

Immaculate Spirit

Chapter 25

"Did you know?" Said his grandfather when he barged into the music room without knocking. He had a magazine in his hand where they could see him and Taylor hugging.

"Yes, i know grandpa but that's not an excuse to not be civil, we have a guest here." He said with a frown.

"A guest? She's here more often than i do and this is my home!" He said with huff.

"That's not something on her but something on you."

"I'm working, i have responsibilities but that's not the subject of this conversation. I have a question to ask and i will be blunt about it. Are you two dating?"

"No! We are just friends!" Said Taylor while blushing.

"You know that i could beat you up and none of the security guard that you employed will stop me, right?" Nathaniel said, narrowing his eyes.

That made Robert pause and his always present expression start to morph to concern. If what Amal and Jean said, even the both of them combined could not stop him so the other security agent was not even worth mentioning. That remind him of a conversation he needed to have with his grandson later, with no outsider present.

"Sorry about that, hello Taylor." Said Robert with a nod.

"None taken mister Lyndon." She answers while nodding.

"I notice that none of the article got your name and that's odd. The photo and video were clearly taken in the party so they should have your name. I start to make phone call to the people present to see which one leak the photo, i think it was from the youngling that was present."

"Do you want to make a public announcement on social media Taylor?"

"No mister Lyndon, that always make the matter worse. I got invited to various talk show to talk about it and my tour who start next month so it would be best to do it then."

"Suit yourself, Nathaniel we could release a press release to state the truth if you want and tell the world who you are."

"Not yet grandpa, let them speculate on the comet, that would create hype for the song. Leave also the song on Youtube, i found some people who make helpful comment and that's gave me idea. It's a win-win situation."

"I agree, my label was glad once they listen to it of the collaboration so we're good on my side too."

"Nice. when the song would be ready?" Ask Robert in a professional way.

"End of next week i believe."

"Keep me posted. I'm leaving now, we would need to talk later grandson." He said before leaving.

"Well, this always interesting to watch you interacting with your grandfather. In the industry he's a legend that people revered and respect. Where you treat him like a simple man and doting grandfather. Do you see how much that irks him that he can't control you? This is so funny." She said with a giggle.

"Yes, i do it for my own good, trust me." He respond, laughing.

"Now i need to create a twitter account and Youtube account."

He then start to create his account. Thankfully his name was not taken so he could have the same to twitter and Youtube with "Nathaniel Lyndon". He was asking the advice of Taylor for his profile picture and what to put when his moms enter the room. They explain to them what was going on with the news article. In the end, that was a blessing in disguise for his music and the media coverage around it even if he thought he didn't need it.

When he start talking about his issues with his profile on social media, Mary, Karine and Taylor looked at each other and started smiling. Seeing that creepy smile on the face of everyone around him, a shiver run through his spine starting to feel a bad omen.

"We are going to take a lot of picture of you!" Squeal Karine.

His intuition was right, that was a really bad omen.