

I'm Richer Than My Billionaire Ex-husband Chapter 197

Now, what kind of words is she saying?

She gives her alms.

"Before robbing items, now robbing my man. You're really special." Alina sarcastically dropped her words.

She picked the medicine box and left.

And Emma was in the same place, trembling for a long, long time, and couldn't stop.

Looking in the direction of the back door, looking at the direction Alina left, the gloom in Emma's eyes grew.

When Alina did not say those words, Emma did not realize it yet, so when Alina said those words, only then did Emma completely realise that everything she had used before was Alina's.

She had nothing.

Even now, everything she possessed was half of Alina's.

But even so, did Alina have to humiliate her like this?

In the dining room.

Alina was eating while calling Andre.

She said, "Arrange one of the group's lawyers to me."

"What do you want?"

"What's mine, not a penny less."

Even if Caleb had given her all of it before, it wasn't enough. There was still her own, wasn't there?

She had to get back what was rightfully hers, and she wanted every bit of it back.

Andre heard what he said and instantly understood what Alina was up to. At this point in time, she just didn't want to let Emma have an easy time.

Even though the police has not come up with a definite result yet, Alina will not admit any mistake.

So, the game begins.

She was not expecting it, and in getting such a result, the shock was definitely not small for her.

She knew that Emma was a bad and ungrateful woman. But she also didn't expect this Emma to be so bad.

"Okay." Andre said.

Having the family behind her showed a greater importance, if there was no Grandpa at her back, everything that Alina was facing now would be faced by herself, and that was the cruelest and most terrifying part.

No matter what happened now, they would always be the strongest backing, the strongest, spiritual pillar for her.

Hanging up Andre's call, Alina ate very calmly.

The Collins sent her nutritious soup.

However, Caleb was probably too badly injured, so now he had no taste for anything, or maybe it was because he was angry.

"Does she really know about my car accident?" He gave fierce glare at Tomas.

Up until now, Alina hadn't even appeared, which made Caleb irritated.

Tomas froze for a moment.

"She knows, right?"

How could she not know about such a big thing?

"Are you sure?"

"Not sure." Tomas was really not too sure, after all, a car accident of this magnitude would not only be reported.

The doctor would have contacted the family as well.

Or did the doctor actually only contacted the Collins family?

“Tomas.”

“I’ll go and call Lady Alina again right away.”

Tomas felt that afraid, so he better hurry up and call Alina.

He had been so busy last night that he had forgotten whether he had called or not.

Alina was having dinner at this moment.

She ate very slowly. She got teeth ache, so it was clear how much the things she knew yesterday really pissed her off.

Now even eating hurts.

Seeing Tomas’s phone, she picked it up, “Hello.”

“Lady Alina.”

“What is it?” Hearing Tomas’s voice, Alina naturally did not have a good temper.

Tomas froze when he heard the icy coldness in Alina’s tone.

After thinking about it, he still said apprehensively, “You know Mater Caleb had a car accident, right?”

“He died?”

“You’re joking, Lady Alina.”

“Even if he’s dead, it’s not my turn to collect his body. Why are you calling me?” Alina’s tone was full of dissatisfaction.

Tomas was speechless.

But thinking of the one in the ward, still, he said apprehensively, “Won’t you come and see?”

“To see if he’s dead?”

This time Tomas thought that it was better for her not to come.

Caleb was out of danger, but if she came here, he would be so angry that he died.

When a woman was ruthless, there was really nothing for a man to do.

He hung up the phone after a few respectful words.

In the corridor of the hospital, Tomas didn't know how to go back, thinking about the atmosphere in this ward, he wanted to run.

But in the end, he still went in.

Caleb looked at Tomas with sharp eyes, such a look made Tomas feel very stressed.

"Lady Alina, got the news."

"What did she say?"

Could Tomas bring the original words to him? If that were the case, he guess he could not survive.

How long are they going to keep on messing around? Tomas was totally all set to cry.

"Say it."

Seeing that Tomas did not say anything, Caleb's tone became cold, in fact, at this time, he probably guessed that Alina probably said something.

Tomas, "She said, she's not coming."

"Original words."

"....." Still, really want to hear the original words?

But Caleb still has some understanding of the current Alina.

"Lady Alina said that even if you die, it would not be her turn to collect your corpse." This sentence was the cruelest, right?

The already not-so-good breath in the sickroom was now even more directly gloomy.

If Tomas hadn't dodged quickly, that soup bowl would have smashed directly on his body, but fortunately, he was still quite nimble.

This was also considered to have snatched a bullet.

Looking at the broken bowl, Tomas's heart was beating hard.

Does Alina look like someone who will behave meekly?

Caleb's face was now dark.

"Alina." What the hell is she talking about? She really wants him to be dead?

Caleb was unable to connect Alina with the well-behaved and understanding woman from three years ago.

At that time, as the daughter of the Hughes family, she carried an aura of the family's bookishness.
