

I'm Richer Than My Billionaire Ex-husband Chapter 253

Temper?

It was fine if Alina didn't talk about her temper, but when she did, Tomas thought of last night and had to say that the current Alina was really bad-tempered.

"It was Master Caleb who sent me." Tomas said to Alina.

He put the whole thing on Caleb's shoulders.

Yet Alina, whoever wants to do something for Emma, would not be soft-hearted.

"Then I must advise you, nowadays I can't tolerate anyone who works for Emma."

His body was already tense, but now that he heard Alina say such words, he was even more viciously seized together.

So that, for better or for worse, it seemed to him that there was no need to go on now.

Because, he must be helping Emma to say something good, but, looking at Alina's attitude, who dares to say anything casually?

"Why don't you say anything?" Alina looked at Tomas who didn't say anything and smiled sarcastically.

Who would dare to talk nonsense?

This could be a beating.

Tomas has never been tossed around like this before, no matter what he was doing.

Alina, "It seems that you don't want to talk about it?"

"Lady Alina."

"What?"

"Master Caleb asked you what you want." Eventually, Tomas spoke up, but brought Caleb in whatever he said.

It takes a stand that this matter has absolutely nothing to do with himself.

Tomas is considered to be Caleb's most powerful assistant, many good things have he accomplished over the years.

Yet in the matter of Alina, there was nothing he could do.

In the end, Caleb was still protective in such a way.

The air was frozen.

Alina, "I will leave him with nothing."

Not only him, but Emma.

Not only did they lose money, but their reputation was ruined.

"You know it's not easy." Tomas said as he frowned at Alina.

Is Caleb really what he appears to be?

He is not even simple on the surface, who knows what else in the darkness?

And Alina, who wants Caleb to have nothing, is more than naive.

"Is that so?"

Alina snorted.

Such a sneer, at the moment, in Tomas' eyes was arrogant.

There are many famous families throughout Ingford, and Caleb has many rivals, and no one has been able to leave him with nothing for so many years.

Even more so, when he was fighting with the VIG, she saw that Andre did not have a half advantage in this point.

And now, she is arrogant.

"It won't do you any good to make a scene like this." Tomas said to Alina, which seemed to be a piece of advice to Alina.

After all, during this time Caleb still had more or less some concerns about Alina.

Pitying her for the loss of an important family member, and therefore scrupulous in whatever she does.

But this scruple is a matter of patience.

And it seemed to Tomas that Caleb's patience was now going to be exhausted, so this was the way to make a scene, in Tomas' opinion, it was more than half-heartedly beneficial to Alina.

It is more likely that VIG will be implicated along with it.

“Then go back and tell him that I don’t care for any favours from him nowadays.” She was still as the high and mighty Miss Hughes.

Once, in her privileged environment, she achieved all her pride.

Now even without parents, she, too, stands tall and will make no compromises.

“Mrs. Collins.”

“I am Miss Hughes.” Alina looked at Tomas and reminded him, “Don’t call me wrong again.”

Such Alina really made his brains hurt.

“Go back and tell him that I only want what belongs to me, and as for favours. I don’t care for what he gives.”

Probably no one has ever said such arrogant words to Caleb in Ingford, but now, in the end, it’s different.

It was as if Alina had a backbone, and no matter what Caleb’s people said to her now, she just hit back without hesitation.

With Emma, she was even more imperative to win.

Eventually, Tomas went away.

Marry stepped forward, “Miss.”

Her tone was full of worry.

Originally, her life was good, but it was completely ruined by the people sponsored by the Hughes family.

Not asking for gratitude, but such utter ruin is not something anyone can afford.

Alina, “I’m fine, Marry.”

But inside, it was actually a tumble.

Marry could see the difference now.

When Alina confirmed that whether it was her parents or her grandmother, their deaths were all related to Emma.

Her heart has been turned upside down.

A phone call from Andre.

Alina picked up and told everything that happened last night at Werland Villa. Andre got pissed off, "I knew that bastard would give you that result three days ago."

"Yes."

At that time, when Caleb said that kind of words, Alina felt that he would definitely give such a result too.

What would Caleb not do to protect Emma? This is not the first time or twice that he has done something like this without a bottom line.

"So what do you do now?"

"Court in three days."

She was talking about the divorce between them.

"I'm coming over to keep you company."

"No need, I'm going to Eglinton." Alina said, after three days, she wouldn't even show up, leaving it all to her lawyer and Stella.

In this marriage, the one who is tired must be Caleb alone.

Caleb is probably not going to be there in three days, and it's actually better if he doesn't. By then a lot of things will have happened to catch him off guard as well.

And Andre, after freezing for a moment when he heard that Alina was going to Eglinton, was sort of relieved.

"You are sober." This was said as if with relief.

Many women in divorce are in no mood to do their work because of the betrayal of their men.

Alina, on the contrary, is still in the mood to go to Eglinton, which reassures Andre a lot.

“It wasn’t me who betrayed the marriage, it was him. If I don’t come to my senses, do I wait until he has taken everything I have?” Alina snickered.
