

I'm Richer Than My Billionaire Ex-husband Chapter 117

Ayden 's phone call.

On the phone, she uttered, "Alina, where were you last night?"

"I, I don't know." Ayden on the other end of the line breathed heavily, "What do you mean?"

"Ayden, Caleb bullied me." Alina's emotions were completely collapsed.

On the phone, she burst into tears.

The air, at this moment, was frozen.

"Wait for me." With those words, the woman on the other end hung up the phone.

Ayden was a different being in Alina's world. Although Andre had given her a lot of good resources.

But it was Ayden who really made her go deeper and smoother.

They are two completely different types of women, yet they have a surprisingly similar journey. Except for marriage.

The personality was completely different.

But these two people, who are completely different from each other, have become best friends who talk about everything.

Ayden arrived at Alina as quickly as he could, as it was raining sporadically, when Ayden arrived.

Alina's hair was covered in beads of water.

The door slammed shut and Ayden ran over to Alina, pulling her jacket off and pulling it over her head.

"What are you doing?"

Especially after seeing the tears in Alina's eyes, Ayden 's heart couldn't help but twitch at this moment.

In her heart, Alina looked weak but strong inside after going through so many things.

She had never seen Alina in such a state of distress since they had met.

However, Ayden did not know how much that night really affected Alina and how many psychiatrists it took to put it down.

And just now, when she saw herself and Caleb in that scene, it reminded her more than just of that night.

It also reminded her of the night Caleb got drunk, and she was pregnant with Penny.

Both nights were undoubtedly the most painful for her, and Caleb would have been respectful and responsible for her had he not known Emma during the marriage.

She'll probably break out.

"Ayden, I'm in pain." Alina's eyes were tearing up.

Ayden, who was tall, put her arm around Alina as she walked to the car and said, "I'll take you to the hospital."

After getting in the car, Ayden rushed to find a dry towel to dry Alina's hair.

"You're not well, you can't catch a cold." Alina froze, allowing Ayden to dry her hair and tears to flow down.

She didn't speak again until she got to the hospital.

After the doctor had examined Alina, Ayden was about to run in, but was pulled back by the doctor.

"There's a nurse inside."

Especially at this moment, the doctor was looking at her with some displeasure.

The next moment, the doctor said, "Her injury is a bit serious, so no sex for the next month."

"What?"

"A woman's body is delicate, it can't take this kind of torment." The doctor gave Ayden an even more unpleasant look.

Now Ayden understood the meaning of the doctor's eyes.

Caleb was instantly cursed in his mind.

They had divorced, and yet he still rude to Alina.

Alina was helped out of the room by the nurse and the doctor prescribed an ointment and told Ayden to not have sex.

She had been treated like a man for many times before. But it was the first time she was treated like a beast by a doctor.

It was Caleb's fault.

After Caleb's rage, when he saw the marks on the sheets, his heart twitched hard. She was hurt?

Tomas's number flashed on the phone. He annoyingly lit a cigarette before picked it up, "What."

"We're at the airport, getting ready to come back." Tomas said in a somewhat strained tone.

And Caleb probably knew the outcome.

He was already unhappy, but now he frowned even more, "What's going on?"

"When we found Billy, he was with Brooklyn."

Tomas said.

His heart was already agitated, and now when he heard this result, he even pinched his aching brow.

"Come back first."

With these cold words, Caleb hung up the phone and smashed it on the desk.

He then took a long, hard drag on the cigarette.

No one knows what is going on inside Caleb's mind at the moment.

In that stormy night, that person cried for mercy.

Ayden sent Alina back to Mulherd Manor, "Alina, are you really okay now?"

"Yeah." Alina had calmed down.

There was an important exhibition to come and Ayden dropped by to visit her.

Ayden was a bit worried about Alina and wanted to put off the exhibition, but was stopped by Alina.

"I'll be with you as soon as it's over." Ayden said as he gave Alina a hug.

Alina nodded, "Okay."

Ayden hugged Alina and tried to say something, but couldn't.

Eventually, on reflection, she couldn't help but say, "You know what a disgusting person that Emma is, so stay away from Caleb."

"....."

"Don't let such scum harm you." After all, they had divorced now .

Alina, "Last night was an accident."

Last night, she had no idea what was going on, and when she got up in the morning she was in Caleb's bed.

To now, she did not know what went wrong.

Ayden knew how proud Alina was and last night must have been an accident. She couldn't have been the one to jump on his body, but Caleb was too much.

She was his ex-wife, even if he did not have any feelings for her, he shouldn't do that.

"I know it was an accident, but it doesn't look to me like he's serious about divorcing you."

Alina was desperate to cut Caleb into pieces now, how could there be any feelings?
