

I'm Richer Than My Billionaire Ex-husband Chapter 239

Alina laughed even more.

Meeting the man's danger, she sarcastically said, "What is there for someone like you who has no bottom line dare not?"

"But Caleb, you better not push me in this matter, or I will be even more bottomless than you."

Alina said word by word.

The two's forceful gazes just clashed together.

For them, the bottom line had always been very weak.

In Alina's heart, Caleb had always been a man without a bottom line, and what Alina was doing now had completely surpassed the bottom line in Caleb's heart as well.

Alina stood up and walked towards Emma, who was at Caleb, Alina gave Caleb a look.

And then she raised her hand and slapped Emma in her face.

The air was frozen.

"Alina." Caleb was furious.

As if she did not hear the man's dangerous words, she said, "Remember this slap, in the future, put away your pretending look in front of me and speak normally, or I will tear your mouth apart."

Every time Emma spoke in front of Caleb, she looked like she was with aggression.

Pretty disgusting.

Emma's face was pale, the humiliation in her heart rose even more strongly.

Alina looked at her white face and stood up.

Glancing at the time on her wristwatch, she said, "Lois."

"Yes, Lady Alina." Lois stepped forward, only to feel that the current Alina had become even more aggressive in her methods towards Emma.

Alina, "Get her things to the basement, I don't want to see her."

She wanted Emma to go live in the basement?

The air was already tight at this moment, and Lois felt the coldness in it even more, especially on Caleb's face.

At this moment, there was even more danger emanating from him.

When Caleb was not here, Lois naturally did whatever Alina said, but now Caleb was here.

Werland Villa is Caleb's territory, and Lois naturally has to listen to Caleb.

And when Emma first heard that she was to be told to go live in the basement, she subconsciously looked at Caleb in aggravation, yet a stern look from Caleb made her cower even more instantly.

She said, "I'll live in the basement."

Yes, living in the basement is better than being beside Alina.

Emma was made to leave by Lois, if this went on, there was no telling how this scene would end.

When there were just Alina and Caleb left, the man looked at her, "Are you satisfied?"

"Satisfied? You are funny." How could the outcome of this matter be measured by satisfaction?

This is just the beginning.

Alina and Caleb were only involved in the matter of divorce, and now Emma was involved in the accidental death of her grandmother and parents.

So this matter has now definitely changed in nature as well.

Alina stepped on her heels and went straight upstairs, she didn't take the lift. It was ironic to think of the reason for the installation of that lift.

At that time, when that lift was installed on, Lois whispered in her ear, 'Master Caleb really cares about you.'

'Knowing that it was inconvenient to be pregnant, he had the lift installed.'

Alina felt sarcastic.

Back in the room.

Alina's phone then vibrated, it was Andre calling, Alina picked up the phone, "Hello."

"In Werland Villa?"

"Yes."

"Are you okay?"

"Caleb asked me to give him three days, saying something about giving me an explanation, what do you think he will give me an explanation?"

"You promised?" Andre breathed heavier.

Alina, "No."

"You are not stupid, he must be protecting Emma at this time." As usual, no matter what happened, it was always in favour of Emma.

When Alina was pregnant with his child, he could still do something like that, now, what else could he not do?

Alina, "I know."

When it came to the matter of Caleb always protecting Emma, Alina's tone was so calm.

At this moment Andre was even thinking about a question.

That was if Caleb had done that thing earlier that year, the baby hadn't been nine months old, but three months old in her belly.

Then at that time, would Alina have kept the child?

According to Alina's cold attitude now.

She probably wouldn't.

If the child had been less than three months old, she would have cut off the blood ties between them without hesitation.

"You have to prepare more for the big show in Eglinton." Although she was angry, her own future could not be put on hold because of these people.

Alina, "I know, don't worry."

On this point, Alina was naturally clear.

In the end, she hung up from Andre's call.

Another call was made with Brandon, who was now living in Waterside Villa, and was obviously convenient for preparing Alina for the show.

Caleb came to Alina's room.

At this moment the man's anger in the dining room had all but been collected.

He said, "Let's talk."

Alina, "What do you want to talk to me about? Compensation? Or threats and costs?"

"I can't tell right from wrong in your mind?"

"Yes."

Alina responded.

He was a sensible and perceptive man, but in Alina's heart, Caleb was fine in other matters.

But when it came to Emma, he was so indistinguishable from right and wrong.

"In that case, do you think there is still a need for us to talk?" Alina looked at Caleb sharply, without giving in.

And Caleb was obviously furious at this moment, his brain hurting.

The anger that had just been suppressed was now successfully provoked by Alina.

Caleb held his forehead.

Obviously, now he didn't know what to say about Alina at all.

"I just want you to give me some time to at least let me know about this thing."

"Then tell me, what will you do if you find out that she really did it?" The man's words were interrupted by Alina before he could finish.

The two men's eyes locked together, and Alina's eyes were stern.

Caleb, "Do you think she can really do such a big thing?"

Alina sneered.

So, there was no need to talk about anything between them, she already understood Caleb's attitude, this man was more than just not believing.

Probably even if he did find out the results, he would still protect it.
