to you about something." Gavin rarely treated anyone with kindness. He smiled at me, but I knew that an ulterior motive lurked behind his fake smile

"Alpha, if there is something you want to say, please just say it." I smiled back, pretending to be ignorant.

"Victor, as you know, I have always treated you well. I took you in, gave you a job and a place to live, and allowed Faye to date you." Gavin watched me with sharp eyes but spoke in a sincere voice, as if he had truly been altruistic to me. I scoffed inwardly. I knew very well that Gavin only took me in because I was useful to him. I didn't say anything but nodded slightly. Gavin sighed, looking distressed.

"The Alpha of the Green Pine Pack came to our pack today. He asked for my daughter's hand for marriage to his son. I know you and Faye are in a relationship now, so I hope you will break up with her. As you know, our position in the war is not very good right now. Without the Green Pine Pack's support, it is next to impossible for us to win this battle." Gavin placed his palm on his forehead and scowled.

Maybe he still thought I was useful to him. He didn't order me outright to break up with Faye, and left me some dignity.

I lowered my head and said nothing, pasting a conflicted expression on my face. "But Alpha, I love Faye very much. If she is told to marry the son of the Green Pine Pack's Alpha so suddenly, she won't be happy," I frowned and said softly. "I have always believed that love can be cultivated over time. Faye will live a happy life with the Alpha's son in the Green Pine Pack. Don't worry about that. And as a token of appreciation, I will gift you several beautiful sex slaves." Gavin smiled, even as his eyes glinted with sarcasm. He must have suspected that I didn't really love Faye. Damn it! This old fox had seen right through me. "I know, Alpha. But Faye won't accept it if I break up with her so abruptly. I need some time to make her want to leave me," I said calmly, concealing the anger that rose within me.

"Okay, but you'd better hurry up." Gavin smiled again, and the corners of his eyes crinkled. His tone was gentle, but laced with warning:

After I left Gavin's house, my determination to kill him as soon as possible increased.

He wanted to return to the battlefield again. I thought this was a wonderful opportunity for me to carry out my plan. It would be more prudent to kill him unnoticed during a battle. This way I would be able to avoid arousing others' suspicion.

Two days later, the war between the Blood River Pack and the alliance of the other packs started again. This battle was more intense than the last one. The Green Pine Pack had lent plenty of troops weapons, and medical staff to the Blood River Pack. As a result, we went into the war with a lot of confidence. However, the Blue Lake Pack and the alliance army showed no signs of weakness. I noticed that soldiers who had been injured seriously just a few days ago had miraculously appeared in the combat zone again. Even their attacking speed was so quick, it was as if they had never been injured. Just as the fight had reached an equal footing throughout the field, another wave of reinforcements arrived from the Blue Lake Pack. The Blood River Pack's army was unable to withstand this attack. I peered at Gavin, who was standing behind me. He was obviously a little shaken. Perhaps he was considering retreating, because the Blood River Pack would lose miserably if this fight continued. Sure enough, a few minutes later, I heard Gavin announce his retreat. Under the protection of his close associates, he turned into a wolf and fled into the forest. The Blue Lake Pack's army chased after them, probably intent on capturing the leader. I quickly commandeered an off-road motorcycle and followed them. Gavin and his men were soon separated by the pursuers of the Blue Lake Pack and he was left alone to fend for himself. I accelerated hard, drove towards Gavin, and held my hand out to him. "Alpha, get on!" Gavin hesitated for a moment, then jumped on the motorcycle. We drove maniacally through the forest. It took a very long time for us to shake off our chasers. I didn't stop until I was sure no one was on our trail anymore. Then I sat down on a rock with Gavin to catch my breath. "Thank you, Victor," Gavin said to me, gasping for breath. I scoffed bitterly in my heart. I didn't think he really meant it. This was not the first time I had saved his life in a similar manner. But he wouldn't have told me to break up with Faye if he was truly grateful.

However, it didn't matter. Today was the last time I would ever save him. "You're welcome, Alpha. You can rest here. I'll take a look around and ensure no one is still following us."

I stood up and walked to Gavin's back. Obviously, he had no reason to doubt me. He probably thought that I was still as loyal to him as before. I took out my pistol, aimed at Gavin who was sitting comfortably on the rock, and squeezed the trigger. My gun was fitted with a silencer. Only a dull low sound registered, which vanished without a trace in the quiet forest.
