

I'm Richer Than My Billionaire Ex-husband Chapter 164

Now, he's got it all figured out, in this case, completely.

So, it started at that time. Apart from that, there is no reasonable explanation for their affair.

Alina laughed sarcastically.

"Good, Caleb."

"....."

Alina snapped and turned to leave.

This Caleb is more than a scumbag, now he is making out that he is the victim.

And she's the scum.

"Alina, you haven't figured out what happened with Andre, and now Chester, who's next to come out?"

Alina paused at the sound of his voice.

No one knows what kind of turmoil is going on inside her right now.

She had seen many shameless people over the years, but this was the first time she saw that Caleb had been so shameless.

No wonder, he's got that kind of connection with Emma. It's a disgrace that they're all together.

Alina closed her eyes and said indifferently, "You forget that I was already an unclean woman, you knew that when you married me, do you expect me to be clean now?"

When the crowd heard the words, they even drew another breath of cold air.

They could see that neither one of them was going to make things easy for the other.

Caleb's eyes were already sparkling with danger, and now when he heard Alina's words, there was a cold, dark glint in his eyes.

"You admit it?"

Each word was bitten out of his teeth.

Alina sneered, "Yes, I admit it, is that good?"

Caleb's brain went blank.

No one knows what is going on inside him at the moment.

And Alina is gone.

Since he likes this kind of chaos, let the world be more chaotic, let a bunch of them be chaotic, and it's time for him to go.

.....

Caleb sat at the table for a long, long time with Alina's last words on his mind.

The table was overturned.

The whole dining room was in a state of disarray.

No one in the room dared to go up and say a word of advice.

Over the years they seem to have gotten used to the fact that Caleb has always been unable to suppress his temper whenever Alina is involved.

Now that Alina has returned, the scene seems even more horrific.

"Alina." Caleb uttered through gritted his teeth.

This damned woman.

If life was going smoothly, the three years would have passed in a flash, but in Caleb's world, it's not that easy to get past.

No one knows what these years were really like for Caleb and how he got past them.

For three years, he never stopped looking for her.

He knows he was sorry for what happened three years ago. But if she had so much to do with this.

All things, then, are therefore different.

Men, no matter who they are, no matter what position they are in, are most disgusted by a woman's betrayal of them.

Apparently, Caleb's perception now is that Alina has betrayed him.

.....

It's been a long time since Alina got out, but she's still feeling a lot of angst.

All the way back to Mulherd Manor, she is still crazy.

"Caleb, that fucking bitch. I'm so pissed off." There is no doubt that Alina was outright pissed off at this moment.

He went so far as to associate North Srey and South Srey directly with Chester.

What is she, then?

What a bad luck to marry him in the past. She's glad she saw him for what he really is, he's not a nice guy.

Three years ago, Alina did something so unethical that, in retrospect, it would have been a good time to be with him all the time, even with his temper.

Three years ago, how come she didn't see his temper?

And Alina doesn't know that everything has changed since Hasnan Bridge three years ago.

It was then that his character was changed forever.

Whatever it is, Alina doesn't want to stay here any longer.

"It's going to be a long time before you come back, isn't it?" Lucy looked at Alina with reluctance.

Alina, "Lucy, you can stay here, I'll pay you every month."

Alina said.

If she could, she would never come back to this place in her life.

Mulherd Manor, her favourite place in the world, where she grew up, with her grandmother and her mother's shadow.

But Ingford, for her, was too messy. Apart from Mulherd Manor, there seemed to be no place for her to stay.

If so, why does she cling to this place?

Lucy sighed, "Master Caleb was actually deceived by that Emma."

As far as Lucy was concerned, Caleb and Alina would have been fine without Emma.

Alina, "It doesn't matter."

She sounded very relaxed, as if she had really just let go of the relationship, or rather, it really didn't matter.

And Lucy wished her well.

Alina, "A relationship that changes because of a woman is not secure, and there is no need to be distressed by it."

"You think straight."

What else does she want to do? To get killed over that couple?

She regretted it enough three years ago, and will never do it again.

No one, for any reason, has the right to hurt her.

"Come on, Lucy, don't say anymore, okay?"

"Okay, as long as Lady Alina is well." Lucy was really doing it for her.

Alina nodded.

.....

On the Collins Castle side, Chester left shortly after Alina and the others did.

In the afternoon, however, an unexpected visitor came to the house.

Emma.

After much deliberation, it was clear that Emma didn't want to let Alina off the hook like that.

How could she be happy if Alina didn't find out about such a big event?

Just now, she told Vanessa and Julia all about how Chester and Alina had left AIG that day.

At this moment.

The atmosphere in the centre room was not good, Julia and Vanessa did not look well.

Emma's heart is thus lighter.

“Madam, she’s been lying to you all along.” Emma took the opportunity to say.